Camp Doniphan, Where Missouri Guardsmen Are Training, Is a Real War School

"MEN READY FOR FRANCE IN 16 WEEKS," SAYS COMMANDANT

Overhead, as They Work From 10 to 12 Hours a Day at Digging Trenches, Throwing Bombs and Fencing With Bayonets, Aeroplanes Whirl in the Clouds and Men From Sausage Balloons Watch the Maneuvers.

CAMP DONIPHAN, Ok., Oct. 6

THE training of the late Missouri National Guardsmen, now in the Federal service, is proceeding here under conditions more nearly approximating the atmosphere of war than any other camp that I have seen.

Airplanes whirr overhead, a great sausage observation balloon is bobbing on its cable over Fort Sill, 600 men are throwing a line of trenches across the slope of a hill, a thousand squads of eight each are drilling, motorcycle orderlies speed along the roads in clouds of dust and from the upper end of the valley comes the boom of Rumbold's guns.

There is uplift and thrill in a camp like this. It is fine to see a mile of field artillery winding across the plain, and there is inspiration in the gallop to position, the whisking of the guns into line, the quick withdrawal of the horses to places of safety, the quick word of command, and the climax which comes when the guns begin firing.

The whirr of the airplanes is in the key of war. The thunder of the truck trains, the spatter of the motorcycles, the music of the bugles, and even the howling of the dogs are parts of the noise of war.

There is inspiration, also, in the spectacle of Captains Dwight Davis, Hugh McKittrick Jones, R. J. Ludlow, E. F. Lloyd and George Burnet and 600 other men working with pick and shovel in the trenches, and earning sore backs and blistered hands as their first decorations for meritorious conduct. They are learning that they may teach others. They are being taught by Lieut. Jules Champenois of the French army, who learned the trick of it before Verdun.

Camp Is a Sightly One.

Camp Doniphan is in a wide valley of the Wichita Mountains. Adjoining it is Fort Sill, an army post built when this was the far frontier and the business of the soldier was to fight Indians. At old Fort Sill is preserved the order forbidding enlisted men to shoot buffalo through the port holes of the fort.

New Fort Sill is more modern, just west of the old one. Here are the hangars of the aviation school, the balloon tent and the wide landing field, west of the new post is Camp Doniphan, laid out like a horse shoe, with the toe up the valley, the heel next to Fort Sill and the sides of the rising slopes of the valley.

The wooden buildings are scattered widely and the tents are pitched with good spaces between the rows and everywhere is testimony to the fact that there is plenty of room here. Camp Doniphan is on the edge of the arid land of the Southwest and there is suggestion of this in the air. Dust devils dance over the prairies where the soil is dry and hard, the mountains are bare, the air is clear and the trees in the little hollows grow in clumps.

So favorable are general conditions that it was not until recently that it was decided to floor the tents of the enlisted men. If present weather conditions were to continue, this would not be necessary, but one good rain would spoil it all. It may come, too, for they have not had a good rain here for a year. The cotton crop about Lawton is a failure.

This is the northernmost of national guard camps, from which some officers deduce that the men trained here will be the first of the guards to go to France. However that may be, the course provides for 16 weeks of intensive training. The course is calculated to have begun Sept. 1, so it will end with the year. With the new year, the men will be ready for the transports.

Will Work Long Hours.

One division of 27,000 men will be trained here and of these 21,000 will be national guardsmen. The remainder will come from the draft. There are about 13,500 here now, and they are at work. It was the original intention to work them about six hours a day, but it was decided that would not be enough. They probably will work from 10 to 12 hours a day. The hours will be determined by the development the men show, as the object is to give them all the work they can stand as long as the men are being built up and improved.

The load will be all the traffic can stand, the thing to be guarded against will be the danger of the men going stale, or deteriorating.

Camp Doniphan, and presumably every other national guard camp, starts with a good lead over the camps of drafted men, such as Camp Funston in Kansas where the selected Missourians train. Besides the preliminary military training, which in at least 40 per cent of the cases is a good solid foundation, the guardsmen brought with them nearly all their equipment. The men are uniformed, while at Funston they are clad in overalls. They have cots, bedding, underclothing and, most important, they have rifles. Many of these doubtless will be condemned, and all of them may be supplanted with another arm, but they have them for the drill, and the guardsmen probably will be well acquainted with the "piece" before the drafted men have had an opportunity to meet the arm.

There are not enough rifles here to arm every man, but each company has enough to give all a chance at the manual of arms and the drill.

Major-General William Wright, his Chief of Staff, Lieutenant-Colonel R. McCleave and his Aid, Capt. P. C. Kalleck, are in France learning the latest tricks in their trade of war, and Brigadier-General L. G. Berry, an artillery officer, is in command.

"These men will be ready for France when their 16 weeks here are done," Gen. Berry said. "They are exceptionally good men physically and will take on readily the additional strength required. Many of them have a good foundation of drill and discipline, and we will build on this. By the first of the year, I feel sure, they will be ready for a finishing school in France."

"I fear we will not have much time for football," Gen. Berry said. "Every effort will be made to harden and make fit the men in the least possible time and we feel this can be done best by exercises in which every man takes part. Football is intensive athletics by a few with entertainment for the many."

Bombers Working Away.

The course of study of the school here touches almost every angle of the modern business of war. At Fort Sill masked young men are trying out the gas chambers. On the hill sides, bombers are learning the clumsy underhand delivery by which the hand grenade is landed in the enemy trench. High above in airplanes shrewd eyed volunteers are training for artillery observers. Hundreds of pairs of men are practicing the new bayonet work, which does away with much of the fencing used before, and trains a man most quickly and surely to kill a man in a crowded trench or a flooded shell crater.

The aviation school is under command of Maj. Gerhart of the regular army. Twelve great permanent hangars stand in a row fronting on a plain which serves admirably for rising and landing. It is the intention to concrete five acres of the field, so that winter flying may continue in spite of soggy ground, rain or snow.

Above each hangar flies the unofficial flag of the aviator. This is a long pillow, or bolster slip, with one end open, and to the trained eye it tells the direction of the wind and its approximate force.

A "sausage" observation balloon tugs at its cables at an altitude of from 1000 to 4000 feet. This English importation, favorably known for its stability in the wind, has three inflated fins at the leeward end, and sitting in the basket all day long has nothing to do with the gay life. Airplane students regard balloon observers as persons who have retired from active service to the security of a quiet job.

Rigid physical examinations are being made of the late guardsmen, with an ear directed particularly at tuberculosis of the lungs. A staff of expert diagnosticians is here working them over. There is also a party of physicians, who specialize in diseases of the mind, whose business it will be to determine whether any of the men are temperamentally unfitted for the occupation of war. It is assumed that a sane man can be a soldier, but some of the insanities as defined by these men do not unfit a man for civil pursuits.

Many friends of the national guard had grave fears for the morale of that organization after the changes had been made incident to its incorporation in the Thirty-Fifth Division.

So far as I am able to observe, the result is much the same as it would be in any other shake-up, where some men got what they desired and others lost what they held.

Gloom Among the Losers.

The winners are exultant and the losers are much depressed. This applies to officers, and even the most depressed and disappointed are unswerving in their allegiance to duty. Each man is willing and anxious to give the best he has, wherever he is put, although at heart he feels that he could have filled another job much better.

As a result of the disruption of the guard, two officers have tendered their resignations. Whether these will be accepted or not is problematical. Each case must stand on its own merits, and the War Department does not look with favor on resignations at this time.

Where two fully officered regiments are consolidated, it produces a regiment with two sets of officers. The seniors take the positions. What will become of the juniors is not yet decided. Probably many of them will be "attached," which means that they will serve for a while with their old organizations as supernumeraries. Others of them will go to the Depot Brigade, which is under command of Gen. Harvey Clark. The duties of this brigade, which are not yet fully understood, probably will be to train the reserves, and care for the first line of the rear. This essential section always has been neglected in our system of war.

Second Missouri a "Suicide Club".

The regiment to suffer most was the Second Missouri, which was the oldest in the State, the largest and frequently accounted the best. It has been cut up into machine gun companies and the identity of the regiment is lost. Sentimentally this is a regrettable thing, and one, I feared, which would cast a pall of gloom over the men.

On the other side, machine gun companies are referred to as suicide clubs and picked riflemen of both armies are assigned to the business of potting machine gunners. To run a machine gun requires mechanical skill and training, good clear heads, perfect eyes and bodies, stout hearts and superlative courage. As I come from South Missouri, the native heath of the Second Regiment, I speak the language of these men and I sought out three buck privates who sat in the sun and asked them what they thought of it all.

"Well, its pretty tough to lose the old officers of course," one man said, "but then we keep a good many of them, and we'll get along. It was a cinch that they would choose the Second for machine gunners. They just had to. We were by far the best regiment in the State, and the best shots, and there is no question about what we will do with the machine guns. It would not do to trust important and dangerous work like that to any regiment you come across. You have to have picked men that you can depend on. Na-

Gen. Berry Outlines What the Guardsmen Must Learn

CAMP DONIPHAN, Okla. Oct. 6.

"DEVELOPMENTS in the science of war come so rapidly now that we cannot keep step this far from the front, but we can try to keep but a few paces to the rear," said Gen. Berry, commanding Camp Doniphan. "There are certain changes in training that seem surely indicated, however. It has always been our custom in artillery training to conserve ammunition. That has changed. Now we drill men to get results, regardless of what the expenditure of shells may be.

"Nowadays the enlisted man must be a little better soldier than formerly. The artilleryman must lay his gun better, he must be able to work it more rapidly and he must care for it better than in the past. In short, we require better soldiers now than we formerly did.

"The infantryman must be stronger of body and soul, and he must have great power of resistance. He must be able to endure strain, fatigue and the stress of battle. He will meet new conditions and he must know how to fight in new ways.

"Probably the most clearly indicated of the new requirements of the enlisted men is a higher degree of courage and discipline than was needed before. The discipline must be iron-like in its rigidity and the courage must be unfaltering. These work hand in hand. This discipline makes the platoon or the battalion work as one, makes the unit's store of courage the common property of all, it might be called mass courage, and it supplies the teamwork which wins battles."

Night Battle "Fought" in Training.

SINCE many of our battles are to be fought at night, the troops must be trained at night as well as day. At the trenches back of Fort Sill, such an engagement was rehearsed this week. The problem was to repel a night attack of the enemy, and the task was given to a battalion of heavy machine guns.

Armed with their Vickers water cooled weapons, the men took their places in the fire trench, while the "depth" was properly filled with supports and reserves, with officers at the proper places as agreed by modern fighters.

Across the "No Man's Land," from 300 to 500 yards away, were silhouette figures of men to represent the enemy, hidden in the darkness.

A rocket on the flank warned of the attack. This was answered by rockets along the line, and then the flares and star shells went up, turning the night into day, and bringing out the figures of the advancing enemy sharply. Then the Vickers opened with their fiendish clatter, the whole line spurting fire. Fresh star shells were fired to replace the dying ones, and the infernal rattle of the spitting rifles kept up in a steady roar.

When the commanding officer decided that the work was done, he silenced the guns, and the targets were examined.

They were shot to pieces in some instances, and virtually every sillouette had a bullet hole. The attack had been repulsed.

"FACING DEATH UNARMED"

William Allen White Tells of the Work of American Volunteer Ambulance Corps

Kansas editor writes of incidents of bravery that have won fame and medals for members of self-supporting organization that has rendered such excellent service since the beginning of the war—Now being mustered into the U. S. Army—Change not welcomed by many of the men and their organizer and director, Richard E. Norton, declines commission as Major and bids his helpers farewell.

(This is the first of a series of articles Mr. White will write for the Post-Dispatch.)

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.
Well Known Editor and Author Now in France as Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Sept. 20.

THIS week will see the federalization of all American Ambulance Service in France. The American Government will formally take charge before Saturday, Sept. 22, of the work heretofore done by the American Field Service under A. Pitt Andrews and the work done by the American Ambulance Corps under the leadership of Richard Norton. The American Field Service has enlisted about 800 men and is well advertised in America, but the American Ambulance Corps, which comprises about 600 men, carefully avoided publicity and is not so well known in America.

The men in each division of the service have done splendid work. It was, of course, entirely volunteer work and without pay—excepting the 5 cents a day allowed by the French Government to the poilus—yet the men who have done this service for nearly three years of the war were the only organized Americans who were doing America's bit at the battle front in the great conflict. They carried our flag to glory while we were making money, and the mustering out of these volunteers marks the close of a brave chapter in American history.

Because the service of the American Ambulance Corps is less known than is that of its sister service, some record should be made here of what the American Ambulance Corps has done during its three fighting years of life.

It means nothing to say that its records show that the corps has carried from the firing zone to base or to field hospitals 167,521 wounded, as well as medicines and dressings from the hospitals to the front to dress these wounded. Figures mean so little.

Work Over Battlefields

It is necessary to understand how these wounded are gathered for one to realize how fine and courageous the service is. To tell this story of the transfer of the wounded from the field, one must first present some account of the battlefields in which these American boys worked.

Roughly speaking, they covered a country from Arras to Verdun—a hilly, wooded country, in which the French and Germans fought in but few plains. It has been a fight mainly for this hill or that woods, and in spite of the fact that first line trenches frequently, perhaps generally, lie in the open, the concealed artillery in woods or on hills offered points of equal danger with the trenches. Infantry, artillery and doctors lost more men in proportion to their numbers even than airmen, and the youth of the ambulance corps were daily associates of these three classes of soldiers.

The ambulance corps receives its wounded from the stretcher bearers and doctors usually on the hill or in the woods where the artillery was planted. These first posts of succor were as far forward as ambulances could be driven—always over shelled roads, sometimes over roads in plain view of the enemy guns. The wounded are borne by stretcher bearers to dugouts in side hills or woods where a wounded man is quickly and roughly bound up. These first aid posts generally are from a quarter of a mile to three-quarters of a mile from the trenches, but always among the guns and ammunition which, more than the trenches, the Germans are trying to destroy by shell fire.

For days at a time there may be no trench firing, but always the Germans' heavy guns are hunting for the French or British artillery; always the boys bringing in the wounded are in danger. In a recent activity at Verdun, for instances, in one day, 600 men were killed or wounded in one small sector in the woods back of the trenches; and no casualty came out of the trenches and every man in the ambulance corps was under fire every hour he was on duty.

Cannot Wear Gas Masks

One section of the corps had 24 ambulances. Twenty ambulances showed shell-fire scars in that Verdun activity, and shell fire is the smallest of the dangers the boys face.

Gas is the terror of the men of the ambulance corps, for the enemy always is shelling the woods and hills behind the lines with gas. A man afoot may use a gas mask and save himself, but driving a car over rough roads at night, with no lights whatever in the car, makes a gas mask almost an impossible piece of baggage for a driver. Yet, no man in the American Ambulance Corps ever has died from gas poison.

Indeed, so well have these boys been trained, and so carefully have they been recruited from among cautious, intelligent men, that in all their three years of fighting, not one has been killed and not one ever deserted his car; ambulance corps men have been gravely wounded, have lost legs or arms or hands or feet, but death never has overtaken one of them. The record has been duplicated by no other service.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.

After the wounded are put into an ambulance, the two members of the American Ambulance Corps who are in charge of the car take it to the first field hospital, which usually is from three to ten miles back of the first aid post. The road these men traverse with their wounded runs generally at least a mile, sometimes for three or four miles, through shell-fire area. On the same road come all the food reserves, ammunition and supplies to the men in the trenches, and the German airmen and spies have given the German gunners the exact location of these roads. The woods about them are shattered and bleak. Great shell holes pock the borders of the road and gangs of men in steel helmets to shed shrapnel, work up and down the road filling up the shell holes, clearing away dead horses—either gassed or bombed—removing the debris of shattered trucks and making the way as clear as possible for the never-ending stream of wagons and cars bearing food for the cannon and for the men beyond who also feed the cannon with their flesh and bones and slack its feverish thirst with their blood.

They Have Right of Way

Down these roads from hell the ambulance drivers take their wounded. They have the right of way over everything—except ammunition, for the cannon always is clamoring for his food.

The 600 men who fill the American Ambulance Corps are divided into 13 sections. Forty or 50 men in each section live in such tents, barracks, stables or reconstructed houses in ruined towns as they can find just beyond the shell-fire zone. They are in charge of two officers, one a French Lieutenant, who tells them when and where to go—the other their own chief, who tells which of them to go when the Lieutenant calls for men.

The French army feeds them; which means a French cook, who always is a joy, and the American Red Cross for a year and more has been adding to the French army ration a franc and a half for extras and the men have excellent food, plenty of meat, milk, bread, jam, cheese and eggs. In their headquarters they live in no particular danger unless the Germans find that a particularly large French gun is nearby and strain for it by a long throw, or unless the headquarters happens to be near a big field hospital, then when the Germans lose a hill or fail in an attack, they vent their wrath by sending an airman over to raid a hospital.

After a recent kick-up at Verdun, in which the Germans lost their last important hill, four French hospitals were bombed, killing nurses, doctors and wounded, and the ambulance boys nearby were saved only because they had no great Red Cross emblems on their roofs as the hospitals had. Nothing makes a German so angry after a defeat as a Red Cross sign. But the French are wise. They began keeping German wounded in their field hospitals, knowing that the German spies would report it and that then the French wounded would be safe. So far it has worked!

Chief Lives in Field

These 600 American youths who operate in the 13 sections of the American Ambulance Corps are under the leadership of Richard Norton of Cambridge, Mass. He has an office at 7 Rue Francois Premier in Paris, but he is in the office little of the time. Generally he lives in the field with the men and the success of the corps is due greatly to the care which he has used in recruiting his men. Ninety per cent of them are college men, and most of them are young men; the few who are beyond military age are men of affairs—men of independent fortunes who have a desire to serve.

Since the draft age has been decided upon in America, the recruits for the ambulance corps have come from men who, for merely technical reasons—say a defective eye, a flat foot, the loss of a finger or toe, or for a few years under or over the age limit, would not be accepted in the army. After the men were chosen for the service they were carefully trained and then sent to the various sections under experienced chiefs.

The distinguishing difference in field operations between the American Ambulance Corps and the field service, is in the fact that Norton always has required two men to man an ambulance. The field service permits one man to go, but Norton's experience has been that two men give each other courage under shell fire; that two can handle the wounded better than one, if the car is hit, and that if one is wounded, the other can finish the wounded man's work. This two-man rule largely is responsible for the record of courage and efficiency which the ambulance corps has made; that and the character of the men who are chosen for the service.

Began With Two Machines

And then, of course, there is Richard Norton. More than anyone else he has made the American Ambulance Corps work out to the glory of his country and the honor of his associates. As he went about last week, bidding the men good-by, visiting each of the 13 sections, the affection of the boys for him was beautiful to see. It was the big thing one saw at the nonchalant ceremony of parting. Always a cheer for him arose, often a modified college yell of some kind, when he appeared; and when he left, they crowded around his car, poked out eager hands and with glistening young eyes and abashed faces, hiding their deep and beautiful emotion, cried carelessly, "Well, so long, chief," and turned quickly away when they dropped his hand.

Richard Norton organized the American Ambulance Corps in September, 1914, when the retreat to the Marne and the rise of the French in that battle made it obvious that the need to serve the wounded was dire. He went from Paris to London, where he overhauled some friends in a club and commandeered their automobiles in the name of the need of the hour. He began with two cars and four men and gradually the service grew to four cars, then five cars, then 10 and the section now known as Section Seven, which is this week being mustered out, was formed. It was the mother section of the corps.

In it are men who have been with Norton from the beginning. Its members time and again have been decorated by France for valiant service, and Mr. Norton three times has received recognition from the French Government. The section was in the Battle of Hebuterne in 1915; at the Champagne drive in the autumn of 1915; all through the defense of Verdun and in the action about Chemin des Dames.

The story of Section Seven is one of the many splendid chapters in the American history of the great war which may be written or may be forgotten, but which on the hearts of thousands of wounded Frenchmen always will be engraved in gratitude. For the service of these men was a service purely altruistic. They punished no enemies; they glutted no vengeance, got no gains, had no rewards of glory. They stood and waited under shell fire and they also served.

Corps Self Supporting

Beginning back of the Arras sector of the line with 10 cars and 15 men, the American Ambulance Corps incorporated as the "American Volunteer Motor Ambulance Corps," under the laws of Great Britain and went to work. Its books were inspected by a public accountant, and its lawyer saw that it ran a straight legal course. It operated with the British Red Cross until the winter of 1915, when the English withdrew, leaving the Americans with 20 cars and 50 men. The corps has raised its own funds in America, paid its own way and was as busy a little angel of mercy as ever wore suspenders over its wings.

In May, 1916, the corps took in a section known as the Harjes Section, operated under the direction of H. H. Harjes of the Morgan house of Morgan, Harjes & Co. in Paris. Harjes found himself unable to give all of his time to field work, and as he was the French delegate of the American Red Cross at the time, he took the two corps under the protection of the American Red Cross, and Norton supervised two sections in the field instead of one. Morgan donated a substantial gift in October, 1916, and a third section was

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Ancient and Modern Huns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was greatly interested in the article by Dr. Seibert which was published in your issue of September 30, under the caption "The Huns in Classic Lore."

We feel very grateful for the information because it explains fully why the title "Hun" so easily and naturally fell to the lot of the Germans. Nothing could be more applicable. The henious course of barbarism followed by that outlaw nation fits perfectly a modernized version of Ammianus Marcellus' description.

The Hun of antiquity was as disreputable, untrustworthy and cruel as was possible with his limited intellect, but the modern Hun, while possessing all the bestial qualities of the ancient Hun, has carried much further his outrages by applying to their execution the devilish cunning of depraved higher intelligence. He is just as vile, just as dishonorable and untrustworthy, and has made his name a thing to be despised throughout the world.

It certainly is not pleasant to be called a Hun, even if it can be disproved, but the acme of opprobrium attaches to those living among us, who in the past three years have, by word and deed, stood ignominiously forward in the most stubborn defense of the baby murdering, pillaging principles of the modern Hun. They have broken the laws of our country in the interest of Germany. During the past three years they have steadfastly refused to see any wrong in the ruthless murder of women and babies, and today are just as anxious to have Germany win as they were three years ago, notwithstanding our entry into the war. By their works we know them. and by the same token we know that the Hun is in our midst.

He is the sneaking, poisonous reptile who upholds and encourages his brother Hun across the sea, and who gives moral and tangible support to the insidious cancer which has its nucleus in Berlin. Verily, he is a despicable and loathsome thing.

UNMASKED!

From the Kansas City Star.

The Japan Gazette, published at Yokohama, prints the following news dispatch from London in its issue of September 7:

> "A New York dispatch to the Times says that Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former President, has joined the editorial staff of the Kansas City Star. The paper is now controlled by Mr. Stone, the chairman of the Senate committee on foreign affairs, who is a pacifist. It is regarded as the strongest paper in Missouri."

It's no use we may as well throw off the mask. We had a feeling when we put on Mr. Stone's gumshoes that we weren't going to get away with it. Being a pacifist paper controlled by the senior Senator from Missouri while its contributing editor, Colonel Roosevelt, is, if not openly in favor of war, strongly suspected in some quarters of leaning that way, made a situation that was almost certain to lead to difficulties if not exposure.

Mr. Stone insisted, naturally, that we should gumshoe on the war. At the same time there was Col. Roosevelt threatening at any moment to come out on the side of America. It was enough to drive us crazy. We would no sooner get Col. Roosevelt soothed down by saying a guarded word in favor of the United States than Mr. Stone would rise up to reproach us. and we would no sooner get him pacified by writing a piece advocating the exclusive use of the German language in Congress than Col. Roosevelt would turn around and jump all over our friend La Follette.

Now that the secret is out we suppose we have just got to take sides. It's a painful thing to sever the ties that have bound us to Senator Stone. It's like driving that wedge between the Kaiser and the German people. The Kaiser is going to let out some piercing cries when it is done and we suppose Mr. Stone will feel just as badly. But we've got to do it. We're going to send his gumshoes back to him and come out in our noisy hobnails for America. And we call upon Col. Roosevelt to get off the fence and follow us.

AN UNPARALLELED RECORD.

The Sixty-fifth Congress has done its bit patriotically and effectively. And in doing that bit it has performed the most laborious, important and voluminous work done in a single session by any Congress in history.

In the thirty-second day of its life it declared a great war. Its Senate upset the precedents of 128 years by adopting a cloture rule. Its House, in which neither of the two great parties had a majority of members, departed from the course of all predecessors under like circumstances and organized speedily, without a struggle and with politics subordinated.

In all its mighty program of war legislation it has not failed in any particular except that of the censorship bill to adopt the measures asked for by the administration. If any of those measures prove less wise than now appears, the responsibility will not be with Congress. And to the trading-with-the enemy act, it appended some grants of authority as great as, or even greater than, those for in the censorship bill.

Among other acts of this record-breaking Congress was its provision of sinews of war in totals unexampled in the annals of nations, its creation of a machinery of Government food purchase and supply, control of prices, and sweeping regulation of private industry, its conferring on the Secretary of the Treasury power to parcel out $7,000,000,000 in loans to entente governments practically on his own discretion.

It met under conditions inspiring the highest eloquence in speech, but its discussions include few examples of real oratory, though talk bulks large in its printed record. Its utterances of patriotism have to a surprising extent been repetitions or paraphrases of the viewpoints, ideas and admirable definitions supplied by the executive. A different note has been struck only in the tiresome fault-finding of such men as La Follette, Gronna, Reed, Stone and a few others.

That in these times of high tension no impassioned appeal has come from conressional lips to catch the popular imagination and electrify the country shows how far leadership and initiative have passed from Congress to the administration.

A SIGNIFICANT BRITISH SMASH.

The latest British smash on Passchendaele Ridge seems to be as decisive with regard to the power of the allies to defeat Germany in the field as the battle of Marne was in the defeat of Germany's original war plan.

All observers agree that the Passchendaele battle has not been exceeded in intensity and volume of artillery fire on the West front and that the British victory is the greatest of any single stroke in the West since the battle of the Marne. The victory is more significant than any other because it testifies conclusively to the superiority at all points of the British over the German forces and the increasing demoralization and weakness of the German army.

The Passchendaele smash is the successful culmination of a series of successful smashes, each one easier and more decisive than those preceding it. The German army has not only lost its punch—its aggressive power and spirit—but it seems to be losing its resisting force.

The French successes at Verdun were as great and significant in their way as this, with the difference that French strength has reached its highest point, but British strength is coming on. The British armies are composed of the flower of the nation. Its men are young and strong and back of the men at the front are great reserves of fresh young men. The superiority of guns, ammunition and men demonstrated in this and other recent actions advances every day. Its effect is cumulative. The knowledge that the allies are growing stronger and Germany weaker and that the allied forces can overcome the German forces wherever opportunity arises is deadly to the morale of the German soldiers and inspiring to the allied forces. The effect is not less deadly on the allies of Germany who look to her for leadership and support.

The decisive victory over the Central Powers has not yet been won, but it is in the air; it is coming. The British and French campaigns of this year have prepared the way. The superiority of the allies will be greater next year, when a new force enters the field. The giant republic of the West is arming for the final stroke. We are organizing and preparing our vast resources in men, money and materials. If the British and French can smash the German defenses and push back the German armies; if they can inflict damaging blows and demoralizing losses, what will happen when our overwhelming forces of men, guns and munitions go into action?

The British and French have destroyed the legend of German invincibility. We will help to execute the sentence of death on Prussianism and all its savage works.

FAIRFIELD'S SPEED REMEDY.

The world, following its custom of finding the way to the most secluded dwelling of one who does something superlatively well, is honking its horn at the door of Fairfield, Me. For this small village on the Kennebec River appears to have solved the problem of the careless auto driver.

Like all works of genius, Fairfield's solution is extremely simple. It begins with a law which forbids anybody to drive a car until he has been duly licensed. Conviction in the courts on a charge of speeding or careless driving automatically forfeits the license which may not be renewed for three years.

Inasmuch as the automobile is a powerful engine, the improper operation of which is a continual menace to the safety of the public, there appears to be no valid reason in law or logic why anybody should be permitted to drive one without a license from the community based upon his competency to do so. A mandatory revocation of the license for any willful violation of the laws or traffic regulations certainly would be a more effective restraint upon ordinary carelessness than the present inadequate system of fines which are so often remitted and arrests which are so often meaningless.

It is well enough to invoke the manslaughter and felonious flight laws when carelessness causes a fatality, but the St. Louis auto death list of upwards of 60 for the current year is proof that these are not sufficient. The only thing that will work will be uniform penalties for carelessness whether it ends in accidents or not.

There would be little temptation to "step on 'er," on even a deserted street, if the mere proof that one had broken the law were as sufficent to prevent a repetition of the offense as if one had broken a neck. One who wouldn't mind taking the chance that he could "talk the Judge out of it," or, at most, pay a nominal fine if caught, would think a long time before risking a three-years absence from all steering wheels whatsoever.

TO DO AWAY WITH WAR.

Every time a man or woman gifted with the power of expression insists that the chief object of the present world-war is to do away with war, we are a little nearer that desirable end, for ideas rule the world.

History does not tell us that, in any previous war, either the fighters or the watchers were inspired by such a sentiment. Basing his utterances on those of President Wilson, Viscount Grey, the British statesman, thus expresses the new idea:

> "If the millions of dear lives that have been given in this war are to be given not in vain; if there is to be any last compensation for the appalling suffering of the last three years, the defeat of the Prussian will and power will not in itself be enough. Out of that defeat must come something constructive, some moral change of international relations. The entry of the United States into the war, in the spirit and with the principles that have inspired its actions, is invaluable. It is a sure and unconquerable guarantee that, in peace and after peace, these hopes will be realized."

The true pacifists now are not those who would conclude a dishonorable peace, out of which would inevitably evolve a more desperate, more hopeless war, but those who are determined, with President Wilson, that "this agony must not be gone through with again."

All sorts and conditions of men have come to this conclusion. It is wonderfully well expressed in the final chapter of a book by a French author, Henri Barbusse, entitled "Under Fire; The Story of a Squad." In it he depicts, in a most realistic way, all the brutalities, squalor, sublimity, heroism and desperation of the soldier's life at the front, in the language of a poilus themselves. And he shows them, as a result of all this, gradually working to a determination that it must never come about again. After a day of horror, a few tired, wounded, mud-bedraggled soldiers discuss the reason of it all, as they have often done before:

> "If we've got to begin again some day," says one, "all that's been done is no good. It would be two or three years or more of wasted catastrophe. Ah, my boy, if all we've gone through wasn't the end of this great calamity! I value my life; I've got my wife, my family, my home around them; I've got schemes for my life afterwards, mind you. Well, all the same, if this wasn't the end of it, I'd rather die."
> "I'm going to die." The echo came at that moment from Paradis' neighbor, who no doubt had examined his wound. "I'm sorry on account of my children."
> "It's on account of my children that I'm NOT sorry," came a murmur from somewhere else. "I'm dying, so I know what I'm saying, and I say to myself, 'THEY'LL have peace.'"

And they all conclude that it is they, themselves, who must see to it that war shall no more be glorified, no more made a matter of gain, or display, or even heroism. It is too dreadful, too suicidal. It must end.

HOOVER'S MESSAGE TO WHEAT GROWERS.

Food Administrator Hoover appears to have set Oklahoma to thinking along a new line when he accepted the invitation of the State Council of Defense to send a personal statement by a representative to a meeting called by that body. Oklahoma was much disgusted with the price fixed for wheat, and it was reported from various sections of that State that farmers were feeding wheat to stock. Then came Mr. Hoover's message. The farmers had expected he would defend the price, but here is what he said to them, through his personal representative, J. W. Shorthill:

"This price is not satisfactory to anyone. Consumers would like for it to be lower, producers would like for it to be higher."

That was a considerable shock to the objectors. But another of his crisp messages was:

"The price for this year's wheat crop was set by a committee of 12, six of whom were actual farmers or directly representative of farmers' interests."

Having cast these bombs into the ranks of the wheat producers, he remarked: "Congress gave the price-fixing commission power to set a price on wheat, meal, flour, beans and potatoes. This power should have been extended to other things also."

This was merely a hint of what would have happened had the Food Administrator been given full sway. Then he took up the other side and remarked: "The 1918 price is a minimum price. If peace comes and the wheat now tied up in India, Russia and Australia is released, farmers might have to take a much lower price than $2, were it not for the guarantee by Congress. The minimum price makes wheat the most profitable crop farmers can raise."

The effect of this personal message is said to be very noticeable. It has changed the attitude of some short-thinking editors and has awakened the wheat growers to the fact that there are two sides to the question.

"I 'LOW," says pap, them German boys
Jist shoot their guns to make a noise.
They stick the muzzles in the air
An' bang away, most anywhere;
An' when the 'tarnal shell comes down,
It hits a cow or hits a town.
It makes no dif'rence whar it falls,
Jist so the noise and smoke appalls—
The fellers on the other side,
An' makes 'em hunt their holes to hide;
Or skeers 'em so they'll fairly t'ar
The danged holes out a-gittin' thar.
I call to min' a bloody scrap
In '63 at Hoover's gap.
They sent us word to hold the hill
An' fight the Johnny Rebs until
Some reinforcements on their way
Could ramble up 'an save the day.
We held the pass, but at a cost—
I disremember what we lost—
An' though the odds w'ar five to one,
We blazed away—we couldn't run.
The Rebs fit well, but when the scrap
W'ar over thar at Hoover's Gap
We all agreed it wasn't luck
That won the fight, nor was it pluck;
But from the fac' that every one
Of us could shoot a squirrel gun.
Now listen, boy, when you're in France,
Pick out your man—don't shoot by chance.
Aim low, take time, an' figger well,
Then let 'er go an' give him hell.

A Missouri farmer, as the story runs, kicked because his dealer offered him for $90 the same kind of a buggy that his father bought 20 years ago for $50. The merchant, upon investigation, found that the father paid for his vehicle with 300 bushels of corn. Whereupon he offered to give his customer in exchange for 300 bushels of corn the following articles:

One $90 buggy.
One $75 wagon.
One $20 suit of clothes.
One $20 dress for his wife.
One $2 dress for his baby.
One $5 crib for the baby.
One $3 box of cigars.
$10 worth of sugar.
$100 worth of gasoline.
$15 worth of lubricating oil.

The farmer refused the offer, paid $90 for his buggy and departed satisfied.

AUTOMOBILE POEM.

Jack be limber,
Jack be spry!
Cars must run,
And men must die.

THE WAYS OF PROVIDENCE ARE INSCRUTABLE.

THOSE who read the Bible are familiar with the story of the old prophet and kingmaker, Samuel, and David, the shepherd king; how Samuel was commanded by the God of Israel to go to Bethlehem and find among the sons of Jesse a successor to King Saul, who had been rejected by the Lord. Samuel found David and brought him to Saul. The children of Israel were in dire straits at that time. Their liberty was menaced by the Germans of that day, the Philistines, and the insolent militarism of the latter, embodied in the giant Goliath of Goth, was wont to go forth every morning, panoplied in brass, to taunt the Israelites with their weakness and to challenge and defy their armies. And "When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed and greatly afraid." Goliath kept this up for 40 days. One fine morning, when Goliath was doing his usual stunt, throwing out his defi and blowing around about what he was going to do to the Israelites, David quietly picked up a pebble from the bank of the creek and knocked his block off with it. The rest was easy. The Philistines fled, and the children of Israel prevailed over them and so the children of Israel owed their deliverance first to Samuel, who took David away from his flock to become their deliverer.

The modern ending of the story is this: After Woodrow Wilson had knocked the block off the cocksure Kaiser, and the army and navy and warplanes of Uncle Sam and his allies had whipped Prussianism and Kaiserism clean off the map, the children of the New Era took a backward view of the road over which they had passed, that they might discern the agency through whom the Lord had accomplished their deliverance. As they gazed down the vista of history, a resplendent dome appeared, surrounded by a brilliant halo, and they all with one accord removed their chapeaux to the Thrice-Rejected, the modern Samuel, who had gone up to Baltimore at the Lord's behest, and chosen from among the stalwart sons of Jesse there assembled, the modern David, who was to lead the spiritual forces of the world to ultimate victory over the enemies of Democracy.

His wonders to perform."

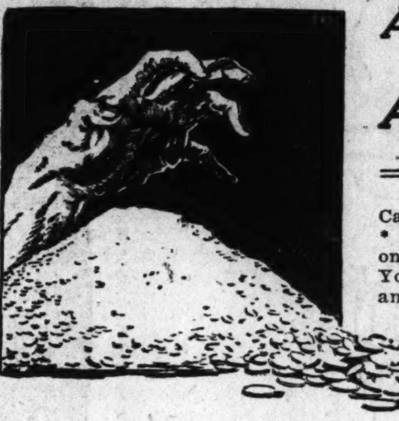
RANSOM!



A New Mystery Novel by the Author of "Loot,"

ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

CHAPTER X.

A HAND touching him on the shoulder made Waring experience the sensation that must always be lurking close at hand for the fugitive criminal—the sensation of being "wanted." He turned like a shot, his right hand clenched, to meet the grinning face of Billy Sinsabaugh.

Waring's hand relaxed and he forced an answering smile.

"Jove, Phil, you act as though you expected someone to knife you in the back! You started as though you were sadly in need of a drink. And right here is the place!"

Gripping Waring's hand within his own mighty fist, Sinsabaugh impelled his friend toward the portals of the Exploration Club, in front of which he had stopped Waring.

Together they entered the club.

"Glad I caught you," said Sinsabaugh. "And before I forget it, my thanks for piloting Mrs. Bill Wife home for me."

"Some day, if you continue neglecting her in the shameful fashion that has become your practice, Mr. William Sinsabaugh, I shall pilot her away from the Sinsabaugh mansion," said Waring.

"Well"—and Sinsabaugh eyed his drink knowingly—"if you ever elope with my wife, Phil Waring, I'll strike you off my list of acquaintances."

"Devilish unclubby of you, Billy! Do you see [illegible]?"

"Here's looking at you!"

They set their glasses down. Sinsabaugh looked the least bit embarrassed.

"Phil!"

"Fire away!"

"About that position I offered you awhile back. Mrs. Bill Wife told me this morning something of what you'd been telling her yesterday—very [illegible], I thought it, talking about another man [illegible] minutes after I'd been summoned for speeding from the railroad station to the house; but let that pass!" He frowned heavily at Waring.

"Mrs. Willy must be more careful or you'll be shooting me," laughed Waring.

"Uh-huh! Well, Phil, how about it?"

"Many thanks, old top, and will you let a beggar starve in his own good way?"

"Told her so! You're a stubborn jackass, Phil Waring. But you can't get out of it as easily as all that. Mrs. William Sinsabaugh has been giving much thought to you, and—well, I've telephoned your apartment three times, and Mike said you were out somewhere, and I didn't dare go home without you, so—come on."

"Eh? Sorry; it can't be done," said Waring.

"How chipper we are! Do you realize that Mrs. Bill told me to come home with you, or not at all?"

"Sorry." Waring smiled, but he began to itch with impatience. Billy Sinsabaugh was one of the very best, but—and Waring's eyes grew merry—Waring had a most important engagement—to seek himself and do murder. The merriment left his eyes. Somewhere in this city Claire was undergoing cross-examination at the hands of Bergson.

"Got to toddle along, Billy," he said. Not for a moment did he think of confiding in his friend. Sinsabaugh would listen, exclaim loudly, and—take matters into his own hands. That meant the police.

"Nothing doing! Listen, Phil! Madge insists that you come up to dinner. Didn't you promise her yesterday that you would?"

Waring had forgotten all about his promise.

"Yes, but something has turned up, Billy, and"——

"And you think we'll let you off, eh? I like that!"

"But I intended to telephone, Billy."

"You'd forgotten all about it," reproached Sinsabaugh. "And after Madge has dug up Miss Claire Sorel, niece of some eccentric old buck named Randall, worth a pot of money—er, what's wrong, old man?"

"What's her uncle's name?" demanded Waring harshly.

"Randall—Peter Randall. Expatriate. Lives in Paris, I believe. What about it?"

Waring controlled his features as best he could.

"You say that she's going to be at your house tonight? Sure?"

"Why not? I phoned Madge awhile ago saying that I hadn't been able to locate you, and she said that she'd found Miss Sorel at the Plutonia and that Miss Sorel was coming to dinner tonight and that I must locate you. You see, Phil, you've been so blamed shy and offish since the Carey Haig smash that we don't trust you. You're too frequent with your last minute regrets."

"Are you sure that Miss Sorel will be there? Has Madge heard from her today?"

"Ten minutes before I phoned—and that was half an hour ago—Madge had her on the phone at the Plutonia. Why, Phil Waring, you old hider-in the tall grass, have you seen Miss Sorel? Do you know her?"

"Why—er—maybe I do," said Waring stammeringly. "I—I'd better run home and dress and"——

"Not tonight. This is informal to the last inch. I made Madge promise it would be on my first night home with her in months. You come as you are, and you come now, d'ye hear?"

"I hear," said Waring.

They left the club and taxied directly to the Sinsabaugh mansion, Waring hardly hearing on the short ride, anything that Sinsabaugh said. For his mind, bewildered enough, had still more amazement to contend with. How could the niece of the Camp avenue house be going out to dine this evening, after the events of the past few hours? How was it possible? How could she have been at the Plutonia half or three-quarters of an hour ago? She had been at the Camp avenue house at that time. And there could not be two Peter Randalls living in Paris, each with a niece named Claire.

Upstairs, in Sinsabaugh's study, Waring asked permission to use the telephone. An explanation of his absence from the apartment was really due Mike, his Japanese. Also it would be just as well to give Mike a hint, necessarily vague, because of Sinsabaugh's presence, as to the use of discretion should any inquiries be made for Mr. Philip Waring.

But Central reported to him that she could not get his apartment; and Waring, after a final feeble protest as to his daytime garb, descended to the drawing room with Billy.

Madge Sinsabaugh and a young woman were awaiting them. Waring heard himself introduced; he felt himself bowing over the hand that the young woman who answered to the name of Claire Sorel extended toward him. He knew that he was uttering some commonplace, but what the words were he could not have told.

Keyed up, firmly of the belief that 10 minutes with Claire would solve the mystery, would free Conybear, would round up Bergson, would restore him his pilfered fortune, reaction was great. For the tall girl with the bloom of youth gone from her was not his Claire!

Mechanically he proceeded to the dining room. Then, he rallied himself. Mrs. Willy Sinsabaugh was nothing if not open. She threw the [illegible] at each other's heads with a pretense at disguising her matchmaking intentions. And big, blundering Sinsabaugh, who was so clever at business but such a puppet in the hands of his butterfly wife, yielded to Madge's desire. He began telling her of his trip to Chicago, and Waring eyed the girl across the table from him.

"You have been in New York some time," Miss Sorel?" he said.

"Not of recent years," she answered. "You see, I have been in a convent so many years in France."

More coincidence! The Claire that Waring knew had been brought up in a French convent.

"Indeed!" said Waring.

"Yes. Had it not been for my great good fortune in meeting Mrs. Sinsabaugh, some months ago, in Paris, I should not have an acquaintance in this country."

"No relatives?"

"Distant. And not near New York."

Mrs. Willy, one ear cocked to overhear what they might say, entered into the conversation here.

"Yes, Phil. I met this dear girl at the Russian embassy, at a tea, and she told me that she wanted to visit America—small wonder, her birthplace!—but her uncle was definitely tied to Paris, and I told her to come over and that I would find friends for her. It shows how highly I regard you, Philip Waring, that you are the first I find for her."

The color receded from Miss Sorel's face. Waring had come to the conclusion that her rather high coloring was not natural. Somehow, he sensed that this girl was not exactly the sort of girl that Mrs. Willy would ordinarily take up. Subconsciously he had come to this conclusion, influenced perhaps by the idea that she rouged quite boldly.

But he was wrong; she did not rouge. Her face was now as pale as wax. Indeed, she seemed startled and, oddly enough, a trifle younger than he had mentally put her down as being. It was as though her face, schooled to certain expressions, took on a hardness that, when she gave way to a natural emotion, vanished. At least, if it did not entirely vanish, the rigidity of expression that had made her seem—well, 30—disappeared. She didn't look over 25 now, as she leaned across the table.

"I—I—I'm sorry, but—when we were introduced—I'm stupid at such things. Your name is Philip Waring?"

"Why, yes," said Waring, surprised.

"That's funny," exclaimed Sinsabaugh. "When I told Waring your name, he acted as though I'd struck him. And now you seemed all fussed up because Phil's name is what it is."

"Yes. I thought he was named Deering," said the girl.

Mrs. Willy looked from one to the other of them. "Well, what does it all mean?" she asked wonderingly.

But Miss Sorrel had regained her self-control. "Why, did I make a display of myself? It's nothing but—I have a very distant cousin, an Englishman, by that name, and—I was rather startled."

The hard expression had returned to her features. In her eyes was a contemplative look; Waring had seen the same cruel contemplation in the eyes of a cat. And the girl was lying. Her explanation was so thoroughly lame that he wondered that Sinsabaugh and his wife didn't see it. But they didn't. They accepted her statement as a fact.

"Well, Phil, I know that you haven't any cousin whose name is like Miss Sorel's. Why the amazement on your part awhile ago?" Sinsabaugh felt no strain, but there was a silence and he filled it in.

"You imagine things, Billy," said Waring easily. "I wasn't amazed a bit; I was merely delighted." He smiled at Miss Sorel. "You haven't been over very long, then?"

"On the Candric, last week, I was to have sailed with Mrs. Sinsabaugh, but I had some things to attend to in London for my uncle; so we thought, Mrs. Sinsabaugh and I, that perhaps it would be as well for me to sail from there. Besides, I really wanted to look around New York all by myself for a few days."

"To become acquainted with the city, of course," said Waring.

Then Mrs. Billy came to his rescue with a question as to whether or not Miss Sorel had seen something or other. Waring didn't know what it was; he didn't care. He only knew that that sixth sense that had saved him from a wild beast in Uganda, that had protected him from the knife of Carvajal yesterday, was working in his behalf again. The girl was compelled to look at Mrs. Sinsabaugh. Waring could study her. Yes, she was hard; she was no girl fresh from a convent. And there was menace about her. Waring felt his muscles grow taut. He mentally shrugged; it was a coincidence, this girl's name and her uncle's name. And there was plenty of real danger awaiting him without his borrowing imaginary troubles. He would get Mrs. Willy alone in the drawing room later on and ask some questions.

But having come to this healthy conclusion, Waring had no opportunity to act upon it. The butler came to Sinsabaugh's side and said something softly.

"Absurd!" exclaimed Sinsabaugh. "There's some mistake."

"They are very insistent, sir," said the butler.

"What you been doing, Phil?" demanded Sinsabaugh. 'Candace, here, says that two policemen, one in uniform, are in the front hall, and want to see you."

Waring was on his feet in a moment. What the police wanted with him he could not know for certain, but it undoubtedly had to do with the abduction of Burton Conybear; the abduction was known; Waring had been seen with the financier. And once in the hands of the police, Waring could be of no more aid to Claire, or to Conybear, for that matter, he was certain.

"This—this is an odd affair, Billy," he said. "Come with me, will you?"

"Surely!" Sinsabaugh was on his feet.

So, too, was Miss Sorel, staring wildly at Waring. But he had no time to ponder on the meaning in her expression. He whispered swiftly to Sinsabaugh:

"Send Candace out to tell them that I'm not here; he is mistaken. Clear away my place at the table; say I haven't been here"——

"What's wrong, Phil?" demanded Sinsabaugh.

"Can't tell you now. Got to get away. Can you let me out the side door—quickly?"

"Wait here," snapped Sinsabaugh to the butler. The big man had not regained his lost fortune several times over by hemming and hawing. He was a big blunderer socially, but he was a steel trap when it came to action.

He led Waring to the side door. "Hustle," he said. "And—Phil, can't you give me a hint?"

"Not now, old man." Waring peered down the side street. There were no policemen in sight.

"Need anything? Money—anything?"

"Not a thing. I'll phone or something, and—Billy, if you hear anything, it's"——

"Go on, man; if it should happen to be the truth, it'll be all right, because you did it. But I've a pull in this town, Phil, and"——

He didn't finish the sentence; Waring was gone.

CHAPTER XI.

BERGSON stared at Claire. "It is very odd to me, Mademoiselle," he said. "Cantrell and Durney have NOT been drinking."

"Of course we haven't," snapped Durney. "That's the trouble with ringing in dolls on a deal like this. They're so stuck on themselves that if they're left alone with a man they think they're going to be made love to, and if they ain't, they think the man's crazy or drunk or somethng."

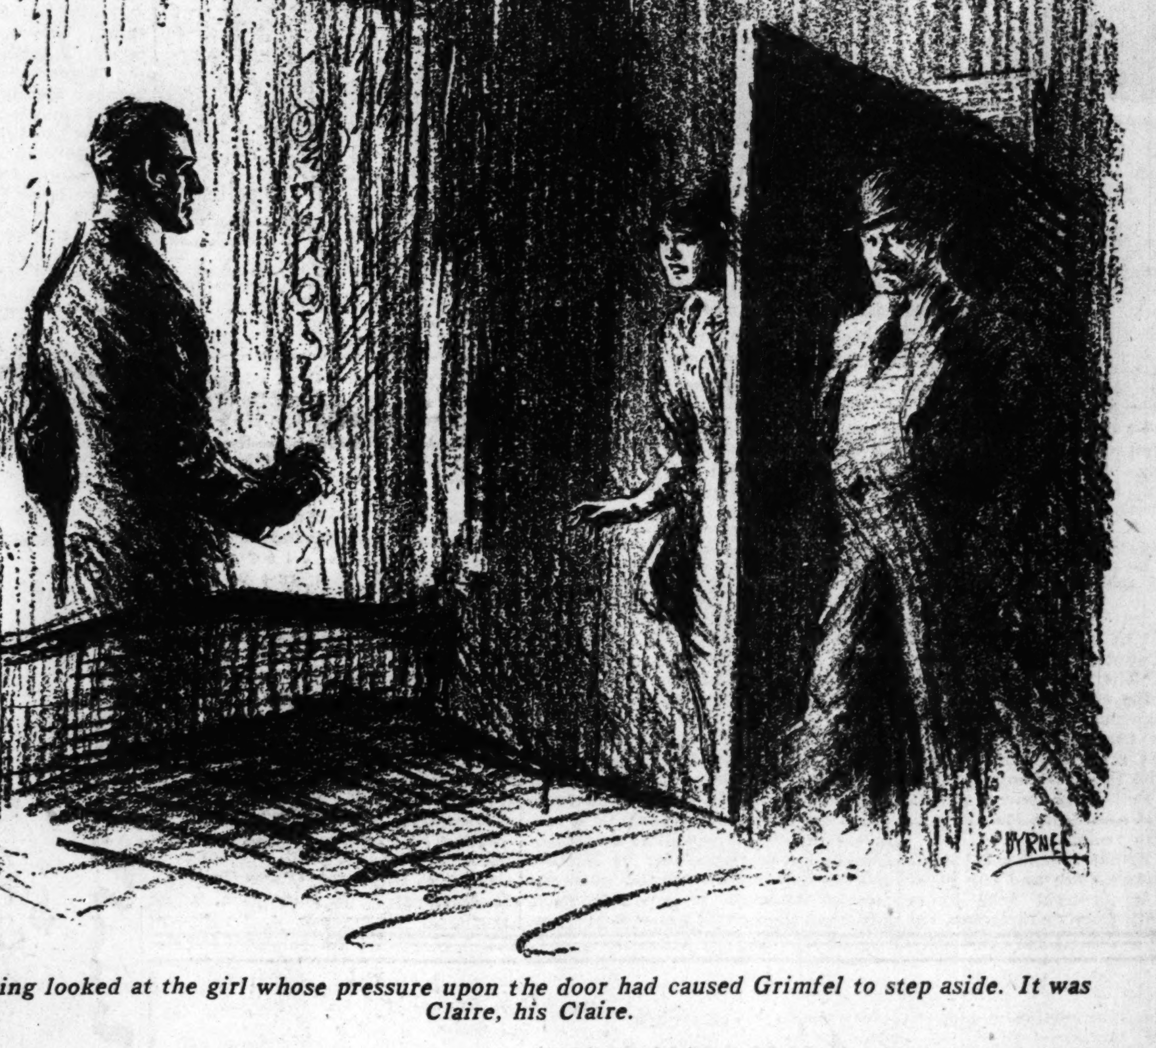
Bergson ignored the words. He studied the girl's face. She colored faintly at the coarseness of Durney, and her lips tightened.

"You are not, Mademoiselle, of the steel that your uncle had led me to expect. You flinch; you trust your own judgment."

So far, Bergson had held himself in. But he could control himself no longer.

"Go upstairs, Mademoiselle. At once! Get from my sight, or"——

He mastered himself as the girl, without a word, left the room. He leaned back in his chair.



Waring looked at the girl whose pressure upon the door had caused Grimfel to step aside. It was Claire, his Claire.

"The papers," he said harshly.

As though a King had expressed the command, one of his satellites handed him a bundle of evening newspapers. Only Cantrell, who, with Durney, seemed a cut below the men who had come with Bergson from the Hancock Square house, dared break the silence that followed.

"It's my idea," he said heavily, "that we ought not to delay at all. We got Conybear and that bunch, and with this Waring guy around loose, the longer we delay the more dangerous it gets for us."

"You think so?" queried Bergson softly.

"Why, sure," said Cantrell. "He'll go to the police, most likely, and"——

"You were engaged by me, I believe, because you were a thoroughly unscrupulous scoundrel," said Bergson, "not to give advice."

"Eh?" Cantrell's face shrieked amazement. "Say, look here, Mr. Bergson, no guy can talk to me this way without"——

"Well, without what?" Bergson's mouth quivered in a smile.

Cantrell's hands involuntarily rose as though to protect himself. He cast a glance about him; he looked pleadingly at his companion of the Camp avenue house, Durney. But that worthy's face was rigid.

"Say, I didn't mean to get gay, Chief," said Cantrell whiningly.

There had been no threat uttered; but death had spread its wings over Cantrell as surely as though Bergson had held a revolver to the man's head. And Cantrell knew it. Beads of sweat stood on his forehead.

"No?" said Bergson. "We will hear no more from you, my friend Cantrell. We will hear no advice, no objections. You will obey orders and think not at all, and talk not at all. Otherwise, my Cantrell, there will be no James Cantrell any more. Am I understood?"

He was still smiling when he opened a newspaper; but the man whom he addressed shivered involuntarily. Bergson's smile held something icy in it, something incredibly dreadful. Cantrell would not offend in this fashion again.

A ring from the bell of the wall telephone made Bergson drop the newspaper into which he had dipped so casually, so intent, apparently, on the news, and so oblivious of all that had happened, that might be happening. At a nod from his chief, the watchful-eyed Ranney answered the call.

"Dora," he said to Bergson.

The latter's sunken eyes gleamed with a real pleasure. He walked over and took the receiver.

"Dora? * * * Yes. We have given up Camp and Hancock. * * * Danger? Well, my Dora, one expects that. * * * You telephoned both places? and there was no answer? The police, then, have not yet discovered those places. * * * To dine with the Sinsabaughs? He is well worth knowing—and cultivating, my Dora. * * * What has happened? I will see you tonight, later. There is no need for you to fret your pretty head. * * * Disarranged? Hardly that, my Dora. One Philip Waring has entered our plans, and we must find out why. It will not take long. And so—dine with the Sinsabaughs, my dear."

He rang off abruptly. One felt that as he treated the men who followed him, so he treated this woman at the other end of the telephone; even though he spoke lightly, affectionately, his words were commands.

He resumed his chair and took up his newspaper again. Again the room was deathly still, save for the rustling of the news sheets as Bergson's sunken eyes roamed their columns. His nostrils suddenly twitched. He reread an item.

He stared blankly at Ranney. His nostrils quivered faintly. He seemed like a hound that has scented something it cannot identify, but that instinct tells it is dangerous. He dropped the paper to the floor and slumped low in his chair; his lips moved slightly, as though to himself he recited certain facts. But if that recital brought him to any sound conclusion, it could not be read in his expression.

The door bell rang; at a nod from Bergson, Ranney answered. He was gone but a moment, and when he returned he was preceded by Henderson, the secretary-valet of Burton Conybear.

"Well, you got him?" cried Henderson.

Bergson looked at the newcomer malignantly. "Got whom?" he rasped.

"Waring!"

"Got him! No—you idiot!"

For a moment it seemed that the word was a fighting one. Henderson's impassive countenance flushed; but the flush passed immediately; immobile of feature, he sank into a chair and lighted a cigar.

"Why didn't you tell me in the first place that the police knew of our plans?" demanded Bergson.

"I thought I'd thrown dust in their eyes," answered Henderson.

"You thought"——Sheer disgust, apparently, stopped Bergson. "Had I known that the men who were to surround me were such"——

He stopped again, for the telephone was ringing. He waved Ranney aside and answered it himself.

"Bostwick? Well? * * * A Jap servant? Yes. * * * Do? Stay there, you fool, until Waring comes!"

He rang off and returned to his seat. "This Waring—Philip Waring, you said his name was; Bostwick telephones me from near his apartment. He and Velie went there. They looked him up in the telephone book. There were two or three Philip Warings, but they think they located the right man. I know they did. He was not at home. His Japanese servant admitted them. They questioned him. Waring had not been home all night. The servant grew suspicious; he will not be suspicious again—for some time to come. They are there now. If Waring enters"——

"You say you know they have the right Waring? How do you know?"

There was a man named Carey Haig," said Bergson. "When he—died, there was newspaper talk. The name of one Philip Waring was mentioned, I believe. Waring suffered by Haig's—misfortune. He lived on Twenty-eighth street, I believe. I did not send word to Bostwick directly, or I should have told him that address. As it is—he lost no time."

Henderson's lips pursed. "The Waring that lost by Haig's death? And he came from 17 Hancock place? Then he has been following you."

"Absurd! How could he know? He told you that he came from 17 Hancock place. * * * I do not understand it. * * * You, Henderson—what did you say to him?"

"I've told you that over the phone already," said Henderson. "I told him that he was not to notify the police, but to go at once to Camp avenue. Then I phoned you; I phoned Camp avenue; the girl answered and said that she would prepare Cantrell and Durney for Waring's coming. Then I left Portsmouth. Near Camp avenue, I took the precaution of phoning No. 33 again. There was no answer, and I feared things had gone wrong. So I came here."

"And things have gone wrong," cried Bergson. "Waring went to Camp avenue; Carvajal followed him; Carvajal had seen him near our Hancock place house and was suspicious of him. But Waring did not enter; perhaps he knew that Carvajal followed him. He eluded Carvajal, and Carvajal entered the house to make inquiries. Claire revealed to him that it was a house of the Society"——

"But if Waring came near the house, why weren't Durney and Cantrell"——

"Claire did not tell them; she claimed they had been drinking and that she was afraid of them.'

Henderson shot glances of rage at the luckless Cantrell and Durney.

"But Claire lied," said Bergson. "She—she—her uncle—he vouched for her—I can trust no one!"

"You seem to trust this Carvajal, all right," said Henderson. "Who is he? What is he? Where is he?"

"Where? He is in search for Waring. But he doesn't know the city, and so is slower to reach Waring's address than Bostwick."

"Who is he?"

"Randall sent him from Paris. He is French. He came on the Montania. He is of the right stamp. I sent him to the bank with Conybear. He did well. And he is not the sort who hesitates. If he can get near Waring"——

Once again the telephone rang, and once again the nervous Bergson answered it himself.

"Dora? What?" His voice rose in a scream. "Do? Do? Do anything! What do I care"——He rang off.

"Well?" Henderson's voice was cold.

Bergson threw himself into his chair.

"There is no one—no one—with brains—or daring. Dora is at the Sinsabaughs—the William Sinsabaughs—dining. Waring has been there."

"Waring!" Henderson gasped.

"And the police came there; they want him—on the charge of murder!"

It was Henderson's turn to lose his calm. "What do you mean?"

"What I have said. There is in this evening's paper an account of the killing of a foreigner—a Frenchman—by an automobile in front of Waring's apartment. It must have something to do with that. * * * But he was there—in the same room with Dora—and she let him go!"

"Well, if he's dodging the police—did he make a getaway?"

"Yes, but"——

"Then we haven't to worry about him this moment," declared Henderson. "We've enough to do worrying about Conybear and"——

"Which means this Waring," cried Bergson. "For if we knew that Conybear was our prisoner—and he told you that he came from Hancock Place. That sounds as though he had been in the house."

"How could he? The police are after him, and he's dodging them, so he won't"——

"Yet to know at all about me, he must have been studying, searching, ever since Carey Haig"——

His voice died away, as his eyes fascinatedly stared at the newspaper before him. When he spoke again it was chokily.

"Listen, my friends, to this headline: 'Dubuque importer would teach New Yorkers style. Jacques Pelletier returns from Paris and stops on way to Iowa to tell New Yorkers how to dress."

"Well?" prompted Henderson.

"Raoul Carvajal," said Bergson softly, "who brought me a letter from Peter Randall—Raoul Carvajal told me that he crossed the Atlantic on the Montania under the name of Jacques Pelletier. And this newspaper says that Jacques Pelletier arrived from his annual trip abroad on the Montania!"

Henderson wet his lips. "You mean"——

"Could two men of the same name and address have crossed on the same boat? Does it sound possible? And a Frenchman is killed in front of Waring's apartment. And Carvajal arrives at Hancock Place. And from Hancock Place Philip Waring goes to the telephone to inform you, Henderson, that Conybear is a captive."

"But this Carvajal helped get money from the bank; he was one of Conybear's guards," gasped Henderson.

Bergson's hands went above his head. "Unreasonable, yes, but—what would you? In what other way"——

"You mean that your Carvajal is Waring?'

"Ranney, go at once to the Plutonia. It was there that Carvajal said that he would register. I ordered him there. Take Cantrell and Durney. Go—at once."

Cantrell and Durney hesitated, but only for a moment. Henderson said nothing until after they had departed. Then he spoke.

"But if—if Carvajal and Waring are the same—will he go to the Plutonia? Will he be such a fool as to"——

"My friend"—And Bergson was frankly in the saddle of command again—"he has been fool enough to pit himself against the society once; he was fool enough to pretend to become one of us; he was fool enough to telephone you and give his name. He will be fool enough to go to the Plutonia."

"And then?"

Bergson shrugged his shoulders. "It was you, Henderson, who had me engage Cantrell and Durney. Murder was their trade, you said. And Ranney does not fear the sight of blood. * * * One cannot be a fool too often, my Henderson, without paying the price of foolishness."

CHAPTER XII.

THE Third avenue elevated deposited Waring at Fourteenth street. He walked slowly westward to the subway. He had not been seen leaving the side door of the Sinsabaugh mansion; that much he knew. So, for a few moments, there had been time to think, to plan.

In common with most other people, Waring, while he openly jeered at the intelligence of the police, had really an absurd respect for its powers. Those powers had just been manifested; he had been traced to the Sinsabaugh home. If he telephoned from his own apartment, it was within the bounds of reason that a detective would greet him as he stepped from the telephone booth.

He must go to the Plutonia and register as Jacques Pelletier, and await some word from Bergson that would bring him to Claire, once more—his Claire, not the Claire Sorel whom he had just unceremoniously left, and who was——He shook his head; mystery piled upon mystery.

At Fifty-ninth street he turned east. A little below that crosstown artery, on Fifth avenue, stands the Plutonia. Waring entered its doors with some slight trepidation. He registered as "Jacques Pelletier, Dubuque, Iowa."

As he followed the bellboy from the desk, a man bowed to him. Short, thick-set, sullen-mouthed and surly-eyed—since Carey Haig had died, Waring had seen many men like this in the offices of the detective agency he had employed. "Plain-clothes man" written all over the man. The house detective, probably—a police officer graduated into private work.

In his room Waring considered this new complication. Tomorrow morning even the newspapers, doubtless, would know that Philip Waring was wanted by the police.

If he left here he would escape any unpleasant results of the recognition by the house detectives. But also he would cut himself off from communication with Bergson.

He stood by the window, peering down the avenue. He wondered if any of the limousines that passed held persons as beset by circumstances as he. He turned back from the window just as the door of his room opened. Through it stepped the stocky man who had bowed to him downstairs.

He looked at Waring with a knowing leer. He closed the door carefully behind him.

"Well, what's the little game, Mr. Waring?" he asked.

"My name is Pelletier," said Waring. "Will you kindly explain just what this"——

"Easy's the word, sir," grinned the man. "This is a high-class hotel, Mr. Waring, and the funny stuff don't get a laugh here. What's the answer? Why the Pelletier and the Dubuque stuff? Why, say, you got a fine chance passing for a French hick from I-o-way, now, ain't you? Dolled up like you never got off the Big Alley in your life, too? Rather coarse work, I call it."

"So? Will you leave quietly or must I ring for someone to throw you out?" demanded Waring.

He moved toward the telephone as he spoke. But the thick-set man laughed unpleasantly.

"Never mind the bluff," he counseled. "I'm the house detective here, Mr. Waring. If anybody's thrown out, it'll be you. But I ain't a crab. I don't plan to spoil a gentleman's nice time, supposin' he's not a piker. Where's the lady?"

"Lady?" But Waring's indignant surprise served only to amuse the house detective.

"You heard me. 'Lady,' I said. I'll say it again if you want me to. Do you? Course not. Well, then, suppose you write me a little check, Mr. Waring. Oh, no, I'm not a bit afraid you'll stop it, or do anything unpleasant. And I think I'm quite generous not demanding cash. But, of course, on this kind of a little party, a gent needs all the spot cash he's got with him. A check for a hundred, Mr. Waring. What say?"

"Would you mind telling me just exactly what your little game is?" he asked quietly.

"That's reasonable enough," said the intruder. "Well, listen: here's me, Dan Grimfel, house detective of the Plutonia. But I used to be with the Greenhams, and it happens that I was with them not so very long ago—recent enough for me to remember that the Greenhams was doing a little job for Mr. Philip Waring. Never noticed the stenographer in the outer reception room of the Greenhams, did you, Mr. Waring? Nice little doll, and you might've noticed her, at that. No? Well, she noticed you, all right. Pointed you out to me one day and mentioned your name. And while I ain't a camera eye, maybe, still, I don't forget a Mr. Philip Waring, the Mr. Philip Waring, when I see him, even if I ain't assigned to the job he's given my boss."

He paused a moment. "Simple enough, ain't it?" he asked.

"Why, I think I'm beginning to see," said Waring.

"Sure you do. Soon's I spotted you, I recognized you. And I nodded to you just because it don't do me no harm to have a big bowin' list. Likewise the office force downstairs gives me credit for the good memory. Well, I don't make many mistakes, and when I looked at the name you'd written in the register, I knew I hadn't gone wrong this time."

"Yes? Is Jacques Pelletier so much like Philip Waring?" said Waring, a jeer in his voice.

"You ain't read the afternoon papers very close, have you? No? Well, I have. And there's an interview in one of them with a Mr. Jacques Pelletier of Dubuque, Io., and he ain't stopping at this hotel, either. Well, mistakes happen, you know; accidents are common. But I called up Pelletier's hotel and got him on the wire. Soon's I got him and he said who he was, I rang off. I'd found out enough. There wasn't two Pelletiers from Dubuque. What's the joke?" he demanded.

Waring was smiling somewhat ruefully. He wished he could solve the mystery of persons similarly named as quickly as Grimfel had solved this affair.

"Nothing; you interest me; go on," said Waring.

"Go on? Why, there ain't much more to say. You'd picked a phony name; why you picked that particular name I don't know and don't care. Live and let live' is my motto—if I get something to live on. You was Waring, all right, and men don't register under false names unless they got something to hide. Comin' here without baggage and all—well, something to hide usually wears petticoats. Do I get the check?"

Waring had done, in the past day or two, things that, a week ago, he would have thought impossible; he had in various ways helped to outrage the law; but submitting to blackmail was a cut beyond his endurance. He held himself in hand, however.

"Not admitting for a moment that you are right in this matter of identity—why the lady part of it?" he asked.

Grimfel winked wisely. "Well, when a man that I know ain't a 'gun' registers under a phony name without baggage, even if he does pay in advance"——

"And if I give you my solemn word of honor that a lady is not concerned in the matter?"

"Sure; I'll believe you; but I'll take your check just the same and—word of honor!" He held out his hand to Waring. "The check, please," he said.

And then——

Waring looked at the girl whose pressure upon the door had caused Grimfel to step aside. Pale, breathing heavily, she leaned against the wall. It was Claire, his Claire. She did not speak—merely looked from Waring to the house detective. The latter colored faintly under her glance, but still held out his hand.

PURLOINED FROM THE TRENCHES

Wedding of Miss Katherine Lemoine Guy and Henry Fenimore Cooper II at Cooperstown, N. Y., Yesterday, One of the Notable Nuptial Ceremonies of the Season—Other Weddings of the Day Were Those of Miss Helen Elizabeth McCombs and Edwin Fowler Bright and Miss Virginia MacQuary and Hubert Brown Sturtevant.

THE wedding of Miss Katherine Lemoine Guy and Henry Fenimore Cooper II, which took place at Cooperstown, N. Y., yesterday, was one of the notable weddings of the season, both here and in the East. The ceremony was solemnized in the Presbyterian Church at Cooperstown at high noon, before a large and fashionable audience, and was followed by a reception and wedding breakfast at "Leatherstocking Farm," the summer home of the bride's father, William Evans Guy. Miss Evelyn Guy was maid of honor for her sister and the bridemaids were Misses Anne Lionberger, Georgette Madill, Edith Whittemore and Nancy Scott, all of St. Louis. The best man was James Fenimore Cooper Jr., brother of the bridegroom, and the groomsmen were Edwin Guy, the bride's brother, who is on leave from the "mosquito fleet' at Newport; Lieuts. Knight Wooley and Kenneth O'Brien, who were the only two classmates of the bridegroom who could obtain leave from the various training camps at this time, and Linn and Paul Cooper, twin brothers of the bridegroom.

The bridal gown was of white satin, entirely veiled in chiffon. The square-cut neck in front was edged with narrow lace. The sleeves of chiffon were tight at the wrist and embroidered in pearls. A double panel of wide lace fell from the neck to the hem of the short, narrow skirt, and the long court train of satin, lined with chiffon, which fell from the shoulders, had a scarf of rare old lace set in. All of the lace used on the wedding gown was an heirloom, having been in the bride's family for generations. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

The bridemaids' and maid of honor's gowns were made alike. They were of peach colored chiffon with a long sash tying in large loops at one side and lined with brown. The maids wore large hats of brown velvet lined with the peach colored chiffon, and carried chrysanthemums in the brownish autumn shades. Miss Guy's gifts to her maids were gold pins set with sapphires and the bridegroom's gifts to his attendants were gold and sapphire cuff links. He presented his bride with a magnificent diamond bracelet.

Among the St. Louisans who were expected to the wedding were Mrs. F. Churchill Whittemore, Miss Mary Lionberger, Mrs. Louis Chauvenet and her son, Louis Chauvenet, if his boat should land in time from France; Mrs. George Scott, Mrs. Albert T. Perkins and her daughter, Miss Josephine Perkins; Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Thompson of Princeton, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lemoine of Philadelphia, also an uncle and aunt of the bride, who formerly resided in St. Louis.

Mrs. Cooper as Miss Katherine Guy was one of the most popular girls in St. Louis society. She is the eldest daughter of William Evans Guy and a grand-daughter of the late Dr. Lemoine, who was one of the prominent and best known men of his day.

Lieut. Cooper is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fenimore Cooper of Albany and Coopertown, N. Y., and a great-grandson of the famous novelist. He was recently commissioned a Lieutenant at Madison Barracks in the Field Artillery. He was graduated from Yale, winnning the "Y" and other athletic honors. After a motor trip of several days, Lieut. and Mrs. Cooper will go to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., where he is stationed.

Another wedding of yesterday was that of Miss Helen Elizabeth McCombs and Edwin Fowler Bright, which took place at Jackson, Mo. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock at the new McKendree Methodist Church, the Rev. Marvin P. Haw of St. Louis officiating. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruddell M. McCombs, for which 500 invitations were issued. Miss Jeannette Huttig was the maid of honor and Misses Harriette Kraus and Frances Helmkamp were bridemaids. Tom Stark of Louisiana, Mo., was best man and Robert Wilcox and Ernest Kraus were groomsmen.

A large number of St. Louis guests attended, many going on a special car which left here Friday night and returned this morning. Mrs. Bright formerly resided in St. Louis with her parents and was graduated from Mary Institute last June. She was the first member of her class to make known her engagement. Bright is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edwin Bright of 5962 Cates avenue and a sister of Mrs. Newman Samuel of Cincinnati, who was at the wedding. After a honeymoon Mr. Bright and his bride will reside at 5932 Cates avenue.

Still another wedding of yesterday was that of Miss Virginia MacQuary and Hubert Brown Sturtevant, which took place quietly at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Howard MacQuary of 5771 McPherson avenue, at 11 o'clock. The Rev. J. W. Day officiated. Only the two immediate families were present. Miss MacQuary was graduated at Lenox Hall. Mr. Sturtevant is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is now residing in Minneapolis, where he will take his bride after the honeymoon.

SINCE music is to play such an important part this winter in the social world—that is, what is left of it, with no buds, no debutante balls on the calendar, and but few dancing men, every one is looking forward to the two performances of Grand Opera which are to take place on Nov. 2 and 3. Melba, Galli-Curci and Muratore, three of the most distinguished stars in the musical world are to be heard at that time. No doubt society will turn out en masse, especially as Galli-Curci never has been heard in St. Louis and was the sensation of the season in New York and Chicago last winter.

Among the box holders for the performances are Messrs. and Mesdames John T. Davis Jr., Benpamin Gratz, Edward A. Faust, John T. Milliken, Henry W. Peters, Edward J. Walsh, Lon Hocker, Daniel G. Taylor, Charles Nagel, Messrs. Henry Wrape and Louis Werner.

Music will be a feature of the Kirkwood Country Club affairs this winter also. The past week was the formal opening of season at the club with a bridge party. The club has engaged the Cherniavski Trio for a concert next month. In January, Constance and Henri Gideon will give an English Folk song concert and in March, David and Clara Mannes will give a sonata recital.

With the Friday Morning Musicale at the Woman's Club and the other soloists to be brought here under Miss Elizabeth Cueny's direction, the Red Cross Benefit Recital to be given by Marie Caslova and Percy Grainger on Oct. 16, and our own Symphony concerts with their many attractions, St. Louis society will be offered much to chose from in a musical way.

Ladies' Hats Reshaped, Dyed and Cleaned like new. J. J. Ryan, 617 Lucas av.—ADV.

SOMETHING new in the way of clubs has recently been launched in St. Louis and an unsual amount of interest is being manifested in the movement. A branch of the American University Society has been formed and held its first meeting on Friday at the Wednesday Club. When most of the time of women is so taken up with war service work, it is well to have some diversion in the form of a lecture, educational as well as entertaining, and it is the object of this organization, formed by the universities of America, to give women a practical version of present-day topics. Aside from the educational value of this and the meetings which take place every month, the social side consists of announced call meetings whenever any celebrities are in the city. They will be entertained by the society and perhaps during the course of receptions will give short talks. Mrs. Theodore Benoist, who is so active in all sorts of war work, can still find time to be the president of the St. Louis branch. Mmes. Philip North Moore, Thomas H. West, J. L. D. Morrison, B. F. Bush, E. A. Faust, W. K. Stanard, Arthur Lambert and Miss Agnes Taussig are vice presidents. The patronesses are:

Mmes. Benoist Carton, Francis Fowler Jr., David R. Francis Jr., Alfred Clifford, Arthur H. Gale, L. T. Cook, George D. Barnard, William A. Stickney, William A. McCandless, Truman P. Riddle, Amadee Reyburn, J. Porter Tirrell, W. Frank Carter, D. G. Taylor, Oliver Garrison, R. D. Lewis, E. K. Ludington, S. E. Davis, J. W. Byrnes, J. W. Bemis, G. W. Cale Jr., Scott Porter, Edward L. Preetorius, H. G. Pettingill, Eugene Nims, Sam Fordyce and Miss Jane Glover, and those who have consented to act as ushers are Misses Mary Lambert, Florence Lucas, Jane Shapleigh, Daisy Gore, Paula Forster, Eleanor Cozzens, Fanny Todd Clark, Grace White, Sunie Smith, Charlotte Reyburn and Mrs. Lu Gar Finlay.

On Friday, Sergt Guy Empey, author of "Over the Top," gave an interesting lecture before the society on "Trench Warfare." At the November meeting Witter Bynner, poet and dramatist, will be the speaker, and for the January meeting Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust have offered their home for the occasion, when George Leland Hunter of New York, who is an authority on tapestries, will be the speaker. His subject will be "The Story Interest of Tapestries" and he will use some of Mr. and Mrs. Faust's valuable tapestries as illustrations. Altogether this is a splendid organization and one that will mean much in the intellectual as well as social life of St. Louis.

Mrs. John Hurck will represent the hostesses of the day by a talk on the "Confederate Unit;" Mrs. Frank P. Hays, the "Missouri Division of Service Registration;" Mrs. William A. Instantly! Corns Stop Hurting! Corns Loosen and Lift Out

No Pain! Few drops loosen corns and calluses so they fall of—Try it sure!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn so loose that you lift it out, root and all with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical. It is a scientific compound made from ether.—ADV.

WOMAN TELLS OF HER TIMES MOVIE CONTRACT

Testifies in Trial of $500 Suit That She Was to Be Paid $25 a Day.

Two interpretations of the St. Louis Times' agreement to pay young women winners in its subscription and motion picture contest $25 a day for taking part in the production of the "Capture of Camp Jackson," which "faded out" before its completion in a mass of legal suits for wages, were given Friday at the trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Irene Eberle, of 2024 Penrose street, one of the actresses, in the court of Justice of the Peace W. D. Moore.

One was that of Mrs. Eberle, who testified she understood she was to get $25 for every day she worked and that she was to work a month. Although she worked only five days, she filed suit for $500, or 20 days' pay.

The other interpretation was that of George S. Pollard, secretary of the German-American Press Association, publishers of The Times, who testified that The Times considered it had fulfilled its contract with the girls when it paid them for one day's rehearsal for the Camp Jackson picture, which thereafter was abandoned, although it used the girls in subsequent rehearsals for another picture.

The Other Version.

His version was that the only compensation the girls were to have for taking part in the second picture was "the experience and the satisfaction of appearing on the screen."

Mrs. Eberle, on the witness stand, related how a year ago she entered The Times' motion picture subscription contest, the winner of which in each of 18 St. Louis districts, was to take part in "one or more motion picture plays to be produced by the Times and to be paid $25 a day for time actually spent in rehearsing.

According to Mrs. Eberle, two rehearsals were held and then the picture was abandoned and it was announced by the Times that another picture would be made and that the promise of pay was still good. She said she worked three full days in the second picture. She told of receiving $25, which she said was for the rehearsal held on Easter Sunday.

Pollard took the stand in defense. He identified a check for $25 he had given Mrs. Eberle and declared that he had told her the only compensation she or the other girls would receive for the second picture would be experience and their appearance in the finished pictures.

The Times' Secretary on Stand.

On cross-examination he was asked by Earl Pirkey, attorney for Mrs. Eberle, if he expected by paying for one day's work on the original picture and then abandoning it, to obtain the services of the girls free for the second picture.

"Why not?" Pollard replied. He added that he considered his contract with the girls had been fulfilled.

The only other witness was Joseph Ignatius Finnigan, writer of the Camp Jackson scenario and original director of the picture, who gave up the position of director at the time the Camp Jackson picture was abandoned. His only testimony was in relation to rehearsals previous to that. On cross-examination he testified that he was now engaged in literary pursuits with an office at his home, 2551 North Market street.

Justice Moore took the case under advisement and said he would announce his decision tomorrow or Tuesday.

DR. WASHINGTON GLADDEN WRITES NEW NATIONAL HYMN

"America and Her Allies" Is Title of Composition Sung to Tune "Materna."

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Demand has arisen for copies of a new national hymn written by the Rev. Washington Gladden, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this city, and sung for the first time Sunday evening at a patriotic service. Dr. Gladden preached on "Education After the War. The tune "Materna," to which the hymn is sung, is better known as "O Mother Dear, Jerusalem." The hymn follows:

"AMERICA AND HER ALLIES"
By Washington Gladden
TUNE: MATERNA

O Land of lands, my Fatherland, the beautiful, the free,
All lands and shores to freedom dear are ever dear to thee;
All sons of Freedom hail thy name, and wait thy word of might,
While round the world the lists are joined for liberty and light.

Hail sons of France, old comrades dear! Hail Britons brave and true!
Hail Belgian martyrs ringed with flame! Slavs fired with visions new!
Italian lovers mailed with light! Dark brothers from Japan!
From east to west all lands are kin who live for God and man.

Here endeth war! Our bands are sworn! Now dawns the better hour
When lust of blood shall cease to rule, when Peace shall come with power;
We front the fiend that rends our race and fills our homes with gloom;
We break his scepter, spurn his crown, and nail him in his tomb!
Now, hands all round, our troth we plight to rid the world of lies.
To fill all hearts with truth and trust and willing sacrifice;
To free all lands from hate and spite and fear from strand to strand;
To make all nations neighbors and the world one Fatherland.

AMERICA ACCELERATING WORLD DISARMAMENT

Ferrero, Italian Historian, Says New Army Will Summon Europe to Lay Down Arms.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 30.—America is preparing the army of disarmament, declared Guglielmo Ferrero, the noted Italian historian, in the statement published by the Secolo.

"The United States," asserted Signor Ferrero, "are preparing the new American army to defend their most sacred interests, to prevent Europe from falling under a hegemony which would menace the liberty of the world; and in order to have at the peace conference the necessary authority to summon the great states of Europe to lay down their arms.

"General disarmament after this war will be a necessity if the states of Europe do not wish to rush into barbarism and anarchy. America will rapidly create a vast army because she could not, without very grave danger to herself and to the equilibrium of the whole world, neglect to make a counterpoise in the new continent to the monstrous development of armaments in the old.

"The United States were never dominated either by militarism or imperialism. They have, indeed, been governed for five years by that one of the two American parties which is the more averse to imperialism and militarism. To submit to conscription and to be sent to fight in Europe is for the Americans a much greater sacrifice than that any other of the peoples of the entente had to make for the defense of its frontiers and its very existence."

Asserting that the question, what is America doing in the war? is put many times a day to those who presume to know, Signor Ferrero stated:

"Many people—and among them are some members of the mission sent by the Italian Government to the United States—are of opinion that the United States would give more help to the allies by sending food, arms and money than soldiers. It is said that the transport of a large army from America to Europe would require too great a number of ships, and would, therefore, complicate still further the provisioning of the allies in Europe who are more in need of food and other necessary things than of men. But those who argue on these lines show that they have not understood the very profound reasons for America's intervention. America will help the allies with money, food and metals, but also, and very largely, with men, because she needs today to create a large army."

"Sweetheart, You Look Ten Years Younger"

Complexion Blemishes Banished---No Sign of Wrinkles---How She Did It

Only a woman who has watched her complexion change from wrinkled, coarse, sallow ugliness to clear, soft, youthful beauty can realize the feeling of joy that came over me when first I saw that my own careworn, aged-looking skin was actually regaining its girlish freshness. Yet prior to this there was scarcely a preparation, including treatment at the highest prices, which I had not tried, only to make my face look worse. Finally a French lady gave me a beauty recipe which she had obtained from a doctor in Paris, who told her the reason most things failed was because they lacked the power to get down into the skin and renew the youthful activity of the tissues. It was only a short time after that my husband exclaimed, "Sweetheart, you look ten years younger! That French beauty recipe is a marvel." I am certain that most any woman can successfully use the same plan, so I gladly repeat it here for the benefit of others. Merely wash your face with clear, warm water and rub in a teaspoonful of roseated cream (which can be obtained from druggists); wipe the face and apply Poudre Petalias—a very fine complexion powder prepared especially for shiny noses and bad complexions. If your face is badly wrinkled, get a box of Japanese Ice Pencils to use in connection with the roseated cream. I have seen many a wrinkled, hollow-cheeked, faded-looking woman banish every sign of wrinkles and complexion blemishes and marvelously increase her beauty through this simple and inexpensive recipe.

UNIVERSITY NIGHT COURSES IN WAR TOPICS MOST ATTRACTIVE

Advance Inquiries Indicate Big Demand for Instruction in Sciences, Languages and Law.

Preliminary inquiries about evening courses in the department of arts and sciences of Washington University, in which lectures will begin Monday, Oct. 15, reveal that the mobilization activities in the direction of war is having much with the selection of courses by students. Registration will take place Thursday and Friday evenings at the university.

Prof. F. W. Shipley, director of extension courses of the university, said there is an abnormal demand in certain directions, such as electrical and mechanical engineering, chemistry, French for its early use in connection with the war, and Spanish, because of trade opportunity.

A feature of the evening courses is that touching "International Relations and the Great War," in which lectures will be delivered by Profs. Gephart, Usher, Williams and Robinson. This is to be given under the joint auspices of Washington University and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and will consider new phases of the subject, with special emphasis upon problems which have arisen since 1914.

In addition to the regular course, embracing 35 studies, there will be special courses arranged under request from the War Department, including training for the Signal Corps, telegraphy and radiography, concerning which definite announcement will be made later.

Bad Complexions Peeled Off at Home

The girl with the poor complexion complains, "I have to touch up, my cheeks. I am sallow and a sight, and only my makeup saves me."

Now, as a matter of fact, most women spoil their good looks than improve them with cosmetics. The practice certainly is unnecessary, now that the virtues of ordinary mercolized wax as a beautifier have become known. It has been found that the wax has wonderful absorbent powers. It causes the faded or discolored scarf skin to flake off in minute, almost imperceptible particles, so gently, gradually, as to cause no inconvenience at all. In this way the old complexion is actually removed—likewise all fine lines, freckles, pimples, blotches, moth patches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy-hued skin such as no paint, powder or cream can produce. Mercolizedwax, to be had at any drug store in convenient size package, is applied like cold cream and allowed to remain on overnight.—ADV.

Holds Moral Safety of Soldier Rests on Woman

Speaker for National War Council of Y. W. C. A. Finds Excuses for Men Whose Resistance Is Strained by Rigors of Military Work.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

That the moral safety of our soldiers rests entirely with the women and girls of the country, is the conclusion of remarks by Dr. Mary Riggs Noble in addresses she is making to groups of the Young Women's Christian Association in various places in the city. "It is up to us. I do not think it is up to the boys," she says.

The National War Council of the Y. W. C. A., with some powerful names at its head, is undertaking an extensive program of patriotic service and Dr. Noble's talks are apropos of this work. She is reminding young women that with two large military encampments adjacent to this city a great opportunity is before them, and she forcibly implies that the responsibility for the morals of all mankind rests with women.

Finds Excuses for Soldier.

She finds many excuses for soldier's relaxation and his lack of self-control when he comes to the city for a half holiday.

"The nervous systems of these boys—and they are no more than boys—are as highly organized as those of women and with the intense training they are undergoing their resistance is strained to the breaking point,' 'she explains.

In her addresses under the inclusive title, "Moral Standards," she especially emphasizes the influence or women's dress and behavior. Friday afternoon, before a Y. W. branch at McMillan Hall, Washington University, she related an incident wherein a beautiful and innocent young girl, clad in evening dress of the extreme style of today, at a fashionable party in a private house, suffered an indignity from a young man guest and was discovered by her hostess dissolved in tears of humiliation. The young man offered the excuse that the girl's dress—or lack of it—had acted upon him as a "red flag to a bull." Dr. Noble apparently acquitted the young man and condemned the young woman.

She told a group of high school students who organized a debate to determine which was responsible for undue familiarity between the sexes, the boys or the girls. It was decided that the responsibility was entirely "up to the girls," and Dr. Noble apparently concurred in the verdict.

"Little Foxes Spoil the Vines."

"Beyond the requirements of social amenity, only two men have the right to touch a girl with their hands," said Dr. Noble. "Those two men are her father and her brother. At the first indication of familiarity a girl should make her stand. Slight and harmless as the liberty is at first, remember 'it is the little foxes that spoil the vines.' "

"Never has there been a time when American women dressed so comfortably," she went on. "Our clothes do not need to touch us. We talk of getting a dress fitted, but it is a misnomer. We are not burdened with the weight of things. A girl goes on week-end visits with a small bag containing all the changes of clothes, where formerly she needed a Saratoga trunk. Our costume suits the physician down to the ground. But, on the other hand, women never have been dressed so dangerously."

In an interview, when asked to be more specific, Dr. Noble said it was not the short skirts which were so objectionable to her, but the stockings girls wear to attract attention. And it isn't to the open-necked collar so much as the transparent blouse and lace camisole that she objects.

"Some persons offer the excuse, 'Are we not growing away from self-consciousness? And do not customs make conventions?' " she said. "But I insist it is a question of modesty and that modesty is a fundamental virtue.

Ought to Be Elemental.

"Take a pagan tribe and let it be given a little civilization, and the first better instinct they will manifest will be modesty. With women modesty ought to be elemental. Deprive woman of her modesty and it is as if she had surrendered. Take away modesty and you take away the very corner stone of the citadel, our womanhood."

Dr. Noble has lived in India a number of years, having gone there as medical missionary. Her own costume consisted of a dark blue cloth, sem-fitted tailored suit and a semi-transparent blouse of dark blue grenadine with a becoming V-shaped opening at the neck, softened with tulle. Her hat was a dark blue turban trimmed with bird's breasts. Her jewelry, several silver bangle bracelets and a jeweled slide upon a velvet band about her throat.

HOSPITAL'S WORK INCREASED TWOFOLD WITHIN A YEAR

Annual Report of Missouri Baptist Sanitarium Shows Policy of Expansion Still Continues.

A 12-month of exceptional activity and usefulness is shown in the annual statement of the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium whose fiscal year ended with the close of September. This hospital, which is really more than a State institution, did double the amount of business recorded for the preceding year. The number of patients was 3212, made up of 17 denominations as to church affiliation.

While the year just ended was only the second in which the modern new building has been in use, the trend of expansion has by no means ceased. In addition to an enlargement of the nurses' home, two other buildings have been acquired for graduate nurses and another structure remodeled for the use of the department having psychopathic patients in charge.

The number of nurses, graduate and student, is now 81. As for 17 years past, the institution is directly in charge of Dr. I. H. Cadwallader, with Mrs. Cadwallader as superintendent. The executive staff consists of Mary A. Nelson, superintendent of nurses; Hortense Swaney, assistant; Ida Baumgartner, night superintendent of nurses; Lottie McElroy, in charge of operating department.

The officers of the institution are E. S. Pillsbury, president; Charles P. Senter, first vice president; E. P. Melson, second vice president; the Rev. S. E. Ewing, secretary, and Senter M. Jones, treasurer.

W. A. WHITE TELLS OF GALLANT WORK OF AMBULANCE CORPS

rmed. R. W. Goelet donated a rth section early in 1917. Early the spring of this year, when it gan to be evident that America ould go into the war, the American Red Cross took a lively interest in the work of the ambulance corps and on Aug. 31, 1917, the corps had 13 sections and was getting out two sections a month.

Then the Federal Government decided to take over the service as a part of the new conscript army. Until that time it had been a volunteer corps—a kind of Corps d'Elite. The men served for nothing and their friends "found' 'them. They evolved from experience the rules for the service. They were free to go whenever they chose.

Under the federalization, the men must conform to the rules of the Federal army service as to age and physical requirements, though possibly the rules may not be so strictly pressed upon candidates for this service. The men must enlist for the war and be subject to every army regulation. They also lose their leader, Richard Norton, who refused to accept a Major's commission in the ambulance service, somewhat from modesty and somewhat because he felt he might serve more effectively elsewhere in the army. The men in the army ambulance service will, of course, get $30 a month, and the American army ration, which is more liberal theoretically than the French ration, but which, translated into food by an American army cook. will be far less palatable than the food the boys now have.

There is much to be said for and against the federalization of the Ambulance Corps. Under the federalization, the character of the corps, of course, will change. It will be recruited on another basis than that which brought into it a majority of young men from our American colleges and universities, and it may be more thoroughly American than it is now, but it can be no braver nor finer in upholding the best traditions of American chivalry than the old corps has been. Naturally the men of the present corps, as a rule, do not like the federalization.

How the Men View Change.

A letter from a chief of a section sets forth their position well. The letter reads:

"During the last attack a good road was blocked. Regular shells and gas shells had struck an artillery convoy and when three of our cars arrived, the road contained in 50 yards, eight dead horses, 16 partly overcome by gas and one other—the only one standing. The 16 horses down and still alive were mixed up in four loaded artillery carts, hundreds of gallons of mud, and their harness. It was 4 o'clock a. m. and the drivers, not having a volunteer spirit, had left for a safer place as the gas was anything but pleasant and shells were landing frequently.

"I am not casting any reflection on the men of the French army. The drivers had probably reported the traffic jam in the regular way, and the engineers would soon be up to clear it. Meanwhile, many wounded were waiting for ambulances. Would paid ambulanciers have waited for the engineers? The volunteers did not. They put on their oxygen masks, took out their knives, cut harness, used the knives to spur the horses to their feet and out of the road, moved the artillery carts and got the road clear and their cars through.

"In this case a delay of five or ten minutes would have meant 17 more dead horses on the road and the wounded would have to wait many hours. As for the number of lives saved by the work of volunteers—to say nothing of the value of opening the road—I will let you judge. On this day our corps alone carried 728 'blesses' (wounded) besides water, bandages, etc. Another American ambulance section—Section 24—was using the road, too.

"To cite another piece of volunteer work by two men of this section: A shell threw a tree 18 inches in diameter across a road. Unable to pass the men went back to the 'poste de secours' and returned with a saw and an ax. They cleared the road although it was not their job."

Many Will Resign.

Undoubtedly these men of the volunteer corps will find that the run of American manhood is of the same kind of stuff as that found in the volunteer corps. Yet it happens that the resignation of the entire section from which this letter was written was handed in this week. Several other sections will be badly broken by the federalization. The men will go into other branches of the service.

The men of the American ambulance corps almost unanimously feel that they can serve their country better in some other branch of the service in the ambulance corps under army rules. Probably they are wrong. But they are honestly mistaken. They have no desire for fame. They shrink from no hardships or peril. When indeed they entered the corps they made the ancient covenant which youth is ever making with youth's world-old comrade, danger, yet they are as shy and loath to speak of their affairs as they could be if it was a love affair. The hero business is irksome to them.

One night in the woods of Avecourt, when German shells were popping about across roads which the German gunners had marked for their target, a great truck filled with high explosives stalled with one wheel over an embankment. Two boys on the box of an American ambulance corps motor car rounded the corner. The car was filled with wounded. A gassed horse stood dying befor the big truck. Z-z-z-m-Bang! Came a German shell 40 feet away. The French drivers of the truck of dynamite realizing the danger of the situation rushed to the American boys who had alighted from the car. The first reaction of the Frenchmen was a joy of fellowship in peril. They threw their arms beautifully and affectionately about the Americans and cried: "We are brothers in democracy. We shall die together!"

"Brothers in Hell," answered the Americans, whose first reaction was upon their sense of humor, "not on your life will we die together. Buck in and let's move your damn truck."

Which they all did in the gas and shell-fire and went on with their wounded to the hospital, and the Frenchmen continued their more perilous journey with the dynamite. One of the Americans was badly gassed at the job. He may never be the man he was again. Gas is a treacherous and deadly poison. But he was on his car in three days again—doing his day's work. When he received his cross of war from the French Government, he affected to consider it lightly, being ashamed of his pride—which is our American manner. He was but one of the 600!

A few nights ago, somewhere in the devastated area of France, in a barn in which the names of the stallions of the German Crown Prince were stencilled on the walls, in a barn beside a bombed ruin of a beautiful chateau, in a barn lighted by four candles 40 young men sat after dinner ready to listen to their chief. He sope to them simply, told them the story of the federalization; advised all to enter the new service who felt they could serve their to their country's best advantage; thanked them for their loyalty to the corps, and then he said, after an embarrassed pause:

"So now I bid you all good-bye officially—though I hope not personally."

He tried to smile. They tried to grin. It was a hard, sad leave-making after three years of fighting comraderie. There was a second's silence. Naturally American tradition prohibited any emotional expression. Another painful second passed, as 40 youths looked down their noses. Then some one's voice rose and the barn roared with song. It was one which should not be chanted in the presence of Mrs. Boffin—a ribald, roystering song, indeed, but one which vented the emotions of 40 young men and saved the situation. And how the song rose as their emotions worked off!

Then there was more singing of French songs of a somewhat secular character, so as the candles sputtered and the night grew old, Corps No. 7 bade farwell to its chief—a noisy farewell in which the roar of song covered tears.

It was indeed the end of a brave chapter!

Walk-Over SHOES

The word "orthopedic" is a hard name but it describes an easy shoe. The idea that a shoe made on an orthopedic or foot-shaped model must be a shoe without good appearance is completely disproved by Walk-Over shoes. While the shoe that some men wear is not adapted to all feet, the Walk-Over range is so wide and the patronage of the Walk-Over Boot Shop is so extensive that we can carry a stock large enough to give accurate fitting service to every customer.

As to modernity of style, we are able to offer our customers the latest seasonable information.

Through our connection with the Walk-Over factories we learn that their special representative in Paris reports that tan and brown shoes, which look so well with military colors, are to have another popular season.

Both in colors and in models, the Walk-Over shoes we offer are the result of information gleaned by experts in the fashion centers of the world.

A SPOONFUL OF SALTS RELIEVES ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, says noted authority.

If back hurts or Bladder bothers, stop all meat for a while.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life-saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—ADV.

BARRACKS HANDLES 39,825 RECRUITS IN SIX MONTHS

Division and a Half Have Passed Through Here Since War Began.

NEW BUILDING PUT UP

Accommodations Provided for a Full Regiment of Wounded in Hospitals.

St. Louis, already recognized as playing a prominent part in the Government's war program, has still another distinction in that 39,825 American soldiers now in active service in this country and abroad received their first impressions of military life at Jefferson Barracks since the declaration, six months ago, that a state of war exists between the United States and Germany.

Thus through Jefferson Barracks have passed enough soldiers to form 11 regiments of the new war strength of 3600 men each, or one and one-half divisions, the strength of a division at present being 27,000 men.

The barracks is one of the six most important training stations for recruits maintained by the War Department.

Under the direction of Col. C. H. Murray, a veteran army officer recalled from retirement in the present emergency, vast extensions have been made in the barracks' quarters to accommodate the rush of enlisted men, who have been passing through on their way to active service. Seventy wooden barracks, each built to accommodate a company; six new hospital buildings and a huge mess hall, in addition to the one previously used, have been erected on the 1250-acre site of the barracks in the last few months.

New Hospital Buildings.

An ominous reminder of a role to be played by the barracks when our troops in France "go over the top" is seen in the new hospital buildings. These new structures will care for nearly a full regiment of wounded when combined with the hospital originally in use at the post. According to Col. Murray, convalescent wounded soldiers will be sent here as soon as dispatched from France.

Unlike the training camps, the recruits spend only from seven to eight days at the barracks. Sent there from recruiting stations in the Mississippi Valley, about 125 men daily are examined. Upon arrival the applicants are directed to a large wooden building, erected only recently, where, after getting a bath, hair cut and shave, they are put through a rigid physical examination.

Twenty surgeons are on duty daily examining the recruits. If found physically fit, the applicant is sworn in and vaccinated. The next stage of becoming a soldier finds the recruit in a large hall known as the measuring room. Here, after removing the shoe and sock from the right foot, he is measured for shoes and uniform. The proper size shoes and uniform are computed from two measurements, the size of the right foot and the size of the waist.

The men are supplied at once with two pairs of stout army shoes, a uniform, two changes of underwear and two pairs of socks. They are then lined up on the parade ground for inspection and a lecture by Col. Murray.

Critical Time for Men.

Col. Murray, who has seen 45 years' active service as a cavalry officer, declares that the soldier is undergoing the most critical period of his career at this time. Unless the correct impression of military duties and obligations are conveyed to his mind, the man fails to become an efficient fighting man. For this reason the Colonel points out the pitfalls ahead and urges the men to be obedient and courteous.

Each of the recruits is assigned to comfortable quarters in one of the barracks. An iron bed with a good mattress, three heavy blankets, pillows and mosquito netting, form his bunk. Attached to each barracks is a recreation hall, equipped, from a fund raised by recruits, with lounge chairs, phonographs and magazines.

Excellent meals are served three times a day in the huge mess hall, which will accommodate 3000 men. The meals are prepared in a vast kitchen equipped with modern ovens, coffee cauldrons and other fixtures that resemble the machinery of a well-kept manufacturing plant.

The recruit is instructed in the rudiments of drill formations and personal sanitation during the morning. The afternoon is a recreation period. For seven days this course is continued and the men are then dispatched to the training camps to join various regiments.

Concerts by the Jefferson Barracks band are given five times a week. A post exchange, resembling the general store of village fame, supplies them with sandwiches, cigars, cigarettes and other refreshments. The exchange is operated by the Government and all profits are turned into the "mess fund" to purchase delicacies, such as pie, for the men at meal time. Free moving pictures also add to the entertainment of the soldiers.

Holds Courtmartials.

Col. Murray is charged with the responsibility of holding and courtmartialing drafted men charged with desertion. There are several of these men now in the guardhouse at the Barracks. Their trials will be held in the near future.

In the post hospital is a drafted man from St. Louis suffering from a broken arm. The chairman of the ward board discovered the man's injury as he was about to leave for Camp Funston. Asking Col. Murray for instructions, the chairman was informed he would be cared for at Jefferson Barracks free of cost until he recovered and would then be sent to the national army camp.

"There is only one army now," declared Col. Murray, in explanation of the incident. "It's the American Army, and this man is as much a soldier as those in France and is entitled to the accommodations of a military establishment such as this."

CAMP DONIPHAN IS RAPIDLY BECOMING A REAL WAR SCHOOL

turally the Second gets the job. Watch our smoke. Next spring we'll be playing 'the houn' dog' tune on those guns."

Fort Sill has had the army's big schools of musketry and fire, and these are to be greatly enlarged. It is expected that as many as 200 artillery officers will be taking the course in the School of Fire, and gaining experience on the magnificent artillery ranges.

The regular army post of Fort Sill and the cantonment at Camp Doniphan adjoining, are under different commands, but officers of the newly organized units at the camp may take the course at Fort Sill.

It was at Fort Sill that Geronimo was imprisoned, and here he died, a guest of the Government, in a gift house three miles from the fort. Comanche, Kiowa and Apache Indians are plentiful hereabout, and their movements furnish much entertainment for the soldiers. They are not the lean, keen-eyed, wily redskins riding tireless mustangs whereof we read behind our geographies in school. These Indians are fat, and they ride in automobiles and they smoke advertised cigarettes. Sic transit gloria mundi.

The water situation at Camp Doniphan is not yet satisfactory. Water is brought from Medicine Lake, nine miles away, and the main built by the Government has not been connected with the camp waterworks system. The town of Lawton now supplies the water, and the available facilities cannot produce enough for all requirements. There is plenty for drinking, cooking, etc., but the baths run shy along in the afternoon. Divisional headquarters has been placed on a sightly elevation overlooking the camp. As it is the highest point in camp, it gets the poorest service on the waterworks system. At this writing, no officer of headquarters has had a bath in three days, unless he went somewhere else to get it.

WYMAN SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

Pupils Exhibit Vegetables and Fruits Raised During Summer.

An entertainment was given at the Wyman School Friday evening under the auspices of the Parent Teacher Association. The entire school was open that evening, with the pupils in attendance, so that their parents and friends would have an opportunity to see the work being done in the school.

Aside from the exercises which were given in every room there was also a special exhibition, in the assembly room, of the vegetables and fruits which had been raised during the summer by the pupils. Supt. Withers was present.

How often you hear the remark, "It's my nerves!" Many strong appearing men and women fret because they do not feel as well as formerly, yet their physicians tell them they have no organic disease. They are weak, listless, sleepless, neuralgic, and have a variable appetite, are excessively irritable and sometimes hysterical. As soon as any of these symptoms appear, Warner's Safe Nervine should be taken according to directions. It has a direct action on the nerve centers and is a medicine of proven merit. It allays irritability which nervous exhaustion causes, produces healthful and refreshing sleep, and leaves no unpleasant symptoms. It contains no narcotics and may be taken with no fear of ill effects. To any who suffer from loss of sleep, neuralgia, nervous headaches and nervous prostration, Warner's Safe Nervine brings prompt relief. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and all leading druggists. PLANS TO HANDLE CHRISTMAS FREIGHT WITHOUT DELAYS

St. Louis Car Commission Will Attempt to Clear Rails of Regular Traffic in Advance.

MAY ASK FEDERAL AID

Carrying of Packages for Soldiers at Camps Expected to Be Big Problem.

Although Christmas is more than two months distant, the St. Louis Car Commission of the Railroads' War Board decided yesterday to inaugurate at once a movement to prevent serious congestion in this and other important railroad cities, due to the heavy shipment of holiday express and parcel-post packages.

For several days preceding last Christmas a number of the terminals were so congested as to make it exceedingly difficult to handle freight trains and this year railroad officials look for a movement of holiday packages that will far exceed the volume of last year's traffic.

Unless there is co-operation from the shipping public, transportation organizations attached to the Railroads' War Board fear a situation approaching demoralization, not only in St. Louis, but in other gateways. Railroad traffic generally continues to grow and the Government's demands on the transportation facilities are constantly increasing, now that the cantonments and training camps throughout the country are crowded with young men representing every branch of the army and navy service. Added to this are the growing necessities of the thousands of industries turning out war orders.

Will Protect Coal Facilities.

To keep the cars moving, the St. Louis commission believes that it is essential that a system be devised for handling the holiday business so that there will be as little interference as possible with the freight facilities which are sorely needed now, and even more so in the winter, with the increased coal tonnage and transportation difficulties incident to the weather.

While no definite plan has been worked out, it is proposed to encourage the shipment of such packages as early as possible and have them stored at points of destination until a week or so before Christmas, when they can be handled systematically by the express companies and postal service. This could not be done with perishable articles, but it is hoped that all the nonperishable articles will be off the rails a week or 10 days before Christmas.

The railroads figure that the million or more men in the camps and cantonments will receive gifts from home, and unless a system is worked out the senders will follow the usual custom of expressing or mailing their parcels only a few days before Christmas. Meanwhile, it is pointed out, everybody else throughout the country will be doing the same thing and unless an education campaign for early shipping bears results, this rush of traffic, added to the other troubles of the carriers, will occasion endless confusion and perhaps paralysis in important traffic centers like St. Louis.

May Appeal to Government.

In the event that an early shipping movement is fully developed the railroad managers say they would have to get the Government's co-operation as well, at least insofar as packages expressed or mailed to the soldiers are concerned, as it would be necessary to have storage facilities at each cantonment to care for the gifts until distributed.

The express traffic of the country, according to recent reports, is as heavy now as it was during the Christmas rush of last year. This is due largely to the record-breaking freight traffic and the difficulty in getting cars. The Government is given preference in the filling of car orders and it often happens that a shipper will use the express facilities and pay the higher rate, rather than wait for freight service.

A considerable part of the supplies for the cantonments have been sent by express, particularly clothing, bedding, medical and food articles.

GREEK FROM CHICAGO GUARDS DOOR OF PREMIER VENIZELOS

One of Large Number of Countrymen who Went Home From U. S. for Balkan War.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Sept. 5.—There is a man with a withered arm standing on guard at the door of Premier Venizelos, head of the Greek Government. As Venizelos is partial toward Cretans, it was thought this man was from Crete. But when inquiry was made, he replied:

"No, not from Crete, but from Chicago, Ill."

He explained that he was one of the great number of Greeks who left America when the last Balkan war began. Of the 300,000 men Greece put in the field at the time, some 57,000 came from America, thus forming about one-fifth of the whole Greek army.

"I went through all that Balkan fighting," said the guard. "A large share of the men from America were killed, wounded or sick, but I escaped until the very last day, when a ball in the shoulder ended the use of this arm."

Most of the men from America who survived the Balkan wars, he said, remained in Greece, for they had earned enough money on the other side of the ocean to permit them to live here in comfort.

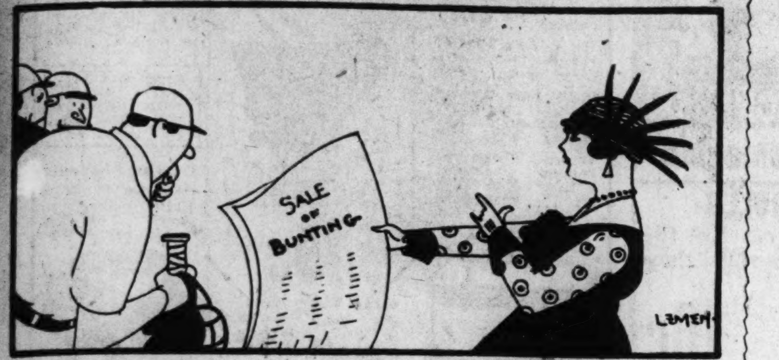
JESTS AND JINGLES

By

W. H. JAMES.

ARABELLA AND THE SERIES.



SALE OF BUNTING
LEMEN

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN has told us all about it,
For she's the brightest girl in town; there is no room to doubt it.
She says another war is on, and causing lots of trouble,
And Peace's dream again is gone, collapsing like a bubble.
She cannot rightly make it out, but knows that with defiance
One Jawn, a leader bold and stout, has mobilized his Giants,
And on Chicago town has trained his batteries to rake it
For there's a pennant to be gained and he is bound to take it.
Although she really cannot see why private or Lieutenant,
Or even leader bold like he, should fight for just a pennant,
When he could buy it at the store, in flannelette or bunting
If he but knew a little more the art of bargain hunting.
It seems a man whose name is Pants, ridiculous designation,
Is waiting for this Jawn's advance with brave determination.
And all the European troops upon their arms are resting
And eagerly await in groups the news of this contesting,
While Jawn and Pants in deadly grip are doing valiant battle
Their names are heard on every lip from Jersey to Seattle,
And even Gen. Pershing great, unless she's much mistaken,
With eager interest will wait to see who "cops the bacon."

AT THE FRONT.

German Colonel: Where is that lovely limburger cheese which the Kaiser sent me for a birthday present?

Mess Sergeant: Sorry, excellence, but the artillery used it as a substitute.

Colonel: For what?

Sergeant: For gas bombs.

French Corporal: The General sent for you?

Private: Yes.

Corporal: Did he kiss your cheek?

Private: Better than that.

Corporal: Did he give you the grand cross of the Legion of Honor?

Private: Better than that.

Corporal: It is impossible! What did he do?

Private: He said: "Attaboy."

German Aviator: Did you hear about our comrade Fritz.

Balloon Scout: Was he killed?

Aviator: Much worse. He was reprimanded and demoted.

Scout: What for?

Aviator: Inefficiency. He missed a hospital on his last London raid.

Prussian Colonel: Captain, how do you keep your men in such good spirits?

Captain: I have a very simple method of keeping up their morale.

Colonel: What do you do?

Captain: I read one of La Follette's speeches to them at every roll call.

INSIDE DOPE.

"HELLO, Binks."

"Howdy, Jinks, what's the news from the front?"

"Belgian or Chicago front?"

"Now, you know I don't take any interest in baseball."

"Is that so."

"Yes, except, of course that I have a little natural curiosity."

"But you don't care who wins?"

"Who said I didn't?"

"Well, then, who's going to win?"

"The Giants, of course."

"What do you know about it."

"Nothing, but my brother does."

"Is he a fan?"

"No, but he knows a fellow that used to work in a livery stable where Charlie Comiskey's uncle used to keep his horse and buggy before automobiles came in."

"And what did HE say?"

"He said the White Sox couldn't win."

"Why not?"

"Because Phiambos Demipopoulos has been drafted into the army."

"And who's he?"

"The fellow that used to shine the ball for Eddie Cicotte."

"Couldn't anybody else do it?"

"No, and that's not the worst of it."

"How's that?"

"The breweries are working overtime."

"Doing what?"

"Putting hops in Slim Sallee's fast one."

SUM CHU GUM.

FENG KWO CHANG, that President Man,
Is get in war as fast as can.
Will send all troops to Europe quick
For make that Kaiser all same sick.
Nine soldiers is ready to mobilize
And cause one very big surprise;
Four more will do very same thing
Maybe before the next time spring.
But allies must pay complete expense
Of Chinese army going hence;
Otherwise will stay here now.
And all time eat 'em lots of chow.

PAYMENT OF $100 TO OBTAIN POLICE CHANGES CHARGED

Chief Young Tells How State Legislator Admitted Hiring Lawyer to Work for Transfer.

Evidence will be submitted by the Police Department to the Circuit Attorney regarding efforts to obtain the transfer of Policemen Edward A. Pickett and John Haley of the Central district, from their beats in the vicinity of Second and Plum streets. Another attempt was revealed yesterday by Chief Young, who stated that Edward Hogan, member of the State Legislature, declared he paid $100 to "a prominent lawyer" to get the patrolmen transferred. "He failed to deliver the goods," Hogan added.

Previously Gus Koenig, who formerly ran a saloon at 501 South Second street, attempted to set a bribery trap for the two policemen, explaining that they had interfered with his business by ordering customers to stay away from his place. Koenig now has a saloon at 4301 Manchester avenue. He signed a bond of $3000 for Patrolman Ray Cummins, former secretary of the Police Relief Association, when the latter was indicted for burglary and receiving stolen goods.

Young Hears Complaint.

Chief Young said that a man called him by phone and complained: "I'm not getting much for my $100." In order to verify the identity of the speaker, Young asked him to go to headquarters. Soon afterward Hogan appeared and told of his payment of money to have Pickett and Haley transferred.

Hogan, who is an electrician, introduced a measure at the last session of the Legislature for creating the position of Inspector of Electrical Equipment in the Police Department.

Pickett and Haley appeared recently before the Bureau of Efficiency on Hogan's complaint that on the night of Sept. 27 they were loafing in a creamery at Second and Spruce streets. A Lieutenant sent to investigate reported that he found the policemen walking their beats, and they were exonerated.

Watchman Offered Bribe.

They had previously been before the Efficiency Board on Koenig's complaint that they were driving customers away from his saloon. They declared that many of these were police characters, and Charles E. Grote, a private watchman, testified he had approached Pickett and Haley on Koenig's behalf with an offer of money.

Koenig stated he had consulted an attorney, who was the same one mentioned by Hogan, and was advised to trap the policemen with bribes and pay them with checks, so that he would "have them."

OHIO GOVERNOR SEIZES TRAIN OF COAL FOR USE IN DAYTON

Reports Show a Serious Shortage of Fuel Throughout State for the Schools.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—The coal scarcity became so serious at Dayton that Gov. J. M. Cox seized a train bearing 1000 tons and sent it to that city.

Dayton is the Governor's home town.

The seizure may be used as a test as to whether this State is to suffer while its coal is being shipped away under orders from the Federal Priority Shipping Board.

The State will attempt to ship coal direct to schools and hospitals in need of fuel.

Reports from more than forty cities show 19,500 tonson hand for school uses and 47,200 needed. Fifteen of the 57 buildings in this city have no fuel. In this city homes and industries have less than 25 per cent in their cvoal bins. Local coal companies have no coal in storage and some are 75 per cent behind in their orders.

Holland to Restrict Travel.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—According to the Meuse Mercury (Maasbode), traveling for pleasure will probably be prohibited in Holland soon, tickets being granted only on production of a traveler's pass issued by the Mayor of their place of residence.

URGES ECONOMIC LIBERTY AS BEST PRODUCT OF WAR

Mrs. Joseph Fels Says Struggle Should Yield More Than Poetry and Song.

Mrs. Joseph Fels of New York, a leader of the Single Tax movement, here to attend a conference on the high cost of living, under the auspices of the American Committee on the High Cost of Living, spoke yesterday at the City Club on "The Practice of Freedom."

The inadequacy of the average income to provide the common necessities of life, she said, was the obvious condition which had to be faced. She said in part:

"The war will have been fought in vain if new conceptions of freedom are being born out of travail merely to be embalmed in poetry and oratory. Are we to end where we began, and perhaps with a great undemocratized national machine of industry on our hands? Those who have studied the British working man for any long period know that he is a good political economist when out of a job. The American, less frequently out of work, thinks so little that he allows himself to be gulled by the idea that the slender margin on which he maintains his existence is a wonderful standard of life with which the beneficent tariff-makers have endowed him.

Economic Freedom Desirable.

"Have we accomplished our mission in the world only when we have assisted to destroy the cruder forms of political oppression in Europe? In truth, that is only clearing the stones and stumps from the field. The fruits of freedom come only from the most assidious cultivation. In the theory of freedom, the Russians have bounded to the stature of manhood. In the practice of freedom, they are infants barely able to stand alone. For the practice of freedom involves the reconstruction of their whole economic fabric, the establishment of a new relation between man and land.

"The high cost of living is a touchstone that discloses the defects in the practical working of democracy. It is intolerable that land monopolists should sit on the sources of our food supply, and collect toll from the effort to supply our needs. When the pinch comes, we discover that those who own the land own the people. It is intolerable that a small group should possess and control the world's raw materials, for all industries and those who carry them on are of necessity subservient to that group. It is intolerable that goods in exchange and transport should be impeded by carriage monopoly and stopped by tariff walls. For this is oppression of the consumer.

"When freedom becomes practical, the machinery of production and distribution no longer will be managed by coupon-clippers, there no longer will be talk of taxing war profits, and, above all, there will be no refusal to conscript wealth, for when freedom is dominant wealth is no longer more precious than life."

Hugh Reid, vice president of the Illinois Initiative and Referendum League, spoke on "Coal and the High Cost of Living." The cause of high coal prices, he said, was artificial shortage caused by juggling of cars by men who are interested in both the railroads and the mines. Some of these men, he said, had the effrontery to sit on Councils of Defense. The remedy was to take over the railroads and move the coal. If this did not avail the mines should be seized.

Business Blockade Discussed.

At a meeting in the afternoon at the Public Library Assembly room, Prof. Louis Wallis of the Fels International Commission spoke on "The Blockade Against Business." He said that business in the United States rapidly had been approaching the European level during the last 10 or 15 years. The grip of "the feudal aristocracy" on the soil put a blockade, he said, in the way of the real business man who wanted to develop the resources of the earth under free conditions. The thing to do in the war situation, he said, was to impose a heavy Federal tax on ground rentals and a still heavier proportional tax on the nation's unused land.

Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the American Committee on the High Cost of Living, who spoke on "Making Wealth Patriotic," urged conscription of wealth and said Congress should turn into the public treasury the excess war profits secured by private parties.

Last night at the same place Reid spoke on "Hard Coal and the High Price of Living," Prof. Wallis on "Next Steps" and Marsh on "The Futility of Price Fixing."

Var-ne-sis not only cured my rheumatism, but helped my stomach from the first and gradually I regained my former weight. I am well and strong today, thanks to Var-ne-sis."

Rev. Paul M. Cayer of 56 Willow Street, New Bedford, Mass., verifies the condition Mrs. Turenne was in, and watched her progress from helplessness to recovery with marked interest.

Var-ne-sis is the one preparation for chronic rheumatism of the joints; it tends to help the stomach and relieves the pain and stiffness. You ought to read "The Rust of Human Hinges," just off the press. It's free. Just address W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass. W. A. Varney says:

"I will pay the expense of three business men to investigate the evidence I produce, providing they will allow me to publish the results over their names. Can I do more?"

If you are suffering from chronic rheumatism of the joints you will have to take Var-ne-sis sometime—do it NOW—every day's neglect is just one more day of needless suffering.

"OVER THE TOP" AUTHOR TALKS TO SOCIETY WOMEN

Sergt. Emply Takes Audience on Imaginary Trip Across "No Man's Land."

USES SLANG OF TRENCHES

Fashionable Hearers Carried Out of Regard for Niceties of Speech by His Story.

Clapping his hands in realistic imitation of machine gun fire, Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey took an audience of society women, in imagination, "over the top,' across No Man's Land and into the enemy trenches, which were represented by a row of chairs, in his 90-minute talk at the Wednesday Club Auditorium, Friday afternoon.

The auditorium was not quite a no mans' land, there being a man here and there among the women who nearly filled the hall. The occasion was the opening of the lecture course of the American University Society, which plans monthly lectures for its members only, throughout the winter and spring, by persons of literary, artistic, political or military distinction. Mrs. Theodore Benoist, president of the local branch of the society, introduced the speaker, an American volunteer in the British army, widely known through his book, "Over the Top."

Story Compels Interest.

Empey's lecture is worded in the chatty speech of the British trenches, not unmixed with American slang. The first part of his recital, which was about his experiences in England, was amusing, but its tone seemed hardly suited to the nature of the audience. But when he got into his description of trench life and hand-to-hand fighting, the vital interest of the story carried the audience out of its regard for the little niceties of speech, and compelled an interest which soon grew into enthusiasm. The speaker wielded a swagger stick throughout the recital.

Describing the preliminaries of his first charge "over the top," Empey told of the rum issue. This issue, he said, is made at 3 a. m. to the men in the trenches. Frequently, he said, its effect is to enable men who need sleep, but cannot sleep because of pain and discomfort, to doze off in the momentary warmth which it gives, and to get a few hours of rest.

"Except for taking my rum in the trenches," Empey said, "I'm not a drinking man, and the liquor people aren't paying me to say this, but I believe rum does the men, under those circumstances, more good than grape juice would."

On the morning of which he told, the purpose of the rum was not to put the men to sleep. They were under orders to go over the top at 4 a. m., following an artillery preparation which began at 2. The first effect of the rum, he related, was to make the men impatient for the charge. They did not even see why they should wait so long for the artillery to finish. By 4 o'clock this had worn off, and there was no unseemly crowding upon the scaling ladders—ladders of death, the men call them— which lead out of the trench.

He Tried to Turn Back

Empey said he was number 2 in order on the ladder, and that he tried to go back on the pretense that he had mislaid his gas mask. He was stopped by an officer who informed him that the same story had been told by many others in such circumstances, and sent him to his place on the ladder.

"At 4 o'clock," said Empey, "every gun behind you stops, and the whistle blast comes. The machine guns go po-po-po-," and the speaker began gestures, handclapping and whining in the tone of overhead shells, to give an idea of the postures of the men and the noises of the attack. He told of the loss of some of his comrades in No Man's Land, and admitted that he nearly dropped dead with fright when he encountered a Prussian guardsman "7 feet tall, with a 10-foot rifle which had 7 bayonets on it." At that moment, Empey said, he remembered what his English drill sergeant had told him about getting his bayonet out of an enemy's body quickly, but he had not been told how to get the bayonet into the enemy. Somebody knew how, for as the Prussian was swinging his gun about his head, a bayonet from behind transfixed his neck, coming out of his throat. Empey was himself wounded with a bayonet in this fight, he related.

Acts Out Bombing of Trench.

He went on to act out the bombing of an enemy trench and the method of investigating as to the presence of "Fritz" at the various turning places. Formerly when British soldiers came to a dugout in a German trench, he related, they would first shout an inquiry as to who was there. The result was several traps in which "Fritz," pretending to be wounded and desirous of surrendering, bayonetted the English. Now, he said, the English throw a bomb into the dugout first and inquire afterward. "Take no prisoners" is a rule frequently followed, he said, owing to atrocities such as the crucifixion of a British Sergeant with bayonets between two trees.

"Gassing" was the theme of a vivid piece of description. An alarm gong, he said, gives the warning that the wind is bringing the gas, which cannot be used by the enemy unless the wind is right. The time for getting the helmet adjusted may not be more than 18 seconds, he pointed out, and the man who announces it to his comrades is sometimes killed himself before he can get his own mask on.

The Irish, Empey said, are the best of bayonet fighters, but the Scotch are nearly as good, and neither an Irishman nor a Scotchman stops to think whether his gun is loaded or whether it will shoot.

One of the best of Empey's anecdotes was about a British Major who, when Empey was first sent to the front, noted his short body with disdain and remarked: "Win the war? Not likely, when that's the kind of recruit they're sending us."

SMOKE ORDINANCE OPPOSED

Civic League Asks for Hearing on Wyrick Measure.

The Smoke Abatement Committee of the Civic League yesterday requested the Legislative Committee of the Board of Aldermen to grant a public hearing on the new smoke ordinance, introduced by Alderman Wyrick two weeks ago. Prof. E. L. Ohle of Washington University, chairman of the committee, made the request. He is also chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Engineers' Club, which has been working on a model ordinance for smoke abatement in St. Louis, raising the standards required for the smoke inspector.

The ordinance proposed by Wyrick would provide for a number of different time rates for different sorts of smokestacks and boilers and would make the law practically inoperative on that account, according to the Smoke Abatement Committee of the League.

During the first nine months of 1917 the Post-Dispatch printed 36,344 Automobile Want Ads—3641 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

EMPHASIZE NEED OF SPEEDING UP LIBERTY BOND SALE

Organizers of Campaign Point Out That Only $10,000,000 Has Been Subscribed.

CITY QUOTA $40,843,000

Only a Fair Start Has Been Made in the First Week of Work on Second Loan.

The organizers of the Liberty Loan bond sale campaign here will try to speed up their work this week, following reports yesterday which showed that only a fair start had had been made in the first week of the campaign.

Tom W. Bennett, chairman of the Publicity Committee, after inspecting the reports, said the aggregate sales in this city since the campaign opened Monday would not be more than $10,000,000. This includes the $5,000,000 subscription of the Mercantile Trust Co. The minimum allotment fo rthis city, based on the sale of $3,000,000,000 worth of bonds throughout the country, is $40,843,000. If the sale throughout the country is $5,000,000,000, St. Louis' share would be $68,072,00.

Reports From Banks.

Reports from nine banks yesterday showed the following actual applications from individuals and corporations:

Mercantile Trust Co., $600,000 by 738 applicants.

St. Louis Union Bank, $800,000 by 350 applicants.

Mississippi Valley Trust Co., $495,000, by 178 applicants.

Third National Bank, $120,000, by 160 applicants.

Central National Bank, $103,000, by 62 applicants.

National Bank of Commerce, $257,000, by 30 applicants.

German Savings Institution, $169,700, by 99 applicants.

Boatmen's Bank, $110,000, by 50 applicants.

Grand Avenue Bank, $13,350, by 32 applicants.

The figures received from the portion of the St. Louis Federal Reserve District outside this city were considered encouraging. Cole County reported that a group of 10 men in and near Jefferson City, headed by Gov. Gardner, had set themselves the task of disposing of $441,500 worth of bonds.

Women's Committee Meets.

The Women's Committee of the Liberty Loan organization held its first meeting yesterday morning in its headquarters on the fourteenth floor of the Boatmen's Bank Building, and an all-day conference of chairmen for this district and other parts of the State followed. A dinner was given for the women workers at the St. Louis Club last evening. The speakers included Miss Florence Wade, chairman of the District Committee; Mrs. Philip N. Moore, State chairman; Mrs. Philip Bond Fouke of the Women's National Council of Defense; Mrs. John H. Holliday, chairman of the city committee of the organization; Mrs. Howard T. Wilson of Virden, Ill., chairman for Illinois; Mrs. Donald McDonald of Louisville, chairman for Kentucky, and William McC. Martin of the Federal Reserve Bank.

It was decided to establish a four-minute speakers' bureau of women. aMrtin, in his talk, explained the financial aspect of the bond campaign, and declared that the bonds would be equivalent to cash, and that a $50 bond would be as easily negotiable as a $50 bank note. He said if the money was not raised by bond sailes, it would have to be raised by taxation.

Two Ways to Raise Money.

Chairman Bennett of the Publicity Committee, in a statement given out yesterday, emphasized the point that the money would have to be raised. He said:

"Every dollar raised through the sale of a bond is a dollar which does not have to be raised by taxation; it is a dollar which is to be returned to the owner in the future with its natural increase. Every dollar paid in taxes will never return directly to its owner.

"The people have the option of two plans of raising this money, one plan giving in return tangible bankable assets, and the other giving in return only the satisfaction of having performed a necessary duty. It is just as easy to perform the duty by the one plan as it is by the other, but common sense should dictate to anybody which of the two is to be preferred."

CORNERSTONE LAYING TOMORROW

Addresses Will Be Made at George Dewey School Ceremonies.

The corner stone of the new George Dewey School, Clayton and Central avenues, will be paid at 4 p. m. tomorrow. Addresses will be made by Ben P. Stromberg, president of the Board of Education; Dr. John W. Withers, Superintendent of Instruction, and R. M. Milligan, Building Commissioner.

The new building will be built in the style of Spanish architecture, at a cost of $225,000. It will contain 22 class rooms, play rooms, gymnasiums for boys and girls, supply rooms and a library room.

NOTED STAR NOW IN PATRIOTIC ALLEGORY

JULIA ARTHUR.

PRIVATE WITH PERSHING DIES

Pneumonia Fatal to Son of Oregon Man, Says Cablegram.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Allen V. Mercer, engineers, private, died Sept. 30 of pneumonia, according to a cablegram received today from Gen. Pershing. His father is A. R. Mercer, Cooston, Ore.

JULIA ARTHUR RETURNS HERE; 19 YEARS AWAY

Much Admired Star, at Orpheum This Week, Last Seen at the Old Century.

Julia Arthur, who heads tomorrow's bill at the Orpheum Theater, is now appearing in vaudeville before a generation of playgoers who have but a dim remembrance of her notable career on the legitimate stage.

In the late 'nineties, Miss Arthur was one of the three most successful and admired American actresses. The others were Viola Allen, later graduated into the movies, and Julia Marlowe, who remained in dramatic work until a few seasons ago, and whose retirement was deplored as an untimely loss to the stage.

In Julia Arthur's acting, beauty, grace and refinement were combined with very high artistic merit. Her choice of plays, aside from several appearances in Shakspeare, was not of the most fortunate. "A Lady of Quality," which had a most successful engagement at the old Century Theater here, is remembered not for its worth as a play, but because Miss Arthur appeared in it. Soon after this, when still in her twenties and at the height of her popularity, Miss Arthur became Mrs. B. P. Cheney Jr. and retired from dramatic work.

Returning to the stage season before last, Miss Arthur was most unhappily provided with a play. "The Eternal Magdalene" was a specious plea for the discredited idea that commercialized vice should be tolerated in segregated districts. However, Miss Arthur's name and her ability made the play go in the East. Here, with another star, it met with deserved indifference. Last season Miss Arthur was seen in "Seremonda," a tragic romance of the time of the Crusades. She has not been in St. Louis since her return to the stage.

Her Act an Allegory.

Her present vaudeville act, "Liberty Aflame," is an allegory, in which Liberty calls on the civilized nations to avenge the wrongs inflicted on mankind by the aggressors in the war. Miss Arthur's elocutionary gifts, and some unusual stage properties, have won commendation for this act elsewhere. Other features at the Orpheum this week are Ruth Roye, singer; Bonita and Lew Hearn, comedians, and the second weekly episode of the British war film entitled "The Retreat of the Germans at the Battle of Arras."

"Fair and Warmer," seen here last year, begins tonight a return engagement at the Jefferson, with a different cast. This play was never better characterized than by the Chicago critic who wrote, "You can take your tenderest daughter with perfect safety—provided she is deaf." Its dialogue disregards ordinary ideas of propriety, and the simplicity of the two principal characters is held to excuse everything. The farceur, Avery Hopwood, has incurred the ill will of many married men by declaring, in language which no wife can misunderstand or forget, that lodges and secret societies are just an excuse for a night out, which is usually not spent at the lodge at all.

"Experience," which has had a week of good business at the Shubert-Garrick, will remain there this week. This will be the fourth week of this play in St. Louis, as it played a two weeks' stand last season.

Premier at the Garrick.

Next Sunday night, at the Garrick, a new play, "Yes or No," will have its first performance on any stage. The play was written by Arthur Goodrich, and the producers are G. N. Anderson and L. Lawrence Weber.

David Warfield will appear at the Jefferson Monday night, Oct. 15, in the revival of his greatest success, "The Music Master," under David Belasco's direction.

A musical comedy number, "Six Peaches and a Pair," will be the feature of the Columbia Theater's bill tomorrow. The Knickerbocker Four, Keough Sisters and Al Abbott, the village songster, are others on the program.

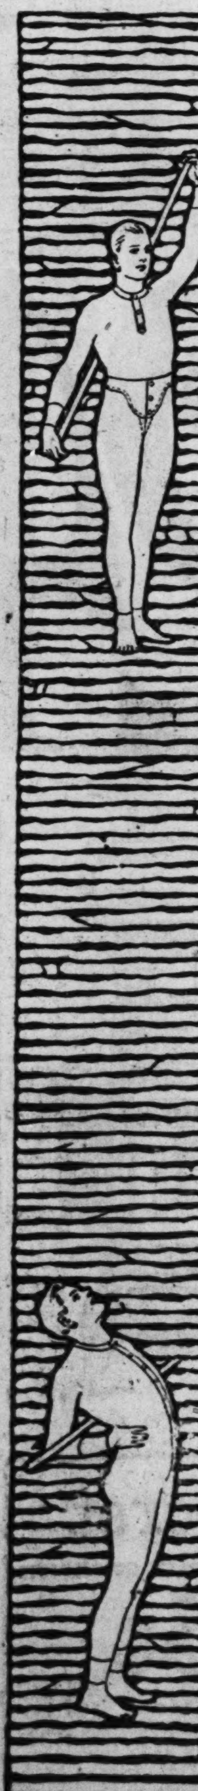
The Shipman-Lippman sketch, "Honor Thy Children," will be the headliner at the Grand tomorrow. William Lawrence heads the producing company. The American Comedy Four and a number of other entertainers are on the bill.

"Going Straight," to be shown at the American today, seems to resemble "Turn to the Right" about as closely as the copyright laws will permit. "Turn to the Right" was the chief comedy success in New York last season, and is to be seen in St. Louis this month. "Going Straight" has its reformed crook, its rascally deacon, its widow who is about to be robbed, and its comedy juggling of money, all very much as in "Turn to the Right."

The Gayety Theater, which will have "The Golden Crook" as its attraction this week, calls attention to the announcement of world's series scores, by innings, at its matinees on days when games are played. Billy Arlington, tramp comedian, is the star of the "Golden Crook" company.

At the Standard this week the efforts of "The Lady Buccaneers" will be supplemented by a diver, Mermaidia, with a corps of diving young women. The main performance, termed a revue, is headed by Fred Hackett, Frank Penny and Elwood Benton. World's series scores will be shown at matinees.

"The U. S. Navy Forever" is the title of the Imperial Theater's musical production for this week, beginning at noon today. The scenes are laid on the deck of a battleship. Johnny Rader, Blanche Boyd and Charlyne Young will supply the comedy and songs. In the second part of the program the vaudeville acts will be headed by a Hawaiian singer and dancer, Lei Mokihana. "Sands of Sacrifice" and a Helen Holmes play, "The Lost Express," are the moving picture features.



How Dollar knitting came to Medium-priced Underwear

Until recently 10-rib knitting came only in underwear costing $1.00 or more. So, many were denied 10-rib warmth, 10-rib elasticity and 10-rib durability.

Mayo Underwear was then knit with 8-ribs to the inch. Mayo Underwear was then warm and durable. It was good value. But we wanted to give wearers of Mayo Underwear still greater value. We wanted to put dollar-knitting—10-rib knitting—into medium-priced Mayo Underwear.

We put this problem up to our manufacturing department. They solved it.

So now, 10-rib knitting has come to medium-priced Mayo Underwear. And now Mayo Underwear is the only medium-priced underwear that's "actually knit in the dollar way" (10-ribs to the inch instead of 8).

Now, a moderate price buys 10-rib warmth, 10-rib elasticity and 10-rib durability.

Buy a suit of this 10-rib Mayo Underwear. You'll thank 10-rib knitting for the warmest, cosiest winter of your whole life. Your pocketbook will thank us for putting 10-rib knitting in medium-priced Mayo.

FARMERS SELL OUT LONG BEFORE NEW MARKET IS OPENED

Few Who Appear on South Jefferson Avenue Besieged by Buyers.

The new Jefferson-Park consumers' market, which extends along Jefferson avenue, from Park to Russell, was formally opened yesterday at 9:30 a. m. with a public ceremonial of speeches and band music in front of the Barr Branch Library, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, but long before this hour the farmers had sold their truckloads of fruit and vegetables to an eager crowd of women who besieged them in the early hours.

So great was the rush of buyers that officials of the South Jefferson Avenue Business Men's Association, which established the market, went to the Soulard Market and induced a few other farmers to bring their produce to the Jefferson-Park market, and they also were quickly bought out.

The Jefferson-Park market is the second consumers' market to be established under the rapidly spreading propaganda urging consumers to deal directly with producers and thus eliminate the middleman's profit, and a permit for a third and smaller market, to be started on St. Louis avenue, from Fifteenth to Nineteenth streets, has been issued by the city. Wild Hunter Market, on South Broadway, between Osage and Winnebago, which was opened Sept. 8, was the first to be established under present conditions, and has proved a complete success, as yesterday's business would indicate, there being 80 farmers on the stand who sold out as quickly as they could handle the trade.

Only 15 of the 150 farmers and truck gardeners notified brought their produce to Jefferson-Park yesterday, and the lack of competition, together with the great demand, kept prices up to the grocery store basis.

The small number of farmers who took their stand on the new market yesterday was a distinct disappointment to officials of the association sponsoring the movement for that part of the city, and they will make an effort to have at least 100 producers there on next market day.

The market will be open for business three days a week—Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. It is located in the center of a population of 200,000, within convenient distance.

MAN ROBBED OF $5100 WHEN IN AN ELEVATOR

Pickpockets Jostle Arthur Mittelberg and Escape With His Money.

ONE CAUGHT IN CHASE

Other Two Escape After One Grapples With Realty Man in Commercial Building.

Arthur Mittelberg, 66 years old, a real estate dealer of Webster Groves, with offices in the International Life Building, was robbed of $5100 by one of three pickpockets who jostled him in an elevator in the Commercial Building, Sixth and Olive street, at 11:30 a. m. yesterday.

When he discovered his loss Mittelberg descended in the elevator and grappled with two of the men in first floor lobby of the building. One escaped and the other, captured after a chase, had no money.

Mittelberg had drawn 51 $100 bills from the American Trust Co., Broadway and Olive street, for a client. He went direct to the Commercial Building and entered an elevator. He noticed that three men followed him closely and jostled him and one held an overcoat in front of his face.

The three men left the elevator at the fifth floor. At the sixth floor Mittelberg felt in his pocket and missed the money. He told the elevator conductor, who ran the car down to the first floor.

Two of the men who had jostled Mittelberg had gone down a staircase back of the elevator shaft and they reached the lobby as Mittelberger left the elevator. He grappled with them and accused them of robbing him. Other persons aided him in his attempt to detain the men.

They struggled toward the Sixth street entrance of the building. One of the men ran north on Sixth street and escaped. The other pulled away from Mittelberg and was stopped at Sixth and Pine streets by Harry Brinkop, a real estate dealer, at 619 Chestnut street. He was turned over to a policeman.

The prisoner said he was Robert Warner of Rockford, Ill., but from Bertillion records he was identified as Harry Mitchell, a pickpocket known to the police of many cities. He has been arrested in St. Louis three times and has served three terms in a Chicago reformatory.

Mitchell always works with one or more pickpockets. When a theft is committed he attracts the attention of a crowd by running away. While he is being pursued the thief with the money escapes.

OPPOSE REMOVAL OF CAR LINE

Hodiamont Avenue Business Men Call Meeting Tuesday Evening.

Property owners and business men on Hodiamont avenue, between Plymouth and Easton avenue, and on Easton avenue near Hodiamont avenue, will meet Tuesday evening at 6109 Easton avenue, to protest against the proposed removal of the Hamilton line street car tracks from Hodiamont avenue between Plymouth and Easton avenue. A committee will be named to appear before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Persons protesting against the proposed change declare the removal of the tracks will cause a material decrease in property values as the district on Hodiamont, from Easton to Plymouth avenues, is largely a business section and needs the tracks. The removal of tracks is part of the United Railways plan for an extension of the Hamilton line to connect with the Manchester line.

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—ADV.

EXCELLENT LAXATIVE FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE

As we pass the prime of life the various organs of the body have a tendency to weaken, especially the bowels. Regularity in this important function is so essential to good health that old folks should be very careful to avoid constipation. A congestion of stomach waste in the bowels occasions dizziness, headache, drowsiness after eating, biliousness, belching, bloat, piles, etc., and should be corrected immediately; it is the direct cause of much serious disease.

The most effective remedy for constipation is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It costs only fifty cents a bottle, is mild in its action, does not gripe or strain, and brings relief quickly. Get a bottle of it from your druggist and keep it in the house; it is the ideal family remedy. A trial bottle can be obtained free of charge by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

GERMAN SALMON IN THE THAMES

Being Bred There on Large Scale—Nonmigratory at Home.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Some good things come from Germany, and one of them is the German salmon, which is now being bred on a large scale in the Thames and has the advantage of being nonmigratory. At least it is nonmigratory in its native waters, but it may change its habit here, as happened with the English and American brook trout which were planted in New Zealand.

In English waters brook trout are never migratory, but in New Zealand they rapidly developed into confirmed sea rovers, and have now become a fine and healthy race of sea trout, affording excellent sport and attaining unusual size.

Beer Higher in Amsterdam.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The retail price of beer is again advanced 25 per cent in Amsterdam, being now 20 to 25 Dutch cents (8 to 10 American) per glass for first-class beer, though inferior grades are sold in cheap drinking places for half that price, says a consular report. Retail prices of all kinds of beer have now doubled since 1913.

26 CALIFORNIANS IN SECTION DRIVING AMBULANCES IN ALBANIA

Unit Transferred From France Finds Conditions More Difficult Than in Flanders.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SOMEWHERE IN ALBANIA, Sept. 30.—Twenty-six Californians who form one of the ambulance sections of the American Field Service, are the latest arrivals in Albania. All of them have driven in France and experienced the intensive warfare that goes on there, and who find the work here much harder though just as interesting.

The shocking condition of most of the roads is as largely responsible as any other factor for making the work more difficult. The country is mountainous and breakdowns are the regular order of the day. As frequently as not wheels come off or break and the ambulances have to be left on mountain roadsides until assistance can reach them.

Many of the "posts" are perched on hillsides, often in plain sight of the Austrians, and their trenches frequently are in view. The Austrians can see the ambulances as they climb up and down. But warfare in this section is not only "gentlemanly," so that the Americans are never fired on, but the transport of munitions up the hills is so difficult that it is never wasted on moving objects and is saved for definite stationary objects.

Air raids are frequent and exciting but the natives seem to get the worst of them. That is principally because the Austrians seem to choose just that time for raiding that the French are over Austrian territory, and none of the aviators ever seems to get hurt.

The Americans had great difficulty at the beginning with the food, water and climate, but are used to them all now. In between their duties they find time to study the native population which in general is ragged and poverty-stricken. Many of them speak English, since they have been in the United States as contract laborers.

AMMUNITION IN CARPET BAG

LONDON, Oct. 6.—When James Dunne, ship's fireman, was tried by courtmartial in Dublin, the evidence showed that he was stopped by a detective on the quays at midnight when carrying a carpet-bag which contained 260 rounds of rifle ammunition and 250 rounds of revolver ammunition. In his room were found a Mauser rifle and 95 Mauser cartridges.

The decision of the court will be made known later.

FRENCH SEND MILITARY MISSION TO GREECE

Will Co-operate With Venezelos Government in Reorganizing the Army.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Sept. 25.—A French military mission is about to arrive to co-operate with the Venizelos Government in a complete reorganization of the army, which for the last three years has been divided against itself, sometimes operating on one side of the European conflict, sometimes with the other side, and sometimes with both sides at the same time.

This strange contradiction in the functions of the army has been due to the divided state of civil rule, with a Constantine Government at Athens and a Venizelos Government at Saloniki, one favorable to the central Powers and the other fighting with the allied forces on the Saloniki front. Now that both Governments are united under Venizelos, one of the first moves is to try and heal this division in the army, and to organize a united, well-disciplined fighting force of about 300,000 men.

The Government has taken the first step in the new organization by calling out the classes of 1916 and 1917. These are the young men, and the two classes will give about 60,000 fighting men. The general mobilization will come later, yielding upward of 200,000, which with the seasoned Venizelos troops, which fought at Saloniki, and the young divisions now being formed, will carry the total well above 300,000 men.

There is no desire to hurry this movement, for the Government is moving with caution, so that the old royalist element of the army may not have the opportunity of arousing a popular agitation against mobilization. This royalist element continues to exercise much influence in the inner circles of the army. But the Government is weeding it out, relieving and retiring all officers not in sympathy with the new regime and adopting drastic measures against those who carry on a secret campaign inside the army. One measures just presented to Parliament by the Minister of Justice authorizes the transportation to distant parts of the country of those suspected of agitating against the Government.

The French military mission will be headed by Gen. Bracquet with a personnel of some 80 officers of all branches. It will be the second time in recent years that the French have organized the Greek army. The effectiveness of the Greek army in the Turkish and Balkan wars was due entirely to the organization carried out by Gen. Eydoux, a French General of Brigade, who molded the crude elements into a fighting force which secured for Greece the best part of the territory taken from Turkey. And yet, after being organized by French military genius, the influence of the late Constantine Government turned a good part of this army against those who had brought it into existence.

With the mobilization accomplished, and the reorganization under French military direction, it is expected that the new army will be ready by spring to co-operate with other Balkan forces in bearing the brunt of the campaigns in the Balkans, thus relieving the allies to that extent and permitting the transfer of allied forces to other fields.

SHIP LINE OWNER BEGAN AS ROWER OF SMALL BOAT

Man Who Went to Argentina as Poor Immigrant, Sells Control in Firm for $7,005,900.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—The sale of the Mihanovich Steamship Line to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. and Dodero Brothers, a local shipping firm, is by far the most important of the many sales of Argentine shipping which have been recorded since the war commenced. The price paid for 75 per cent of the preferred and comon stock was equivalent to $7,005,900, United States gold. The new holding company will have as a base of operations about 350 ships and several shipyards.

The Mihanovich line was the owner of the steamship Presidente Mitre, the capture of which nearly embroiled Argentina and Great Britain in international difficulties two years ago, the problem being solved by the return of the vessel to Buenos Aires by its English capturers.

The founding of Mihanovich line was one of the most dramatic stories of the many men who came to Aregntina poor and made a fortune. Fifty-three years ago, Nicholas Mihanovich, a poor Austrian sailor, landed in Buenos Aires penniless. After making his way to Paraguay and working there awhile, he returned to Buenos Aires homesick to await a chance of working his way home. For some time, he rowed a small boat out to incoming vessels and ferried the passengers ashore. Later, he ran a tug or two and from this beginning he built up the largest navigation company in the Aregentine.

How to Reduce Fat Without Dieting or Exercise

This is the time when fat people should be thinking about reducing their weight and should stop making the fat that is such a burden to them. The best way and the easiest way is the one about which so much has been said and written this past year. This way is the Marmola way. The famous Marmola Prescription has been prepared in tablet form. These little tablets contain nothing but the elements that go to change the best things that produce fat into good, strong blood, nerves, tissues and bone. More than this, these tablets absorb and remove the fat remaining at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week. You must not confuse Marmola Prescription Tablets with harmful patent drugs and hurtful reducing methods. These tablets go into your stomach just like the food you eat. They build up the juices of your digestive organs and correct these juices so that they produce no more fat. They are harmless, yet thousands of men and women all over this land today are of firm figures and normal sizes because of these little tablets. This is why every druggist everywhere carries them in stock and will sell them to you. If your druggist does not have them, or you would rather send 75 cents, the price of a case, to the Marmola Company, 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., they will send them to you at once in a plain package, postage paid.—ADV.

CZAR PLAYS WHIST FOR HOURS

Cards Cost Former Russian Government $8400 a Year.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—According to a Petrograd dispatch, Nicholas Romanoff, the deposed Russian Emperor, passes a great deal of his time in playing whist, of which he is very fond. In pre-war times whist was one of the most popular court diversions in Russia, and the Emperor had a special de luxe card which was made for his exclusive use.

Over 1200 packs of these imperial cards were used every year, and they cost the Russian Government about $7 a pack, being made of the finest linen rags with a watermark of the imperial crown and eagle.

WOMAN RESISTS VACCINATION

The question at Alton is whether Mrs. H. M. Schweppe, president of the Alton Humane Society, who does not believe in vaccination, is going to be vaccinated after exposing herself to smallpox in the line of her duty.

When Mrs. Schweppe took a policeman to the home of Elwood Derrick in Upper Alton to kill Derrick's horse, Derrick had smallpox, but nobody knew it. The diagnosis was made later. The City Physician then advised Mrs. Schweppe to be vaccinated, but she is standing by her antivaccination principles.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

TRENCH INSTRUCTION FOR MISSOURI REGIMENT

Blackboards and Sand Boxes Installed in Camp Doniphan Mess Halls.

CAMP DONIPHAN, Fort Sill, Ok., Oct. 6.—Schools for noncommissioned officers and classes for the special instruction of first class privates have been started in the various companies of the consolidated First and Fifth Missouri regiments. Some company commanders have started these schools as lecture classes, while others have installed blackboards and sand boxes in the company mess halls for the purpose of demonstrating the construction of trenches, revetments, emplacements and other field fortifications. The boxes used for demonstrating field fortifications are 8 feet long and 4 feet wide. They are filled with 12 inches of sand. In trenchments built in the sand, tables are built on a scale of 1 inch for 1 foot.

Attention is also being paid to signal work and particularly to instruction in the general service code. One company is using heligraph instruments and wireless buzzers to advantage in teaching the Morse alphabet, and already certain squads have become so proficient as to permit of their sending field messages. The regiment held its first parade and review on the Camp Doniphan drill grounds yesterday afternoon.

This was the first time the organization has turned out en masse since the consolidation was completed, but the platoons were perfectly aligned as they passed the reviewing point, despite the fact that hundreds of comparatively new men were mixed in with the seasoned soldiers of the First Regiment.

Aviators at the aero observers' schools have taken up fancy flying. Since the arrival of the first planes at the flying field, the flights have been conservative. The machines no longer sail in straight lines and wide, sweeping curves. Dips and dives, sharp maneuvers, loops and the many other stunts are a daily sight. The aviator is being trained to manuver rapidly and master the various innovations.

Capt. de Sieyes and Lieut. Rene Michel of the French flying corps arrived a few days ago to assist the school of officers in training the flyers and observers. Both are experienced airmen. There are only 14 aviators at the school now, but other pilots will arrive with the two additional aero squadrons that are soon to be ordered here.

The 92 cadets now receiving instructions include a number of officers and enlisted men of the Thirty-fifth Division. The capacity of the school is 250 cadets and four aero squadrons. It is expected that the full quota of students and machines will be here within a month.

Conan Doyle Proposal Assailed.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Lord Halifax writes on the ground of Christian principles to protest emphatically against the appeal of Sir A. Conan Doyle and others for legislation to convert separation after a certain time into dissolution of marriage and to dissolve all marriages between English women and German men.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY WHEN CONSTIPATED

Look, mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to consider their own health, consequently their bowels become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grownups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—ADV.

SAYS RUM-FOGGED BRAIN MADE HIM SIGN TRUST DEED

Henry B. Graham Now Seeking More Liberal Allowance From His Estate.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES

Says He Was Very Drunk and Couldn't Remember Cousin Breckinridge Long's Name.

Henry B. Graham, capitalist, whose home is at Hanley and Clayton roads, St. Louis County, yesterday told a Post-Dispatch reporter his reason for wishing to set aside the deed he signed conveying all of his property to John E. Bishop and the American Trust Co. as his trustees. This deed was executed in May, 1916, when, according to Graham, he did not realize what he was doing. The suit to set aside the conveyance alleges that Graham was incapacitated mentally because of his use of stimulants. He now seeks to establish a new trust, with Paul McFarland and Paul V. Janis as trustees.

Graham said that at the time he signed the trust agreement, he was drinking more than two quarts of whisky a day and his mind was befuddled because of these excesses. He said he did not realize the restrictions he had placed on himself until some months later after he had quit drinking to excess. Graham explained that he wished to supplant the agreement of 1916 with one providing a more liberal income to himself and also a dower right for his wife in case of his death.

Values Estate at $700,000.

Graham said his estate was valued at about $700,000 and yields an income of $50,000 a year. Under the existing trust he receives $6000 a year. When Graham executed the deed his debts amounted to about $160,000. These, he says have been reduced to $90,000.

Graham maintains he has reduced his allowance of liquor to "a little sherry and a cocktail now and then," and that he is capable of administering his affairs.

In support of his claim that excessive drinking had incapacitated him when he signed the first trust Graham cited depositions of his daughter, Miss Dorothy M. Graham, of J. W. Bellairs, proprietor of saloons at Clayton and Gumbo, Mo., and Harry Fellows, former chief clerk at the Jefferson Hotel. The defense also has taken depositions to show that Graham's drinking did not mentally impair him. Circuit Judge Jones will hear the case.

Bellairs' deposition says Graham frequently visited the deponent's two cafes. The two also hunted and fished together, Bellairs stated. He testified that he sold gin by the case to Graham. He described it as "baccardo or Santiago rum and awfully strong." There were 12 quarts in a case, and five or six cases in a month were delivered at the Graham home.

Graham Was Heavy Drinker.

Graham's first daily visit to the Clayton cafe would be about 5:50 a. m. "He would take two or three gin rickeys, go home, return and get another drink or two at 8 or 9 in the morning and then again in the afternoon," Bellairs asserted.

Bellairs was asked if he thought that Graham was sound mentally during this period. He answered that the capitalist's memory was very poor.

Bellairs asserts that Graham now confines his drinking of liquor to Spanish sherry wine and beer.

Fellows testified he has known Graham five years, that he frequently drank with Graham in the latter's home and at the Jefferson Hotel. At home Graham would take 15 or 20 drinks during the course of an evening. His memory was very poor as a result, the witness said.

Fellows has been with the First Missouri Regiment as Sergeant-Major since last March.

Miss Dorothy Graham, who is an ultimate beneficiary under both trust arrangements, corroborates the testimony as to her father's drinking. She said she came to St. Louis in April, 1916, because of the illness of her sister Marjorie, and remained at her father's home several weeks. "He seemed to be thoroughly drunk at the time I was there," said Miss Graham.

She once heard Dr. A. C. Leggat say that her father could not live another year if he continued to drink as he had been doing. She said Graham's memory was poor and that once he was unable to remember the first name of his cousin's husband, Breckinridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State.

"His friends," said Miss Graham, "always called him 'Breck,' but my father made the mistake of calling him 'Nick.' Each time Mr. Long laughingly corrected him, but it made no impression on father."

Believes Graham's Mind Sound.

Mrs. Mary F. Taylor of San Diego, Cal., mother of Graham's first wife, Florence Taylor Graham, who died in 1907, is a deponent for the defense. She said she was staying at the Graham home early in 1916, and that while Graham was drinking she did not notice he was mentally inefficient. She said he told her about the deed of trust and that he seemed to understand the transaction.

Under the original trust Graham was to get $500 a month and the balance of the income was to be applied to his debts. After his death the property, the agreement provided, was to go to his three children. The trust was irrevocable. Graham married again for the fourth time after he executed this trust and under its terms his present wife would not share in his estate at his death.

JAPANESE ENVOYS INVITED HERE

The commission will leave Yokohama Oct. 15, arriving in San Francisco about Nov. 1. An effort is being made to have the party stop in St. Louis upon their way East. Instant Hair Stain Better Than Slow "Restorers"

Some folks would have you believe that they have discovered some marvelous combination that will "restore" the color to gray, streaked or faded hair, without staining it. No such preparation has ever been discovered.

There is only one preparation so far as we know that is entirely free from sulphur, lead, silver, mercury, zinc, aniline, coal tar products or their derivatives. That preparation is called "Brownatone." It is so easy and safe to apply that the wonder is that anyone ever uses anything else.

"Browatone" instantly tints the hair to any shade of brown (or black) that may be desired. If the gray shows on your temples or is streaking your hair—if the ends of your hair are lighter than the balance, or if for any reason you wish to stain all or part of your hair—use "Brownatone."

A sample and a booklet will be sent you (from manufacturer's only) upon receipt of 10c. Mention shade desired.

All of the leading drug stores sell "Brownatone." Two sizes, 25c and $1.00.

Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's.

FOUR WAR PRISONERS AIDED IN THEIR ESCAPE BY FLYERS

Found Where They Are Hidden and Carried by to French Lines in Airplanes.

Correspondence of the Asociated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—A spectacular escape of prisoners of war recently occurred on the Saloniki front, where four French soldiers held by the Bulgarians, were carried back to their own lines in airplanes. The four men had been tightly bound, but their captors forgot to search them. At night one of the men succeeded in freeing himself with his pocket knife and liberated his three comrades. The men eluded the sentries and fled into the woods, where for three weeks they hid, living on wild berries.

Finally they sighted a French airplane and succeeded in attracting the attention of the aviator, who made a landing near them. The aviator heard their story, flew away, and a few hours later he came back with three other machines, and all four prisoners were carried back to the French lines.

Jiffy-Jell

For Desserts and Salads
Fruit Flavors in Glass—A Vial in Each Package

A Surprise Dessert
Like Nothing That You Know

Jiffy-Jell is a distinctive dainty, unlike anything else you know. It is made with a rare-grade gelatine, which the owners of Jiffy-Jell make and control. It costs twice as much as the common.

In these days, when even low-grade gelatine is almost unobtainable, this extra grade is very rare indeed.

Real Fruit Creations

Then Jiffy-Jell flavors are made from the fruit itself. Not one is artificial.

They come sealed in glass—a vial in each package—so they keep their fresh-fruit taste. They do not come mixed with the powder.

A wealth of fruit flavor appears in every dessert. We use half a ripe pineapple, for instance, to make the flavor for one pineapple Jiffy-Jell dainty.

So Jiffy-Jell desserts and salads taste like fresh-fruit creations. To make them, you simply add boiling water. When the jell has partly cooled, stir in the bottle of flavor. So the flavor isn't scalded. Then let it jell. When you get our molds, cool the jell in them.

Add fruit, if you wish, nuts, chocolate or whipped cream. But Jiffy-Jell alone with the fruit flavor is a delightful dainty.

For salads, use Lime Jiffy-Jell, with flavor made from lime fruit. It is tart, zestful and green. Mix the jell with your salad, or mix your salad into the jell before cooling.

Make Mint Jiffy-Jell from mint flavor—made from fresh mint leaves. It makes a garnish jell with a wealth of flavor, for cold meats, lambs, etc.

Add Boiling Water
Then the Flavor
Let It Cool

The results will amaze you. They mean quick desserts which taste like crushed fruit dainties. They mean wonderful salads and garnishes. All at your instant command and very economical. One package of Jiffy-Jell serves a big family.

When you know Jiffy-Jell, a thousand meals will be made more delightful by it.

Dear Madam:
I have spent 18 years in learning how to make a dessert like Jiffy-Jell. Now it is delighting millions, and I want you to enjoy it.

It means six joyous meals for you, and six molds which will last a lifetime. Then you will know. Don't let this chance go by.

SAFE ROBBERS ROUTED BY AMMONIA FUMES

Ferguson Postmaster Had Placed Bottle in Strongbox, as Directed by Department.

Two robbers who blew the safe of the Postoffice at Ferguson, St. Louis County, at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, were routed by ammonia fumes. Acting on advice recently sent to all Postmasters by the Postoffice Department at Washington, Edward Pidgeon, the Postmaster, had placed two bottles of ammonia between the inner and outer doors of the safe.

When an attempt was made to blow the safe with nitroglycerin the bottles broke and the fumes caused the robbers to flee.

Residents who heard the explosion chased the robbers, but they got away. A third man who was waiting for the robbers with an automobile was arrested. He said he was Milton Jones of 3949 Garfield avenue, a service car owners. He denied complicity in the robbery and declared two men who engaged him as a driver held revolvers to his head and forced him to drive them to Ferguson. Nothing was taken from the safe.

20-BILLION-DOLLAR CONGRESS ENDS ITS WAR SESSION

All Measures Are Signed by the President and the Final Meeting of Both House and Senate Are Marked by Debate on Alleged Disloyalty of Members.

ATTEMPT MADE TO SING 'AMERICA'

Two Classes in the Singing, With Those Who Are Off Key and Those Who Do Not Remember the Words of the Song Predominating

WASHINGTON, Oct 6.—In the midst of a day's thrilling debate on alleged disloyalty of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, the extraordinary session of the $20,000,000,000 Congress, which began April 2, and generally regarded as the most momentous in American history, was adjourned sine die at 3 p. m. today. Vehement criticism of the Wisconsin Senator and his own defense, occupying virtually the entire day, marked the close of the war session. President Wilson was at the Capitol.

The usual eleventh hour grist of legislation was put through following six months of important war action, and tonight most of the members who had remained for the final day were en route home to await the call of the next session, Dec. 3.

With galleries crowded to their capacity, the Senate chamber was the scene of five hours' stirring discussion of Senator La Follette's attitude, but in the House there was little to mark the occasion except submission of a committee report mildly censuring Representative Heflin of Alabama for criticising fellow members in connection with Count von Bernstorff's request to Berlin to furnish funds to influence Congress.

Last-Moment Legislation.

During interruption of the day's debate Congress found time to dispose of a few last-moment matters, with President Wilson in attendance during the first hour in his room near the Senate chamber, signing bills. Secretaries Lansing and Redfield and Postmaster-General Burleson accompanied the President, into whose room floated murmurs of the La Follette criticism from the Senate floor.

Among the last acts of Congress were confirmation in open session of many nominations hastily sent in by the President, including those of Major-Generals Pershing and Bliss to be Generals. A score of minor bills were also passed by both houses, rushed through engrossing and to the President's pen.

The usual adjournment scenes were re-enacted, with addresses by Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark and resolution of courtesy to the presiding officers, who both urged the members to speak at home for the new Liberty loan. In his address, Vice President Marshall, who departed tonight for Phoenix, Ariz., said:

"I think it is my duty, whenever I may be called on to speak, to voice my belief in the justness and necessity of this war."

Singers Quit on "America."

Seldom has there been a duller closing of the House. Contrary to custom, there was only little singing, but in that there were two classes. those who were off key and those who did not remember the words of the songs, predominated. After two attempts at "In the Sweet Bye and Bye" and "America" the singers quit.

A great cheer arose when Speaker Clark appeared at the hour set for adjournment, and it was apparent that the Representatives were impatient, but they listened attentively to the Speaker's closing remarks. After congratulating the members on the ending of the session, the Speaker said that, so far as he had been able to observe, temporarily politics had been abolished in the House, and added that he thought that every member had given the utmost of patriotism to his service.

Adoption of the report on the Heflin charges in the House came quickly after Heflin demanded that he be heard and added the investigating committee to the long list of those whom he charges with having misquoted him. The list now includes the official stenographers. There was laughter when Representative Barnhart said the committee would leave it to the House to decide whether Mr. Heflin or the newspaper men had stated the facts regarding his interview, and applause on the adoption of the report.

WORK OF CONGRESS IS HIGHLY PRAISED BY THE PRESIDENT

Declares It Has Left No Doubt as to Spirit and Determination of the Country.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—President Wilson today highly praised the work of Congress and called attention to some of its achievements.

"The Sixty-fifth Congress, now adjourning," he said in a statement, "deserves the gratitude and appreciation of a people whose will and purpose I believe it has faithfully expressed. One cannot examine the records of its action without being impressed by its completeness, its courage and its full comprehension of a great task.

"The needs of the army and navy have been met in a way that arouses the effectiveness of American arms, and the war-making branches of the Government have been abundantly equipped with the powers that were necessary to make the action of the nation effective.

"I believe that it has also in equal degree, and, as far as possible in the face of war, safeguarded the rights of the people and kept in mind the consideration of social justice so often obscured in the hasty readjustments of such a crisis.

"It seems to me that the work of this remarkable session has not only been done thoroughly, but that it has also been done with the utmost dispatch possible in the circumstances or consistent with a full consideration of the exceedingly critical matters dealt with. Best of all, it has left no doubt as to the spirit and determination of the country, but has affirmed them as loyally and as emphatically as our fine soldiers will affirm them on the firing line."

CAPTURED GERMAN DECLARES KAISER IS A BROKEN MAN

Professor Ttaken in Drive Says Berlin Will Yield Alsace-Lorraine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Philip Gibbs cables the New York Times from army hadquarters in Belgium that a maimed German professor captured in the last Ypres drive, described the British artillery fire as to terrific for words. This professor thinks it will not b long before Germany makes a great bid for peace by offering to give up Belgium. By midwinter, he says, she will yield Alsace-Lorraine and Russia will remain as before the war, except for an autonomous Poland. It aly will have what she shahas captured and German will get back some of her colonies, the thinks. He laughed when indemnity was mentioned and said "Germany is bankrupt."

He described the German Emperor as a broken man and all for peace, the Crown Prince posing as the head of the military party, but being unpopular. As soon as the German people kney that the submarine threat had failed, he said they would demand that the war stop at once.

The lost ship was an auxiliary, not one of the regular navy list, and was on mine-sweeping work when lost. The report she foundered is taken here to mean she was lost in rough weather.

FRISCO ROAD WILL REFUND $1,075,000 EXCESS CHARGES

Settlement Ends Suit Over Missouri Freight and Passenger Rate Law.

LITIGATION BEGUN IN 1905

Action Out of Court Expected to Influence Other Roads Which Have Been Sued.

A compromise has been effected between the Frisco Railroad and the claimants for excess passenger and freight charges paid between 1905 adn 1913, while the 2-cent passenger fare and maximum freight rate laws were in suspension because of injunctions issued by the Federal court. The Frisco has consented to pay claims amounting to $1,075,000 and the claimants to waive accrued interest and a small proportion of the principal.

As a consequence of this agreement Thomas T. Fauntleroy, special master in the Frisco case, has dismissed the suits which were pending for the collection of these claims. Attorneys for the claimants said yesterday they believed the decision of the Frisco to settle out of court would lead to similar action by other railroads against which similar suits are pending.

The total overcharges made by these railroads, according to a statement of the Attorney General in 1914, will approximate $10,000,000 to $20,000,000.

About 600 claimants, of whom 125 are in St. Louis, will benefit by the Frisco refund. The individual claims range from $50 to $111,000.

Settlement Arranged.

The settlement was arranged with the reorganization managers of the Frisco in New York by a committee representing all the claimants, and was consummated Thursday mroning when the refund, consisting of cash and stocks and bonds in the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad (reorganized Frisco system), of par value, was turned over to this committee in the office of W. F. Evans, general solicitor of tho railroad.

The refund of this money marks the beginning of the end of one of the hardest fights on railroad rates waged in the United States, according to one of the attorneys for the claimants, in the duration of which the railroads employed every technicality of the law to maintain their contention that the rates as prescribed by the Legislature were confiscatory.

Litigation was started in 1905, when the Legislature passed the maximum freight and passenger rate acts, providing a schedule of maximum freight and passenger charges. The railroads at once brought an injunction suit to restrain the Attorney-General, the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner and the shippers from enforcing the statutory basis fixed in the law and obtained an injunction in the United States Circuit Court at Kansas City.

State Is Sustained.

From that time the litigation dragged through the courts and wound its way to the United States Supreme Court, which, in 1913, sustained the contention of the State and the shippers, holding that the statutory rates were not consfiscatory.

Then the question arose as to how the charges in excess of the rates fixed by the Legislature, made from 1905 to 1913 by the railroads, on the basis of their old rate, should be disposed of. The railroads contended the money belonged to them, as they operated during this period under the protection of the Federal Court injunction granted at Kansas City, but attorneys for the claimants, assisted by Lee B. Ewing of Nevada, Mo., who represented a claim for the State, took a negative view and contested the contention of the railroads. This litigation also waxed warm until four months ago, when negotiations were begun by the Frisco with the committee representing the shippers.

Other Roads Involved.

The other railroads, against which similar suits are pending, involving these rates, are the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; Kansas City Southern and Chicago & Alton, at Kansas City; the Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain, Missouri, Kansas & Texas and Wabash at St. Louis, and against the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific at Chicago.

Some of these roads have been in the hands of receivers, and one of their contentions is that they are not liable for acts of management before they took charge. This was a contention of the Frisco, and since the latter company has given up the fight, attorneys for the claimants believe the others will make settlements.

The attorneys who represented the claimants are Clifford B. Allen, Thomas L. Phillips, Joseph T. Davis and Campbell Cummings. The railroad was represented by E. T. Miller and C. F. Evans.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul settled in full for the same class of claims, under the same litigation, two years ago.

FIRE DESTROYS 5-STORY GRAIN ELEVATOR IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Flames Said to Have Broken Out Simultaneously in Several Parts of Structure.

A fire said to have broken out in several places simultaneously at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon destroyed the Acme Elevator Co's five-story grain elevator, First street and St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. The loss was estimated at $200,000, of which $35,000 was accounted to the building and the rest to alfalfa meal, oats and wheat stored in its bins.

All the employes departed at noon except Dan Brown, a negro watchman. He said that at 4:30 o'colck he saw flames shoot from several places at once on the first floor. They spread rapidly.

Three cars loaded with oats were standing on a railroad track within the building. Trainmen ran in a switch engine and saved one car, but the others were burned.

THREE KILLED IN DRAFT FIGHT

Deputy and Two Mexican Slackers Slain; Their Father Wounded.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 6.—Three men are dead and another is wounded probably fatally as the result of an effort by peace officers to arrest two young members of the Loso family, Mexican tenants on a farm in Live Oak County, for alleged evasion of the selective draft law, according to information received here tonight. The dead are two Loso boys and William James, a Deputy Sheriff.

Serapio Loso, father of the boys, was shot late yesterday by Sheriff Charles L. Tullis in a fight at the Loso home, in which the Sheriff also killed one of the Loso boys. Today two of the brothers arrived in Live Oak, and when an attempt was made to arrest the one wanted, the other. who lived at Corpus Christi, reached for a weapon, according to the Sheriff, and was shot by Deputy Sheriff James. Before he died the wounded man shot and killed James. The other Loso boy was arrested and put in jail.

NEGROES' CASE IS IN JURY'S HANDS; WHITES ARE NEXT

East Side Race Riot Trials Will Enter on New Phase This Week.

VERDICT TODAY POSSIBLE

Prosecutor Appeals to Belleville Jury to Vindicate Honor of Illinois.

The case of the 13 East St. Louis negroes charged with the murder of Detective-Sergeant Coppedge on the night of July 1 went to the jury in the Belleville Circuit Court at 11:25 last night. Judge Crow went home after delivering his charge to the jury, and said he would be ready to receive a verdict at any time today when the jury might reach an agreement.

The trials of the white men indicted for the East St. Louis riot of July 2, in which more than 40 negroes were slaughtered, will begin this week. Witnesses against Leroy Davis, a switchman, charged with rioting and conspiracy, have been summoned to appear tomorrow. Judge Crow will hear these cases, and visiting Judges will hear the other cases on Judge Crow's regular docket. More than 100 white men are under indictment, and several white women who were arrested, and who turned State's evidence, will be among the witnesses against them.

Assistant Attorney-General Middlekauf, in his final argument for the prosecution, decraled that the condition of anarchy in East St. Louis had disgraced the State of Illinois, and that the jury must proclaim to the world whetther anarchy or law enforcement is to prevail in St. Clar County.

Instructions of the Court.

The Court, in instructing the jury, said that if conspiracy were proven, it was not cessary to prove that any of the defendants individually fired the shot that killed Coppedge. It was sufficient, se said, to show that the defendants aided or advised in a consupirary whch led to the gathering at Tenth street and Bond avenue, from which the shots were fired.

Even if there was no specific idea orointent of committing homicide, the Judge said, the defendants were guilty of murder if they agreed and conspired to cause a riot and tumult, and in such a case the act of one was the act of all. On the other hand, if a conspiracy were not proven, then the mere fact of an unlawful or disorderly act would not make an individual guilty or murder. The presumption of innocence, which exists until guilt is proven, was clearly set forth.

The lawyers for the defense said they considered the instructions favorable to the accused men.

It appeared likely last night, both from the testimony and from the arguments, that the jury would have to make considerable distinction in its treatment of the different defendants. The prosecution centered its attack on four men, Othaniel Peoples, Marshall Alexander, George Roberts and Dee Smotherman, whom it charges with having been the leaders of the band of negroes which, it charges, planned violence against white people and fired on a police automobile, killing two city detectives.

Strong Case Against Bundy.

On the other hand, there has been little individual evidence against some of the others, Guy Moore and Tom Tackett in particular, and it was believed that these two stood the best chance of acquittal or leniency from the jury.

There has been much comment on the fact that the prosecution made a stronger case against Leroy N. Bundy, negro dentist and politician, than it made against any of the negroes on trial. Bundy has been under arrest in Cleveland since Aug. 13, but the prosecuting authorities have not succeeded in bringing him back for trial. Negro organizations wielding political influence have been at work in his behalf, to prevent the granting of the request made by the State of Illinois on the Governor of Ohio for requsition papers. Recently the matter is said to have been delayed by the absence of the Ohio Governor on his honeymoon journey.

Another man against whom damaging testimony was given, who has not been brought to trial, is James Bayles, negro saloon proprietor. A capias for his arrest has been issued. but he has not been found.

Armed Gathering Described.

Testimony was given that rifles and shotguns were stored in Bundy's home and in Bayles' saloon, and that Bundy's red automobile and Bayles' black car were driven around the neighborhood on July 1. The attorneys for the prosecution charged, in their speeches, that these cars were used by their owners in distributing the stored-up weapons, in furtherance of a conspiracy for violence against white people.

James Farmer, special prosecutor, and State's Attorney Schaumleffel, in their talks for the prosecution, ridiculed the testimony for the defense. which consisted wholly of individual alibis for all the defendants. They called attention to the fact that the

U. S. SHIFT TO A WAR BASIS UNPRECEDENTED

In 6 Months Industries Have Been Mobilized and 1,000,000 Citizens Made Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The transition in America from conditions of peace to those of war, from the standpoint of rapidity and thoroughness, is without precedence in the history of democracies, says a statement issued tonight by the Committee on Public Information, detailing the nation's achievements since the declaration of war six months ago.

"American industry and the people of the entire nation," the statement says, "answered speedily and efficiently the call to arms. Six months from the day war was declared finds the United States mobilized for the supreme task ahead."

Congress, the committee's resume says, has enacted more important legislation during the session ending today than in any preceding session in history.

Referring to the War Department, the committee notes that without accident or disaster, a large expeditionary force has been sent to France. More than a million drafted men and national guardsmen are under training, and the army has 80,000 trained officers, instead of 20,000, six months ago.

"The general staff," says the statement, "is modernizing the entire army, unit by unit, in addition to fitting out the Pershing expedition along entirely new lines.

Liberty Motor Stands All Tests.

"Development of the Liberty motor, which has withstood every aviation engine test, is one of the major achievements of the War Department and the Aircraft Production Board. This was followed by the designing of a standard military truck."

Referring to the navy, the statement says there are more than three times as many men and nearly three times as many vessels in service as when war was declared.

"Hundreds of vessels," the statement continues, "of various types, yachts and fast motor boats have been taken over and transformed into patrol boats, submarine chasers, mine sweepers and the various types needed for anti-submarine warfare, coast defense and other purposes.

"The Atlantic fleet comprises twice as many vessels as in peace times. Every battleship and cruiser that was in reserve has been fully manned and commissioned. Every warship is now a training school for the instruction of men in gunnery and engineering, and notable results have been achieved, especially in practice with guns of the smaller calibers used in fighting submarines.

"The largest ship construction program in history is being carried out by the navy, comprising hundreds of vessels of various types, from superdreadnoughts to submarine chasers. Months ago contracts were let for every destroyer the American yards could build and a considerable extension of shipbuilding facilities has been arranged to build a large additional number. New records in construction are being made.

Navy Yards Enlarged.

"Navy yards have been enlarged, immense foundries, machine shops and warehouses erected. Work is being pushed on drydocks, shipways and piers. A big projectile plant is being erected at Charleston, W. Va., and a $1,000,000 aircraft factory at Philadelphia."

The Shipping Board has under construction and contemplation a total tonnage of nearly 11,000,000 deadweight capacity, requiring a total authorization of about $1,799,000,000.

The Treasury Department will have disposed of more than $15,000,000,000 of Government securities within a few months when the second Liberty Loan campaign is completed.

Each department has contributed efficiently to the war program in numerous ways, says the statement.

The Agricultural Department and Food Administration have done effective work to increase the food supply, and the Fuel Administration to encourage proper production and distribution.

One of the accomplishments of the Council of National Defense and its Advisory Committee pointed to, is the mobilization of 262,000 miles of railroads and of wire communication, and the systematic scheme of purchasing, which the statement says, has resulted in greateconomies. The Evports Administration is now engaged in conserving the food supply of this country and regulating its export so that the products of America will not reach her enemies. The expansion of the Red Cross also is noted as one of the country's most remarkable achievements.

PERU HANDS PASSPORTS TO THE GERMAN MINISTER

Dr. Perl Expected to Go to Chile After Turning Legation Over to Spanish Minister.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 6.—The Peruvian Government has handed his passports to Dr. Perl, the German Minister.

It was stated that after turning the German legation over to the Spanish Minister, Dr. Perl would proceed to Chile.

The decision reached last night by the Peruvian Congress to sever diplomatic relations between Peru and Germany came after a sensational debate. The vote was 105 to 6.

The Peruvian Government on Sept. 26 instructed its Minister at Berlin to present to the German Government a demand that satisfaction be given within eight days for the sinking of the Peruvian bark Lorton. It was added that if the demand was not met diplomatic relations would be broken.

The Lorton was sunk inside Spanish territorial waters last February by a German submarine. Declaring that the sinking was unjustifiable, Peru insisted that Germany should pay an indemnity. The German Government offered to submit the case to a prize court.

A dispatch from Lima on Oct. 4 said the Peruvian Government had discovered that A. von der Heyde, the Minister to Germany, had not delivered to the German Foreign Office the ultimatum demanding satisfaction within eight days for the sinking of the Lorton. The Minister was reprimanded by his Govenemnt and was ordered to make the presentation immediately.

SCHUMANN-HEINK SINGS FOR MEN AT CAMP FUNSTON

Invites Overflow Crowd Standing Outside to Come In and Sit on Platform.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Oct. 6.—The big Knights of Columbus building was filled to overflowing. Hundreds of boys in olive drab and overalls pressed as closely to the windows as possible and the entrance in front was crowded. Inside everything was quiet. A short heavy set woman, with gray hair and a ruddy complexion, her face wreathed in smiles, walked out to the platform.

"My boys, Oh, my boys," she exclaimed as she held out her arms. Slowly she drew them in again, clasped her hands above her breast and let her head fall on them, while a tear trickled down each cheek.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, concert singer, mother, was talking about all her boys and sons-in-law and brothers who are in the army and navy of America and Germany.

But Schumann-Heink doesn't remain sad long. Raising her head with a little jerk and a smile, she looked out of the windows and saw the crowd standing outside. The big platform was practically empty, only the members of her party being seated there.

"Boys, come in while your mamma sings," she called to them. And walking to a side door, she opened it and ushered in the soldier boys, overalls, olive drab, hobnailed shoes, dusty, sooty faces and all, and had them sit on the stage during the program.

Edith Evans, pianist, began to play softly "Danny Boy," an old forgotten Irish ballad, one of Schumann-Heink's favorites.

The rich, clear notes of the concert singer seemed to glow from her throat as she held out her arms to the boys in the audience.

"Oh, Danny boy, the pipes, the pipes are calling.
It's you, it's you must go and I must bide, but come ye back when roses all are falling:
O'er the valleys hushed and white with snow,
I'll be there in sunshine or in shadow, oh, Danny boy, I love you so."

LA FOLLETTE IN 3-HOUR SPEECH DEFENDS COURSE

Does Not Mention St. Paul Address Which Resulted in Petitions for Expulsion, but Tells Senate He Will Not Change His Policy.

Critics Reply to Wisconsin Senator, Robinson Urging Him to Declare for Germany or America.

Member Assails Statement in Speech Before Nonpartisan League That Lusitania Was Munition Ship.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin made a three-hour speech in the Senate today in defense of his criticism of war questions. Without mentioning his recent address before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul, for investigation of which arrangements were completed today by a Senate subcommtttee, or naming any of his critics, he read a carefully prepared defense of his course and declared his intention to follow it in the future. He was interrupted only once and was applauded by the galleries when he closed.

Senators Kellogg of Minnesota and Fall of New Mexico, Republicans, and Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat, replied with criticisms of Senator La Follette's public statements. They denounced what they termed his unpatriotic stand, Senator Robinson asserting that if he held such opinions he would seek a place in the German Bundesrat. Statements accredited to the Wisconsin member in his St. Paul speech were flatly contradicted, especially that regarding former Secretary Bryan's knowledge of ammunition being on the Lusitania before she sailed on her fated voyage.

Tries to Answer Critics.

Apparently stung by the criticism, Senator La Follette made an unsuccessful effort to get time for a response. He succeeded, however, in stating that he wished to make known authority for his declaration regarding the Lusitania and tonight announced he would issue a public statement tomorrow. On Monday the Senate privileges and elections investigating sub-committee will meet to investigate his St. Paul speech, including the Lusitania incident.

Facing in turn the Republican and Democratic sides and the vice president's rostrum, he held up a mass of clippings, too bulky to quote, which he had printed in the Congressional Record instead. Once he stopped as a rebuke to a man talking at a gallery door. In the midst of a peroration as the interruption annoyed him he turned toward the gallery and waited until Vice President Marshall admonished the Sergeant-at-Arms to restore order. Again, a Senator talking at the lobby doors disturbed him and he paused. La Follette wanted the complete attention of the Senate and demanded it.

Right of free speech and of discussion of public questions was emphasized by Senator La Follette, while Senators criticising him declared he transcended the constitutional guarantees in that respect. Senator Kellogg of Minnesota bitterly denounced as a "slander on the intelligence, honor and patriotism of the country" the alleged declaration of La Follette in St. Paul that the nation went to war to maintain a technical right of Americans to travel on munition-laden vessels in behalf of muniton makers' interest in the war. Senator Robinson said Senator La Follette had lent himself to the promotion of the Kaiser's ideas and desires and demanded that the Wisconsin Senator make known whether he stood with Germany or America."

Arraigned by Robinson.

"Do not any of you deceive yourselves," said Senator Robinson, "with the theory that you can organize the disgruntled, semi-disloyal elements of the United States and run for the presidency on a platform of disloyalty. It can't be done. You can't even start the running, much less win. That flag stands for justice, justice at home and liberty abroad. That flag never was lifted in a nobler cause than in the present conflict with Germany."

Senator Fall said that utterances which before the war would be proper, in his opinion now were unjustifiable. He said he always had believed the Wisconsin Senator to be sincere, although he had not always agreed with him, but in the Senator's present attitude he believed him to be in error.

The country, Senator Kellogg declared, owes it to the allies and to history, to place its disapproval be-

BRITISH CAPTURE MORE PRISONERS; ARTILLERY ACTIVE

Field Marshal Haig Reports That Germans Attempted No Counter Attacks.

GERMANS DRAW IN LINES

British Fire Forces Withdrawal of Some Exposed Defensive Positions.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Field Marshal Haig's report tonight from headquarters in France says that the artillery was active all day along the whole battle front, but no counter-attacks were attempted. An additional [illegible] prisoners were taken in the last 24 hours.

Germans Forced to Withdraw Defense Line Short Distance.

By Associated Press.

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 6.—At some places in the new line established by the British attack in Flanders the Germans were reported today to be in such exposed positions that they had pulled back their defenses a short distance.

British patrols found the forward shell hole defenses in one section abandoned.

Late details confirm earlier reports that the Germans did not fight well in most sections. In many places they ran. The total prisoners who surrendered is great. On one sector of the Aztec front alone they amounted to more than 2000. The Australians captured seven officers, including a battalion commander, in one shell hole and the Anzacs also took two other battalion leaders. At a point not far from the Ypres-Roulers railway an Australian officer single-handed took 31 Germans from a blockhouse.

In a sector considerably to the north of Reutel, the Australians and other British troops who had fought together before made a gala occasion of the attack. By special request these veterans were allowed to go side by side and after remarkably successful rush forward to their objectives they were seen exchanging souvenirs. One body of the men went through the German barrage but luckily suffered few casualties.

The tanks again did well during the fighting at various points. One of these monsters was the first arrival in the village of Reutel. When it was followed in by some infantry it trundled back to other work. The British later withdrew their posts from the ruined hamlet to more favorable ground just behind it. On the extreme left of the British line "tanks" assisted in taking several redoubts which had been giving trouble with their machine guns.

German Official.

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 6.—The report from general headquarters tonight reads:

"On the western front rainy weather prevailed and there was nothing of importance. In the east local engagements occurred near the Sereth."

The statement issued in the afternoon said:

"In the fighting district of the Flanders front a destructive artillery fire, which was powerful throughout the day increased in the evening to waves of drumfire, between Poelcapelle and Gheluvelt. There was no English infantry attack of importance and advancing reconnoitering detachments were repulsed.

"Northeast of Soissons artillery activity increased in intensity and method. Northeast of Rheims a French attack failed. On both banks of the Meuse our storming troops penetrated enemy positions at Malancourt, Bethincourt, Forges, Samogneux and Bezonvaux and everywhere returned with prisoners."

French Official.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The war office announcement tonight reads:

"The two artilleries were quite active in the region of Braye-En-Loannois and on the right bank of the Meuse, north of the Bois de Chaume. In the Vosges we carried out a surprise attack in the neighborhood of Sesonnes."

U. S. DESTROYER BOMBS U-BOAT AND OIL APPEARS

Report of Engagement Indicates Victory Without Declaring Submarine Was Sunk

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—In making public today an account of action between an American destroyer in European waters and a German submarine, the Navy Department avoided any claim that the U-boat had been destroyed, although all indications pointed to that result. The report on which the department's statement was founded was made by Vice Admiral Sims, in command of American destroyers in the war zone, indicating his belief that a victory had been scored, but Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations, pointed out that the experience of Great Britain and France in similar cases made it unwise to place too much confidence in circumstantial evidence.

The report showed the efficiency and skill of the destroyer crew and drew a graphic picture of the pursuit of the submarine with shell fire and depth bombs. Admiral Benson said that in this and other incidents which will be made public when military reasons permit, there is every reason to believe that the underwater craft was destroyed. He added, however, that the department would not make claims which could not be sustained beyond doubt.

Oil Used to End Pursuit.

The allied Powers have found by experience that the German submarine commanders attempt to create the impression on the surface that their craft have been destroyed and thus terminate the pursuit. There have been cases where destroyers have dropped depth bombs and oil has com eup, indicating a hit. The assumption is that the oil was released to divert attention while the U-boat crept away.

There are other cases where submarines have dropped to the bottom in shallow water and rested there for a day or two, waiting for her microphones to show that no destroyer lurked in that vicinty before she came up. Admiral Benson made it clear that no Government has definite knowledge of the number of German submarines or the rate of construction. Conclusions are arrived at from various factors and estimates based on these, he said, but there is nothing to indicate clearly what Germany is doing to increase her undersea fleet. Reports to all admiralties, however, agree that Germany has larger U-boats than those now in use, either already afloat ofr coming forward. He gave no figures of the size indicated.

The Navy Department statement follows:

"The Secretary of the Navy authorizes the publication of this account of an engagement between an American destroyer and an enemy submarine:

"This is one of a number of encounters of a more or less similar nature, the details of which have been made public in this manner as soon as possible.

"A feature of interest attaches to this engagement because it was the occasion of a letter of appreciation from the British Admiralty which expressed admiration for the efficient and seamanship-like conduct of the officers and crew of the American destroyer.)

"For military reasons the name of the destroyer and the date and the location of the action are withheld.

U-Boat Throws Water Into Air.

"The following account of the engagement was prepared from the complete report received by the Navy Department:

"The American destroyer first sighted the submarine in the early morning of a clear day. The sea was entirely calm, with hardly a ripple of foam. The submarine was running submerged with only her periscope showing. A large number of merchant ships were in sight. The U-boat was less than a mile off the port beam of the destroyer and following a parallel course in an opposite direction when the periscope was discovered. It was throwing up a column of water several feet in height, so like a nearly spent torpedo that the oficer of the deck thought for a moment that this was what it was.

"The next instant the destroyer changed courses sharply to the left and headed for the U-boat at full speed. At the same time the forward guns opened fire on the periscope. The commanding officer ordered a course steered that would bring the destroyer across the wake of the U-boat a little to the rear of the periscope.

Guns Turned on Periscope.

"As the destroyer dashed across the line of bubbles a depth charge was dropped and a column of clear water shot 30 feet into the air. The destroyer turned to the right, swiftly, circling and her starboard guns opened on the periscope as she came around to cross the U-boat's wake again. Again a column of clear water showed that the depth charge had not reached its mark.

"Another quick turn to the right brought the starboard guns to bear, but this time the destroyer turned so sharply that she was able to come down for the third attack in the wake of the submarine. The third depth charge brought up a column of clear water and the destroyer wheeled once more, this time to the left, and all the port guns opened up but without visible result.

"The last time the destroyer came down to the attack exactly in the wake of the U-boat and ceased firing. As she neared the end of the line of bubbles the fourth depth charge was let go and there followed a widespread boiling of the surface of the sea, large bubbles and at last a heavy film of oil.

"The destroyer spent some time looking for further traces of the U-boat, but none was found. She then proceeded on her course. The engagement lasted 22 minutes."

Government Cuts Insurance on American Steamers 25 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.

THE effectiveness of methods employed in fighting submarines resulted today in a reduction of approximately 25 per cent in the premiums charged by the Government's War Risk Insurance Bureau on all American steamers traversing the war zone.

The reduction, as announced by the Treasury Department, is from 6½ per cent to 5 per cent of the value.

"This reduction," the announcement says, "is made because of the corresponding decrease in the risks."

Announcement of the reduction was made in this cryptic statement by the Treasury Department:

"The Secretary of the Treasury today announced that the Bureau of War Risk Insurance has reduced its rates on all American steamers and cargoes traversing the war zone from 6½ per cent to 5 per cent.

"This reduction is made because of the corresponding decrease in the risks."

Determination of the war risk premium is based upon many factors, but primarily on the number of vessels traversing the war zone and the number of sinkings. The effectiveness of methods used in combatting submarines also enters largely into consideration.

NEGRO RIOT CASE IN EAST ST. LOUIS IN JURY'S HANDS

alibi witnesses were mostly members of the accused men's families, and asked how they could remember where the men were on a particular night more than three months ago. To this, the defense's lawyers made the reply that the occurrences of the first two days of July were firmly fixed in the negroes' memories.

L. P. Zerweck, for the defense, attacked the State's star witness, Edward Wilson, a negro, who identified all the defendants, except one, as having been in an armed crowd which he saw at Fifteenth street and Piggott avenue on the night of the killings. The one he did not identify was Lester Fowler, against whom, however, there was other testimony.

State Charges Conspiracy.

The prosecution laid stress on the charge of conspiracy, which would involve all those present in the guilt of the killings. It urged that conspiracy was proven by the fact that three white men were fired on and driven from the neighborhood an hour before the killing of the detectives, and that there was an unusual activity of negroes, through the evening, in moving about the streets, as testified by white neighbors. The storing of weapons and their alleged distribution were also dwelt on in the prosecution's arguments.

The defendants are Othaniel Peoples, Albert Hughes, Bud Townsend, Lester Fowler, Tom Tackett, Guy Mooore, William Palmer, Dee Smotherman, George Roberts, Horace Thomas, Fayette Parker, Marshall Alexander and Charles Foster. All live in the neighborhood bounded by Fourteenth and Nineteenth streets and Market and Piggott avenues. It is a notable fact that in the riot of July 2 the houses in this neighborhood were not burned. The negroes there were known to be armed, and the white rioters mostly preferred to stay in other sections and to attack negroes who were not even suspected of having had any part in the killing of the detectives.

SCHUMAN-HEINK SINGS FOR MEN AT CAMP FUNSTON

the auditorium was Ferdinand C. Schumann, private, headquarters company, 340th Field Artillery, and the last son of Schumann-Heink's to enter the army. It was he she was singing to, Ferdie, her favorite son. The singer continued:

"But when ye come, and all the flowers are dying,
And I am dead as dead I may be,
Ye'll come and find the place where I am lying,
And kneel and say an ave there for me.
And I shall hear, tho' soft you tread above me,
And all my grief will warmer, sweeter be,
For you will bend and tell me that you love me,
And I shall sleep in peace until you come to me."

Such a greeting as Schumann-Heink seldom before heard rang out. Time after time she was called back and time after time she responded to the calling of "her boys."

Mme. Schumann-Heink competed against the Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants and Madame won. Two electric score boards were placed in different parts of the camp and the plays were given to the soldiers straight from the Chicago ball park. The score boards did their share of the business, but not to compare with the crowd that wanted to hear the concert singer, and she answered 14 encores.

STEAMER SUNK IN COLLISION

One Man Dead, Two Women and Cook Reported Missing.

A PACIFIC PORT, Oct. 6.—The steamer Tolo and tug Magic collided in a dense fog late yesterday near here, the Tolo being sunk. The steamer H. B. Kennedy picked up the Tolo's 30 passengers and crew of eight. An unidentified man lost his life and two women and the cook of the Tolo are missing. The Magic was not seriously damaged.

A raft loaded with women and children was put off from the sinking Tolo by the crew. Other passengers, including women and children, leaped overboard and were picked up by the Kennedy. Capt. Gobenson of the Tolo rescued a woman and two children by kicking a window from the cabin of the sinking vessel and pulling them through it to safety.

Actual Service Gives Leadership To

Firestone

SUPER CORD TIRES

WITH numerous makes of cord tires contesting, the past year has witnessed the sharpest rivalry for Tire Supremacy that motordom has ever known.

In this contest the Firestone Super Cord rightly came into its acknowledged leadership, rightly because of the construction which is designed to produce strength, durability and flexible action.

The body of the Firestone Super Cord Tire is built of walls of stout cord, each cord imbedded in pure gum, no two cords ever touching to cause friction. The cushion (which is under the tread to absorb shocks and protect the inner body) is a thick layer of pure gum; the tread is tough and thick. The beads which hold the tire in the rim are specially reinforced. The sidewall is also reinforced giving extra strength against rim-cut and raising the bending point of the tire safely high. More mileage at less cost. Users of Firestone Cord Tires are getting the highest average mileage enjoyed by car owners.

That motorists find extra values in Firestone Tires is proved by the fact that our sales increased 72 per cent this year up to September 1st. Our total business this year will exceed $60,000,000.

Senator La Follette, In 3-Hour Speech In the Senate, Defends His Course

Without Mentioning St. Paul Address Which Resulted In Petitions for Expulsion He Says He Will Not Change Policy.

fore the world of the "slanderous accusations" made by Senator La Follette in his St. Paul speech. He denied the statement attributed to La Follette that President Wilson had been warned by Secretary Bryan before the Lusitania sailed that 6,000,000 rounds of ammunition besides explosives were on board and that the passengers were sailing in violation of the statutes of this country.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat, deplored La Follette's speech , which he said in substance mantained that the Government had not entered the war for a just cause and assailed the executive and legislative branches and "even the United States courts for alleged failure to protect citizens."

Senator Robinson demanded to know why the Wisconsin Senator should make his plea for free speech and at the same time denounce those who have demanded his expulsion. He said it was a singular thing that a Senator should speak for two hours in denouncing his Government and yet not say a single word for his Government, his flag or his President.

Reads His Address.

Standing at his seat in the front row before the vice president's desk LaFollette began his address, reading carefully and deliberately his manuscript with Senators giving close attention.

Defending his course of opposing the declaration of war and subsequent attacks on war policies, La Follette declared:

"It is the citizen's duty to obey the law until it is repealed or declared unconstitutional. But he has the inalienable right to fight what he deems an obnoxious law or a wrongful policy in the courts and at the ballot box.

"It is the suppressed emotion of the masses that breeds revolution. If the American people are to carry on this great war; if public opinion is to be enlightened and intelligent there must be free discussion.

"Congress, as well as the people of the United States entered the war in great confusion of mind and under feverish excitement. The President's leadership was followed unquestioningly in the faith that he had some big, unrevealed plan by which peace that would exalt him before all the world would soon be achieved.

"Gradually, reluctantly Congress and the country are beginning to perceive that we are in this terrific world conflict not only to right our wrongs, not only to aid the allies, not only to share its awful death toll and its fearful tax burdens, but, perhaps, to bear the brunt of the war.

Wants Free Discussion.

"And so I say if we are to forestall the danger of being drawn into years of war, perhaps finally to attain imperialism and exploitation, the people must unite in a campaign along constitutional lines for free discussion of the policy of the war and its conclusion on a just basis."

While it was true that the war must be gone through with, he said, it was not true that "we must go through to the end to accomplish an undisclosed purpose, to reach an unknown goal."

Every preparation for prosecuting the war must be made, the Wisconsin Senator declared, but he claimed teh right to discuss honest differences of pinion.

"Shall we ask the people to shut their eyes and take the entire war program on faith?" he asked. "The way to paralyze the German arm, is to declare our objects in this war and show that we are not seeking to dictate a form of government to Germany or to render England's domination of the seas more secure. When the objects of this war aro clearly stated and the people approve they will give popular support it wil never otherwise receive."

As he proceeded, La Follette gradually drew toward his customary fire of delivery, gesturing with clenched fist as he referred to free speech and raising his voice at times with emotional emphasis. Frequently he wiped the perspiration from his hands and face; occasionally he stepped from his desk into the center aisle, threw back his head and declaimed his constitutional right for freedom of discussion of public questions.

Doesn't Refer to St. Paul Speech.

Nowhere in his remarks did Senator La Follette refer to the much-discussed St. Paul speech. This course somewhat threw awry the plans of Senators who were preparing speeches in reply.

"Honest dealing with our allies also requires a clear statement of our objects," he declared. "If we do not expect to support them in the dreams of conquest, that fact should be stated, and our people are entitled to know that vitally important fact before this war proceeds further. Common honesty and fair dealing require the fullest and freest discussion before the people of every issue involved, and that a plain and specific declaration of our purpose be speedily made by Congress."

Power of President.

Constitutional authority of the President to fix the war's purposes, he questioned by implication.

"It may be said that the duty of the President to enforce the laws of the country carries with it by implication control over the military forces for that purpose, and that the decision as to when the laws are violated, and the manner in which they should be redressed, rests with the President," he said. "The question of enforcing the laws of the United States, however, does not arise in the present discussion. The laws of the United States have no effect outside the territory of the United States. Our army in France, or our navy on the highe seas may be engaged in worthy enterprises, but they are not enforcing the laws of the United States, and the President derives from his constitutional obligation to enforce the laws of the country, no power to determine the purposes of the present war."

"Congress Should Define Purpose."

Contending it is the duty of Congress to define the purpose of the war and determine when it shall end, he declared: "The question is, are we to sacrifice millions of our young men—the very promise of the land—and spend billions and more billions, and pile up the cost of living until we starve—not for a peace without victory, but for a peace, so far as we are yet advised, satisfactory to the allies? Shall the fearfully overburdened people of this country continue to bear the brunt of a prolonged war for any objects not openly stated and definedc

"The answer rests, in my judgment, with the Congress, whose duty it is to declare our specific purposes in the present war and to state the objects upon the attainment of which we will make peace."

La Follette's Speech.

Senator La Follette, in his speech, asserted that the "war party," besides carrying on a campaign of "libel and character assassination against members of Congress who voted against the war, was attempting to suppress discussion of war issues and intimidate the people themselves by invading their homes and unlawfully throwing them into jail.

The Senator quoted at length from Mexican war speeches of Lincoln, Clay, Webster and Sumner in support of his defense of the right of a member of Congress to assail the policy of the Government and dwelt at length upon the constitutional duty of Congress rather than the President to proclaim the nation's purposes in taking up arms. He made no reference to the inquiry ordered yesterday by the Senate into his speech before the Nonpartisan League at St. Paul and dealt with criticisms of himself only generally.

Quotes From Lincoln.

"Six members of the Senate, and, as I recall, about 50 members of the House voted against the declaration of war," he said. "Immediately there was let loose upon those Senators and Representatives a flood of invective and abuse from newspapers and individuals who had been clamoring for war, unequaled, I believe, in the history of civilized society.

"Prior to the declaration of war, every man who had ventured to oppose our entrance into it had been condemned as a coward or worse, and even the President had by no means been immune from these attacks. Since the declaration of war the triumphant war party has pursued those Senators and Representatives who voted against war with malicious falsehood and recklessly libelous attacks, going to the extreme limit of charging them with treason against their country.

"Voted According to Opinions."

"It is not claimed that the Senators who opposed the declaration of war have since that time acted with any concerted purpose either regarding war measures or any others. They have voted according to their individual opinions, have often been opposed to each other on bills and, according to my recollection, have never all voted together since that time on any single proposition upon which the Senate had been divided."

Besides quoting at length from American statesmen who opposed bitterly President Polk's policy in the Mexican war, the Wisconsin Senator gave extracts from speeches by Burke, Fox, Lord Chatham and others in the British Parliament attacking Great Britain's war upon the American colonies. He said he did it to show the people that free speech was no new doctrine born of the Constitution of the United States.

In support of his assertion that Congress should speak for the country in declaring the purposes of war, the Senator cited precedents at great length.

"It would be bad enough if the Constitution clothed the President with any such power," he said, "but to exercise such power without constitutional authority cannot long be tolerated if even the forms of free government are to remain. We know that the people would resist and, if necessary, resist with arms in their hands, any scheme to clothe the President with power to plunge this country into war and then to continue the war as long as he desired."

Says People Should Speak.

Senator La Follette said no conviction was stronger with the people today than that there should be no future wars except in case of actual invasion unless supported by referendum.

"And," he added, "because there is no clearness of understanding, no unity of opinion in this country on the part of the people as to the conditions upon which we are prosecuting this war of what the specific objects are, upon the attainment of which the present administration would be willing to conclude a peace, it becomes still more imperative each day that Congress should assert its constitutional power to define and declare the objects of this war which will afford the basis for a conference and for the establishment of permanent peace. The Prsident has asked the German people to speak for themselves on this great world issue; why should not the American people voice their convictions through their chosen reprenestatives in Congress?"

Facts Misstated, Says Kellogg.

Senator Kellog accused La Follette of misstating facts in the St. Paul speech and denied that this country went to war to secure Americans the right to travel on munition laden ships or to protect loans made by Morgan & Co. to foreign governments.

"I am as jealous of the right of free speech as any member of this body," said Senator Kellogg. "But this is a question of erroneous statement of facts rather than of free speech."

"I have no right or wish," he continued "to criticise any man who voted against this nation going to war, although I may disagree with him: but we are at war, and I believe men of this body, men of influence, should not make statements tending to aid and encourage the enemy and to cast dishonor and discredit upon this nation."

Robinson Criticises La Follette.

"It is unfortunate for the country and for the Senator from Wisconsin," said Senator Robinson of Arkansas, replying to Senator La Follette, "that he has lent himself and his services to the promotion of ideas and desires of the Kaiser."

Senator Robinson said he believed if Senator La Follette would produce the affidavits to which he referred as coming from citizens protesting against imprisonment in alleged denial of free speech, many of them would be found to be from German spies.

In dwelling on propaganda against indemnities from Germany, Senator Robinson said:

"The Kaiser and the Senator from Wisconsin talk about no war for conquest and no indemnities. That may be free speech; a Senator can say, a fool can say it, but it isn't patriotic Americanism."

Justified Lusitania Sinking.

Senator La Follette, in his St. Paul speech, Robinson said, justified the Lusitania sinking "in language as near as he dared use."

"What was the purpose, the motive behind it?" he asked. "The right of free speech also carries the responsibility of speaking the truth. If an impression is left that does an injustice to his flag or his President, or his armies, then in humility he ought to correct it and not in defiance repeat it."

Apparently concerned over the replies by Senators Kellogg and Robinson, Senator La Follette, who had taken copious notes of their remarks, proposed to Senator Martin, Democratic leader, that he be given time to reply and later went to Vice President Marshal, saying he should be recognized.

The Vice President, however, could not assure him that other Senators would not take up the remaining few minutes of the session.

Senator Fall, Republican, a member of the Senate committee to investigate La Follette's utterances, sharply criticised him.

"No more dangerous doctrine could have been preached and no more insidious utterance could have been heard from any source than those by the Senator from Wisconsin, in my judgment," he said. "I refer to his St. Paul speech."

La Follette's Interruption.

La Follette, who had disappeared from his seat as the New Mexico Senator began, walked up the aisle for the first time and interrupted his accusers.

Senator Fall said he did not want to be interrupted as the Wisconsin Senator had had more than two hours to speak, but wanted to be fair to his colleague. Senator La Follette then asked if it were not true that, under the Constitution, a writ of habeas corpus can be suspended only in case of invasion or a revolution and if it was not true nevertheless that suspension of the habeas corpus had been invoked recently in Baltimore.

Senator Fall replied that it was not suspended in the case of the recent arrests in Maryland and Ohio, but that it has been suspended in the past in Missouri and Kentucky.

Massachusetts Republican Convention Condemns La Follette.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 6.—A resolution censuring and condemning United States Senator Robert M. La Follette was adopted unanimously by the Republican State convention here today. Louis Parkhurst, president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, spoke in favor of the resolution, saying that Senator La Follette was a "traitor to his country and to the party."

PEVELY MILK

Milk Is Cheap

You now pay more for milk than you ever did before, but you are also paying record prices for everything else you eat, wear or use. The seller is not to blame for that.

The price of milk has been advanced for the same reason that everything else was advanced—namely, the increased cost of production and distribution.

Pevely Milk at 14c per quart is the cheapest food you can buy, because it gives you the greatest food value for your money.

For 14 cents you get more real, healthful nourishment in a quart of Pevely Milk than you can obtain for the same amount of money spent for beef, veal, pork, mutton or eggs.

Pevely Milk is the best milk in St. Louis, because it is highest in percentage of butter fat. The city butter-fat standard is only 3%. Pevely standard is 3.80 to 4%.

The Pevely standard insures you richer milk. Pevely methods insure absolutely clean, pure milk—the safest milk in the world for your children.

If you must economize on your food, you should do the cutting down somewhere else. For the safety of your family, do not cut down on your milk. That would be false economy.

Milk is man's primary food—the vital food of all children. Every child should drink at least a quart of milk every day. There are no substitutes for milk.

Pevely Milk is cheap. It would be the most economical food even at a much higher price.

I. W. W. SLACKER TO GET JURY TRIAL IN FEDERAL COURT

Eight Men Plead Guilty of Failure to Register—Judge Arraigns 35 Defendants.

Thity-five men indicted by the Federal grand jury, who were held in jail were arraigned yesterday in the United States District Court before Judge Dyer, charged with various violations of the Federal statutes. Twelve were charged with having failed to register for the draft. Eight pleaded guilty, were given light sentences and turned over to the marshal to be registered.

Frank A. Feldman, self-styled member of the I. W. W., charged with failure to register, told the court he had failed purposely and did not believe it to be a crime. He asked the judge for a jury and his trial was set for Nov. 22.

Judge Dyer asked as to the circumstances of Feldman's arrest and was told by Assistant United States District Attorney Woodward that the man was in Milwaukee and that while in jail there he had dropped from his cell window a small prayer-book, on the fly leaf of which he had written a request that the finder notify Senator La Follette of his predicament.

"Did you write that?" the Judge asked the prisoner.

"Yes, sir," Feldman replied.

"How do you plead to the charge of failing to register?" the Judge asked.

"I have registered. The Marshal made me do it after I was arrested," replied Feldman.

"How do you plead?" the Judge insisted.

"Well, it's no crime. I want a jury trial," said Feldman.

"I will enter a plea of not guilty," said the Judge. "I will give you a fair trial—and I also will give you a little justice."

Rex Bain was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at Leavenworth when he pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Mann act. He brought Jewel Phelps, 16 years old, to St. Louis from her home in Carterville, Ill.

John Lawrence was sentenced to a year and a day in the penitentiary on his plea of guilty to a charge of sending an obscene letter through the mail to Mrs. Anna Merry of 3852 Russell avenue, who, he declared was his wife.

Wesley Slaughter, Thomas Lewis, Blaine Garret and Charles Jones, negroes, pleaded guilty to stealing from interstate freight shipments and each was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

All other expenses and service, $102,047,345.

Total appropriations, $17,001,966,815.

Contracts and authorizations in addition to appropriations:

Military establishment, $1,383,302,750.

Naval establishment, $185,705,643.

Shipping Board and emergency fleet corporation, $849,000,000.

New Treasury Department Building, $1,250,000.

Total authorizations, $2,419,258,393.

Grand total, $19,421,225,208.

Among the more important appropriations by the Sixty-fourth Congress, included in its total of $1,977,210,200, are:

Army, $273,046,322.
Fortifications, $51,396,393.
Naval, $517,273,802.
River and harbor, $27,826,150.
Military Academy, $1,344,896.
General deficiency, $163,841,400.
Urgent deficiency, $4,578,250.

Important New Laws.

Among the most important measures enacted by Congress were:

Army draft law, two war credit measures, authorizing loans to the allies, sale of domestic bonds, the war tax law, appropriations of $640,000,000 for airplanes, the espionage act, control of foods, feed and fuel; the trading-with-the-enemy act, including authority for the President to embargo imports, the soldiers' and sailors' insurance act and two war budget bills.

The principal disputes of the session were on the draft, food control and war tax bills, with opposition centered in the Senate. Cloture was twice resorted to there—on the food and war tax measures—but its actual imposition averted after a month was spent on each bill.

During the session six allied missions appeared before Congress, addresses being made by Lord Balfour of the British mission, Vice Premier Viviani and Marshal Joffre of the French, Prince Udine of the Italian, Baron Moncheur of the Belgian, Boris Bakhmeteff of the Russian and Viscount Ishii of the Japanese.

Domestic Matters Acted On.

Congress also found time to take important action on two important domestic matters—prohibition and woman suffrage. Besides prohibiting further manufacture or importation of distilled beverages and authorizing the President in the food control bill to stop or curtail that of beer and wines, the Senate, by a vote of 65 to 20, also passed the Sheppard resolution proposing a national dry amendment to the Federal Constitution. It is pending in the House for action at the December session.

The House created a special committee on woman suffrage while the Senate favorably reported the Susan B. Anthony amendment proposing an equal franchise amendment to the Constitution. The latter will be pressed next session.

Several bills passed the Senate and House, but failed of joint approval and remain pending on the calendar. Among them are the soldiers' and sailors' civil rights bill, the daylight saving measure, the Webb export bill, the measure regulating killing of migratory birds and the national prohibition measure. The proposed Colombian treaty for payment of $25,000,000 in satisfaction of her loss of the Panama Canal zone also failed of Senate ratification.

CHICAGO WINS WORLD'S SERIES OPENER, 2--1

CARDINALS SPLIT WITH BROWNS; MAY WIN SERIES TODAY

Browns Take First Game of Twin Bill, 5-4 in 10 Innings; Knot Holers Win Short Afterpiece, 6-1.

LOWDERMILK AVERTS A DEFEAT IN OPENER

Lanky Hurler Helps Mates to First Victory of Series — Two Games Are Scheduled Again Today.

After making the grade, 5 to 4, in the first game of the double header with the Cardinals yesterday, Lee Meadows put soap on the tracks and the Browns careened back to their starting place with a sickening 6 to 1 thud. This little prank on the part of the aforementioned Mr. Meadows just about fractured the last hope of the Fielder Jones 1917 model to get abreast of its rivals and turn into today's frolics on an even basis in the series.

The well-known percentage table indicates that the Cardinals are in possession of three victories and have sustained but one defeat. For the Browns the figures are reversed. Simmered down, this means Hug's mount needs but one more victory to win the city title and as two games are on the boards at the Browns' park this afternoon, the series may be concluded by nightfall.

Lowdermilk Saves Game.

It required 10 innings of effort and mighty pert pitching on the part of Grover Lowdermilk to give the Browns their first victory of the series, this having come to pass in the first game. After the Cardinals had tied the count in the eighth and Bob Groom had so far forgotten pitching ethics as to permit two singles in sequence without the semblance of a demise, Lowdermilk sat in on the pastime and choked off the impending disaster.

Upon those fretful ninth and tenth sessions hangs the gist of the first game features. Austin and E. Smith were defunct in the Browns' portion of the latter session when Sisler drove past Cruise for a triple. Grover Hartlew, a prospective citizen of Columbus, O., next year, who had relieved Severeid of catching duties in the fifth inning, promptly smote to the identical territory for another triple, which pushed Sisler across with the winning run.

A Cardinal victory loomed in the offing in the ninth, when Baird beat out a hit to Austin to open the inning and Gonzales followed up with a single to left, upon which Baird went to third and Gonzales to second under cover of Shotton's throw to Austin. It was here that Lowdermilk assumed the heavy part. Brock, batting for Goodwin, pushed a decrepit grounder to Ernie Johnson, who threw to Hartley. Baird dashed for the plate but scenting a killing, went into reverse gear and skidded back in the general direction of third base. Gonzales, too, had an acute desire to roost on that sack and it led to his undoing, as Hartley tagged him for the out.

Easy in the Tenth.

With runners on first and third, Lowdermilk pulled the throttle to full speed. The result was that Long fouled to Sisler and J. Smith pushed a feeble grounder to the first sacker. Miller, Hornsby and Cruise were easily disposed of in the tenth and the Browns had won a ball game. Selah!

A base on balls to Shotton and singles by E. Smith and Severeid were responsible for the Browns' two runs in the first inning of the opener. Two more came in the second on bases on balls to Lavan and Gerber. Shottons' hit and a double by Austin.

Snyder's single, a base on balls to Ames, Gerber's error and a fielder's choice on Jack Smith brought one run to the Cardinals in the third. They added two more in the seventh on three bases on balls, a wild pitch and an error Horstman, Ames, Goodwin and Packard operated in this contest in the order named.

Sothoron Gets a Lacing.

Allan Sothoron got off wrong in the first inning of the second game which darkness stopped at the end of the fifth and the Cardinals won the affair with three runs in the first. A base on balls to Long, J. Smith's infield hit, a passed ball, Hornsby's triple and a fielder's choice for the tallies.

The fourth Cardinal tally in the third was the result of Smith's hit and a perfectly executed hit and run play on which Miller drove a single to right and Smith scored. The fifth and sixth counters for Huggins developed in the fifth on a base on balls to Meadows and Long's home run to the center field fence.

Singles by Johnson, Shotton and E. Smith, with a base on balls sandwiched in, gave the Browns their only run of the second game in the fifth inning. Today's twin bill will start at 1:30.

White Sox Owned the Wallop and Got Off in Front in Baseball Title Struggle

McGraw Tried to Cross Dope but Crossed Himself

Analyst Fullerton Figured Felsch and John Collins to Hammer Sallee and That's Just What They Did.

While Passing Around the Hero Medals, Don't Overlook Eddie Cicotte, Who Did All That Was Expected of Him.

By Hugh S. Fullerton.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 6.

TWO teams perfectly matched, knowing each others strength and weaknesses battled brilliantly today and old wallop won The White Sox figured to possess the little extra punch that covers a multitude of sins, and they made good on the dope. Felsch and Shano Collins doped to hit Salee's pitching, and they did. It was their terrific driving that represented the difference between the teams.

The blows that wrecked the Giants was delivered by Felsch whose smash into the left field seats represented the difference between the teams and turned the tide. But, forgetting all the smashes and plays that punctuated the struggle the game showed the White Sox to be the better team. They went into the series filled with fight and pepper, they showed spirit and they struck at the weak spots of the McGraw machine with a determination and force that is rather a relief to us who have watched them during the season.

The ship of McGraw and the brain power of the Giants failed to overcome the mechanical superiority of the Sox. They erred and blundered and by their sheer batting power won the game.

"Dope" Worked Out.

The dope worked out in the first game in spite of the fact that this mean man McGraw tried to cross us. We informed him in the public prints that Schupp should pitch the first game and that Cicotte would beat him 5 to 1, that the White Sox would hit Schupp and that Cicotte would hold the Giants to one run and seven hits. Then this mean guy McGraw tried to spoil the dope by sending Slim Sallee to the slab.

The dope indicated that Sal would pitch the third game and win it, and McGraw tried to slip one over by sending him in for what he figured to do. The plain fact is that this mean person McGraw, trying to double cross the dope, crossed himself out of a big chance to win the series. He led his ace and it was trumped on the first lead. Now he is up against it, because it figures Cicotte will beat Schupp in the first game in New York, and it makes it probable that the series will end in five instead of six games.

The game was one of the most strenuous in the history of the world's series. The play was slow and at times not certain, but considerlong the fact that the teams were playing under a terrific nervous strain, and in the presence of 30,000 human beings and 300 O. Henrys, it was wonderfully played. The one thing that inspired the White Sox fans was the spirit and determination with which the Rowland machine went into battle.

It has been a team that has seemed lazy, at times indifferent, which has been credited with lack of ambition and brains because it played that kind of ball. Yet yesterday the team jumped right at the throats of the Giants, battled them for each point, slid hard, hustled and looked more aggressive and more of a fighting team than did the Giants, who are famed for fighting.

First Two Innings Wretched.

The first two innings were wretched, perhaps because the players were under a nervous strain. There were three bushy blunders made, one by Gandil, who deserted first base and balled up a play by causing Cicotte to hesitate about covering the base; one by Holke, who was grabbed off first base with no play in sight; and one by Eddie Collins, who came too far in front of second to meet a throw and allowed Burns to slide behind him to safety. These were, perhaps, mistakes due to nervousness and none of them cut any figure in the result.

The game was decided on clean walloping. McCarty's seven-base hit, which netted him three bases and a semi-accidentally single by the surprised Sallee gave the Giants their only run and John Collins' fierce hit, followed by McMullin's double, and, in the next inning Felsch's home run, yielded the two for the White Sox.

Neither team had any other legitimate chance to score, although a base hit would have upset things on three occasions. While we are distributing the medals to Hap Felsch let us not forget the real hero; one Eddie Cicotte. When it was put up to us to dope out the difference in strength between the two teams, we reached a stage where it became evidnt that about the real difference in strength was contained in Cicotte.

Major Leaguers Yelled.

Whereupon many major league players bawled me out and men of the class of Jawn Evers and Fred Mitchell poo-hooed and declared that what the Giants would do to Cicotte would be a shame. We refused to be convinced, because it was our theory that brains, plus skill and nerve, beat almost any kind of a ball club. Yesterday Cicotte demonstrated that fact.

Among other things, he made Holke look like a busher by grabbing him flat-footed off first base and later, when there still remained a glimmer of hope that the Giants might win, Cicotte made the unsalted and much-advertised B. Kauff look foolish by catching him off first and wrecking the final hope of the Giants.

Cicotte did not pitch his very best brand of ball during the early innings. He seemed to be having a bit of trouble locating the outside corner of the plate at times, and he appeared to check down his speed to gain better control. Later, when the Sox were leading, he started to pitch and put more and more stuff on the ball. So far as the naked and unaided eye could discern, he used neither emery, hypnotism nor sweet oil on the ball. I saw only four balls that seemed to sail on "slide" and one of these was hit and hit hard.

Hit Only Five Balls Hard.

In the entire game the Giants hit only five balls hard and the White Sox connected solidly with eleven. The further Cicotte went, the better he got, and he finished breezing along and with each inning the New Yorkers seemed more and more helpless.

Let us not detract from credit to Sallee. He pitched grand ball and ball that would have won the majority of games from any team.

It was evident that he was not entirely familiar with certain of the Sox batsmen, for he mispitched to Schalk twice, to Jackson once and to John Collins twice. Bad men, those, for any left-handed pitcher to pitch wrong to.

There were three bits of work that counted. Kauff, who now stands in danger of being the goat in this series. He tried to catch a low line "" before the ball hit the ground; failed, and gave the White Sox a run. His try was well made, and whether with good judgment or not is not to be settled by me. Later in the game, in almost the same situation, Jackson faced the same play. He hesitated seemed inclined to stop and take the ball on the bound which probably would have given New York a run and possibly two, then started again, dived and came up with the ball

Kauff Fails to Make Catch.

The two plays really settled the issue; one man got away with it and the other didn't, which represents the difference between a hero and a dub in this pastime.

The game indicates that this series is going to be one of the fiercest in baseball history. The Giants are not licked yet, although that first game means much; if you follow the dope you will discover that in 12 world's series the team winning the first game won the series.

Those Giants, however, are not beaten. It is indicated now that the White Sox will slam their pitching rather harder than we figured, and it is certain that the Sox will fight harder than we ever have known them to do.

Men like McGraw, however, and Herzog and Burns are not beaten by one game. The Sox will be at them but they will die fighting.

Today we are to have a new show with Faber and Perritt hooked up, the dope still stands that Faber will shut out the Giants and win 2 to 0.

Great Support Aided Cicotte in Capturing the Inaugural Battle

Teammates Showed Needed Confidence Behind "Shine Ball" Artist and All Attacks of Giants Were Thrown Back —1500 Officers' Reserves on Hand.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Eddie Cicotte of Detroit, pitcher extraordinary of the Chicago Americans, piloted his team to victory today over the New York Nationals by a score of 2 to 1 in the first game of the 1917 world's series, played at Comiskey Park. At the wheel of the White Sox machine he was the master of the Giants at every stage of the contest.

While Cicotte was the master mind of the victory, he was ably assisted by the White Sox machine, which played almost faultless baseball against the National League standard bearers, who would not admit defeat until the final catch of Robertson's fly by John Collins ended the contest. Cicotte's teammates played with the confidence of certainty behind him and the combination proved too much for the vaunted power of the Giants.

While an even 32,000 spectators viewed the game, had Comiskey Park been able to accommodate all those who desired to witness the clash, these figures might easily have been tripled.

Not a Vacant Seat in Park.

As it was there was not a vacant seat within the park when the players took the field and hundreds of disappointed fans thronged the adjacent streets, unable to penetrate the police lines. Every point of vantage which in any way overlooked the diamond was occupied by men and boys long before the game began and as the struggle progressed, the groups grew in number.

The sloping roofs and tower of the Seventh Regiment Armory were thronged with soldiers and sailors, while the trees and fences of a small park bore human burdens that neither nature nor architects had intended in the original plan. Inside the park the crowds overflowed both bleachers and pavilions until the fans were rows deep behind the center field fence. Many of these had stood in line all night.

The scenes among the fans were much the same as in all recent series. Flags were used for decorative purposes throughout the park and there were the usual bands, singing and photographing, and movie camera operators, who snapped and cranked their machines before and during the game.

Boys in Khaki on Hand.

A touch of color foreign to foregoing series was furnished, however, by the presence in a body of more than 1500 members of the Officers Reserve Training Corps from Fort Sheridan. Grouped in a body in the pavilion back of first base their khaki uniforms and sunburned faces supplied a background which contrasted sharply with the civilian gathering.

One of the oddities of the scene from the standpoint of the spectators was the comparatively few feminine rooters among all the thousands who witnessed the play. The percentage of women could not have been more than one to 100. There was also a notable absence of the continuous cheering. There were tremendous outbursts of applause and encouragement at critical periods of the play or when startling catches or hits were made, but on the whole the tenseness of the struggle appeared to grip the fans so strongly that they were unacle to give vent t their emotions.

Moments were not lacking when the spectators rose enmasse, however, and hurled their vocal offering across the field, for the game was replete with startling catches, long hits and the breaks which mark the line dividing victory and defeat. In the enthusiasm of the occasion even the weather man relented and at the last moment furnished a perfect weather setting for the diamond battle.

Sox Show Up Best.

While the box score showed little advantage one way or the other between the two teams, the fact remains that the White Sox for the day at least showed a faster and better machine than the Giants. Both the infield and the outfield worked with perfect judgment and harmony and the players collectively and individually co-operated to a higher degree than did the National League combination.

They were first to score, gathering their initial run in the third, when, after Schalk had been retired by Zimmermann, Cicotte singled through second. John Collins followed with another to right and Cicotte was thrown out at third by Robertson, while Collins took second

Manager Rowland Now Feels Assured That Sox Will Cop

Praises Cicotte, Jackson, McMullin and John Collins for Their Good Work.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Eddie Cicotte, who pitched Chicago to victory today, probably will face New York in another game of the series, it was indicated tonight in a statement issued by Clarence Rowland, manager of the Chicago club.

"I was glad that Eddie Cicotte did what he was expected to do," Rawland said. "He was stronger against the Giants at the finish than he was at the start. Eddie will have it as easy as he did today.

"Joe Jackson's catch in the seventh inning was one of the greatest he ever made and perhaps it saved the ball game for us. Fred McMullin played a brilliant defensive game at third base and drove in the first run. John Collins deserves honorable mention for the way he hit the ball and ran bases. I am well satisfied with the first victory, for we won a tough and brilliant game and I now feel assured the world's championship will belong to the White Sox."

COMISKEY SAYS THAT HE IS HAPPIEST MAN IN CHICAGO AFTER WIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, declared tonight that he was the happiest man in Chicago and that his club, as a result of the victory over New York today, would annex the world's championship.

"It was one of the happiest days of my life," Comiskey said. "I think there never was a better game of ball on the opening of a world's series. It was a close and even fight New York has a great team. Eddie Cicotte, I think, lived up to all expectations and at the finish he looked better than at the start. The White Sox played great ball.

"I do not know why I shouldn't be the happiest man in Chicago. We have won the first game in the fight for the world's championship and I know that we beat a great ball club. Winning the first game is a big advantage in a world's series. We only have to win three now and they have to win four before we win three to beat us out. I think the White Sox will be the champions of the world."

BETTING IN GOTHAM NOW FAVORS ROWLAND'S MEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Betting on the world's series at Jack Doyle's billiard academy veered around in favor of the White Sox after today's game. The odds on today's game were even money on the Giants and 4 to 5 on the White Sox. The odds on the series were 3 to 4, with the White Sox favorites.

Doyle declared that the volume of betting today surpassed that of all other previous series during the week.

Percy Guard, the curb broker, announced that he had money to place at even money on the series; 6 to 5 on tomorrow's game with the Giants favorites if Schupp pitches, and even money with any other pitcher.

HOMER BY FELSCH DECIDING FACTOR IN FIRST CONTEST

This One 42-Centimeter Wallop Caused Defeat of Prussianism and Muggsyism.

By John E. Wray.
Sporting Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.

PRUSSIANISM and Muggsyism went down to defeat as Comiskey Park this afternoon, battered into submission by the 42-centimeter club of "Happy" Felsch of the Chicago White Sox. One tremendous smash, in the fourth inning of the opening world's series game with the Giants, which drove the ball clear over the center field bleacher netting for a home run was the determining factor in giving Rowland's American League clan a 2—1 victory over the Herzogs, Holkes and Zimmermans.

Somewhere, some place, 32,000 persons may have sent up louder acclaim than went up from the stand as Felsch jogged around the bases, but Chicago never heard anything like it. The uproar was deafening. Score cards, canes, hats and other belongings were hurled into the air bq the excited Sox fans, who, with Cicotte pitching a great game, saw sure victory in sight.

Felsch's Drive Determines It.

Felsch's drive was undoubtedly the determining factor of the game. Jackson was "down" at the time and McMullin's hit through Kauff's legs in the previous round had given the tribe of Comiskey a one-run lead. Cicotte was doing splendid work and when Felsch "crossed" Slim Sallee by smashing at the first ball pitched he broke the hearts of the Giant rooters and shattered the morale of McGraw's Prussians badly. The drive hit almost midway between the left foul line and the center field bulletin board, as it cleared the bleachers net, and was one of the longest hits made in the Sox park in many days.

Hard as this drive was however, it had nothing on the wallop that Catcher McCarty of the Giants handed one one of Cicotte's non-spitters in the the following inning. Cicotte had just lured McCarthy into shattering the ozone for a strike. It probably came as a distinct snock when, serving up the same sort of ball on the next pitch, he had it clouted deep into the center field sector. The ball went on a line between center and right field and rolled clear to the foot of the bulletin board. McCarthy lumbered around the bases like a crippled elephant and had to be content with but three bases on the drive. A fast man would easily have made a home run of it. As it was he scored on Sallee's single—the only Giant run of the afternoon.

Sallee Sends In McCarty.

Thereafter neither team could penetrate the stanch defense of the opposition, thanks as much to splendid pitching as to any other factor.

Although the attack on Cicotte threatened to break through on one or two occasions the White Sox held firm in the pinch.

The Giants had their best chance in the fifth inning, as after McCarty had scored, Salee was on base, with George Burns and the heaviest artillery of the enemy coming up in order But Burns weakened under the stress and hit into a double play and the vaunted "Buck" Herzog fanned.

Jackson's Sensational Catch of Drive Off McCarty's Bat Saved Trouble

FELSCH was not the sole occupant of the spotlight today, nor the only recipient of praise. Joe Jackson made a catch that figured almost as vividly in the result as the big gun explosion of "Happy." This was in the seventh inning, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Old Roman's men.

With Robertson cleared out of the way, Holke singled and up came McCarty and his heavy artillery. McCarty leaned against a hard drive to left field. It was a low-flying, fast-traveling drive that forced Jackson to sprint like a Meredith to get within reaching distance.

A groan went up from the stands as it was seen that the ball would probably hit the ground for a safety, or perhaps bounce out of the fielder's hand for extra bases. But fairly Jackson took the mob's breath away by hurling himself off the ground in a forward leap to grab the sphere. His hands closed over the ball at the grass top and the overbalanced player plunged forward on his houlder, turning completely over, but coming up safe with his arm thrust up and the ball clutched in his hand.

There could be no doubt but that Jackson's catch saved a two or three base drive for that hit was moving faster than a "cullud pusson" past a graveyard at midnight. Had the ball escaped Jackson, Holke, in all probability, would have scored. Sallee was not again equal to the task of driving in the run and the day was saved.

From the beginning the eyes of all were focused on the members of the celebrated "riding academy," Buck Herzog, Fletcher and Heine Zim, but either the Prussianism had all been taken out of them by the National Commision orders or opportunities to put on any rough stuff were rare. The fact that the four umpires in the game were disposed one at each base tended to prevent any unseemly conduct or language on the part of Muggsy's men.

McGraw Tame as a Rabbit.

McGraw himself was as tame as a three-months' rabbit. Not a chirp, no bullying and few conferences were evident during the contest although the grayhaired "repudiator" was in the first-base coaching box each inning.

Only twice did Herzog try to put over some of his ancient vintage. In the third inning, Herzog reached first base on a single and began his customary drive to shake the enemy's morale. Language poured forth from him continuously, but the words were not audible in the grandstand. Burns had walked, with two down, in this inning, and the moment was charged with possibilities as Benny Kauff, the supposed demon slugger, was at bat. Benny, after getting the pitcher in the hole with 2—1, popped up a high foul which momentarily ended the Herzogian efforts at disruption of the enemy's defense.

Once again in the eighth inning for Chicago, with matters growing desperate and the Giants facing only one more inning in which to score, Herzog took the throw and gave McMullin a fine "ride" as he came into second base. He walloped him around like a football star making a tackle. McMullin refused to lose his temper and merely grinned jeeringly.

"Shine Ball" Used by Cicotte, Rowland's Star, Is Merely a Variation of Spitter

ANOTHER feature the public paid more than passing attention was the delivery of Eddie Cicotte, whose "shine ball" doesn't exist. The delivery is a variant of the spit ball. The "shine" part of the name is derived from the fact that Cicotte leisurely rubs the ball on his trousers three or four times, then delivers the spitter in the customary manner as other hurlers.

Cicotte's chief merit lies in the fact that he is an "A 1" hurler with a variety of stuff. He has a nice curve spitter, fair fast ball and good control. Furthermore, he knows how to mix his assets according to the opposition he is facing.

Yesterday he was seldom in trouble and had the Giants popping into the air most of the time. Some of the enemy were particularly easy, notably Benny Kauff, who must have been a distinct disappointment to McGraw. Benny's day, like his box score, was a succession of ciphers and failures.

Kauff Was Disappointment.

It was up to Benny on several occasions to save the game or put his club in the way of winning, both at bat and in the field. In the third inning Kauff perpetrated a play similar to that which earned Jackson a hearty salvo of applause in the seventh. With J. Collins on base McMullin shot a liner to center field which Kauff ran in hard to get. He saw it would be a close connection but he elected to try for the catch, instead of remaining back and playing it safe for a single. Benny came tearing in, but the ball eluded his finger tips and rolled on through him for a double, giving the White Sox the first count of the game. Had Benny "pulled a Jackson" they might be playing yet.

At bat Bennie was one of the few laughs of the day. He was up with two out in the first and popped a high one to Joe Jackson, who made the catch, but gave his supporters heart failure by almost letting the ball get away from him.

Another Kauff Failure.

Next time Kauff came up with two out and two on and high fouled out.

The Sluggers of the Giants Failed to Polish Off the Famous "Shine" Ball

GREEN BILLIKENS OPEN SEASON WITH 34 TO 0 VICTORY

Simple Attack Employed by Rademacher's Unfinished Eleven to Beat Light Cape Girardeau Normal Machine.

ST. LOUIS U. BACKS MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Boggiano Is Star on Offense While Manning's Ground Gaining Also Provides Feature—Defensive Play Strong.

Using a simple, unpolished attack with a green team, lacking in polish, St. Louis University opened its 1917 football season yesterday afternoon, with a 34 to 0 victory over the light Cape Girardeau Normal eleven.

The team is minus finish because a greater part of it had not reported to Coach Rademacher until the middle of the past week, while the offense was necessarily unpolished as the players were not given their signals until Friday afternoon.

But despite a host of glaring crudities, such as some half dozen crucial fumbles, illegal play that resulted in at least 70 yards of penalty, and a score of errors of omission, the Billikens showed some inherent class in their performance.

Backs Are Impressive.

In Higgins, Manning, Boggano, Doran and Connors, the blue and white seems stocked with a wealth of capable backs; while the line consistently opened holes for the attack to go through. Of course, the brilliance of the play must be taken with a bit of salt due to the woeful weakness of the down-state mentors.

Manning is indeed a good man while running with the ball, but he will not become a great back until he learns to make himself useful when not engaged in carrying the ball. Yesterday he was nil as a component of interference.

The likeliest looking lineman on the Billiken barrier is Strubinger, a husky remnant of last year's freshman team, who seems to have the ideal linesman's ideas. He is a man who follows the ball, can make holes, and is a wall on defense. Poirrot and Kotkis, other new men, also look good.

The best evidence of the local team's good defensive play was its success in keeping the visitors from making a single down. The teachers could at no time gain consistently and were forced to depend upon punting whenever they took the ball.

Boggiano Makes Touchdown.

The first score came after about five minutes of play. After receiving on its 35-yard line, St. Louis U. carried the ball to the visitors' 15-yard line on long end runs by Boggiano and Manning. The former skirted left end for the remaining distance and a touchdown. Doran then added the subsequent point.

The second period was opened with another Billiken touchdown when Boggiano again ripped around end for 25 yards and a score. Doran duplicated his kicking feat and the score was 14 to 0. The next touchdown was made as a result of a wild, weird and woozey play on the part of the visitors.

A Cape man kicked to midfield and one of his teammates tried to catch the ball, probably with the intent to refute a St. Louis chance to gain. The attempt was a bad one and Doran scooped up the ball and hustled down the field while the entire Normal eleven looked on. Doran again kicked goal.

The fourth touchdown also came via the fluke method. St. Louis punted into Normal territory and once again the ball was fumbled. It was fumbled about five times before rolling over the teachers' goal line when Laut finally covered it. This time goal was missed. Doran scored the final touchdown in the last period and then kicked goal.

Dreams.

LAST night I ate a mess of crabs
And had the most peculiar dreams;
I owned a string of taxi cabs
That ran between New York and Rheims.
And everyone was riding free;
On every face I saw a smile;
But when the Chauffeuer came to me
He charged me twenty bucks a mile.

A man pursued me with a knfe
Because I hadn't paid my rent;
I couldn't run to save my life,
Although on murder he was bent.
I turned around and shot the guy,
Expecting I would see him fall;
The bullet hit him in the eye
But didn't bother him at all.

And, then the vision changed again,
I thought I was a millionaire;
I bought a ten-cent aeroplane
And took a joy-ride thrugh the air.
But when I'd reached a dizzy height
My aeroboat refused to fly;
When Charlie Chaplin soaked me right
Upon the beezer with a pie.

Anon within a ball room gay
I danced the tango with a beaut;
Then noticed to my great dismay
My costume was a union suit.
But did it stop me? Not a bit;
I mingled in the merry din.
But presently I threw a fit—
I had on nothing but my skin!

And now I'm in a crowded park;
A cheering throng the music drowns;
On certain uniforms I mark
The magic words: "St. Louis Browns."
The great world's series! Holy smoke!
Our boys are now 10 runs ahead!
Then from my vsion I awoke
And found I'd fallen out of bed.

Great Stuff.

THEY don't have any ballplayers like the old-timers of Comiskey's and Anson's time. One day Ed Williamson, Ansoon's old third baseman, swung at a ball, missed it and killed a robin. Honus Wagoner was a pretty goo old workman in his day, but he couldn't duplicate that feat in a million years. Gotta give it to the old guard.

Incidentally the above little episode clears up the mystery of who killed cock robin and establishes the innocence of the sparrow.

We always thought the sparrow was shielding somebody else when he admitted the killing in the case.

Will group our grandsons 'round their knees,
And tell them often and again
What unpolluted days were these.

They'll tell their grandsones how the men
Outshone the present crop with ease:
And how the modest women then
Wore gowns that nearly reached their knees.

Not Wet.

WE take it the Government's request for everybody to carry home a package when shopping has reference mostly to dry goods.

Two weeks prior to the opening of the world's series the management of the White Sox had received applications for 100,000 reservations for a seating capacity of 33,000. Which means that the Old Roman added approximately 67,000 fresh enemies to his hitherto small list.

Capital Idea.

HOWEVER, Commy will take steps to provide for next year's w. s., by increasing his seating capacity to 45,000. Why not keep a list of those who were disappointed this year and give them first call next year? With this worry off his mind all he will have to do will be to win the pennant.

McKinley Victor Over Alton High Eleven, 10 to 3

South Siders' Line Holds Many Times When Illinois Team Threatens to Score.

Showing great defensive strength when in the shadow of its own goal, the McKinley High machine yesserday defeated the strong Alton High eleven 10—3 in the feature game of the interscholastic double-header at High School Field. Time after time the Alton tank carried the ball up the field with all indications of making a touchdown, when the local team by a superhuman effort held for downs.

The scoring started in the first period, McKinley getting the ball after holding the Bluffmen for downs following the kickoff. Wit hte ball on the 30-yard mark, three line plunges gained but five yards and then the "Dutchman" pulled the unexpected. A trick pass, George Thompson to Leffler for 25 yards netted the only touchdown of the game.

After this bit of scoring the teams settled down and neither gained an advantage, the ball being in play in the middle of the field. Several times the Illinoisans threatened, but always were halted either by a great stand by their foe, or fumbles, which occured frequesntly.

The second half proved the feature one of the game. The ball changed hands several times, play being inteh center of the field, then Siebert elected to kick. Leffler was called back and booted a great spiral over the defensive quarterback's head. Thinking the ball would go over the line and that he could get a safety, he allowed it to roll, but contrary to his expectations the pigskin did not cross the goal line, and with the entire McKinley team rushing upon him, Clayton grabbed the ball and ran through the entire opposing team for a 65-yard return before he was downed.

After three unsuccessful attempts to puncture the red and white line, Ohnsorg dropped back to the 35-yard mark and toed a beautiful drop kick.

Tommy Thompson starred in the final period, getting a 30-yard drop kick for McKinley's final points. Siebert as usual occupied the limelight for his school, but Spieler, one of his teammates, and Stamps and Clayton of the visitors, were equally spectacular in their play.

HARRIS' 40-YARD RUN BEATS NAVY TEAM, 7-0

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—The Navy met defeat at the hands of West Virginia here this afternoon, the visiting team tallying one touchdown, and one goal in the final period of the game after the two had played each other to a standstill during the initial three periods. A 40-yard dash around the Sailors' left end by Harris was the deciding feature of the contest.

Miss Gould and Partner Win in City Net Event

Defeat Misses Gladys and Margaret McGugan on Triple A Courts, 6-1 and 6-0.

Misses Corinne Gould and Lottie Hagermeyer yesterday won the women's city doubles tennis championship by defeating Misses Gladys and Margaret McGugan in the final round of the annual tourney. The ease with which the champions took the title is evinced by the 6—1, 6—0 set victories which decided the match. The new title holders supplant Misses Leslie Le Beaume and Alice Prendergast.

The only game taken by the defeated team was early in the second set on Miss Margaret McGugan's service.

Miss Gould now is the champion or shares the championship of four tournaments. Besides yesterday's victory, she has won the city, State and municipal singles play for women.

This afternoon at 2:30 Theodore Drewes, city and Central States champion, meets Fred Josties in the final round of the annual Triple A tournament. The match will bring to a close tennis competition locally for the season.

CLEVELAND GAME OFF.

The game between Grover Cleveland Hich School and the Fonchon Athletic Club, scheduled for yesterday afternoon, was called off by mutual agreement.

MISSOURI WINS, BUT SHOWS NONE OF FORM OF 1916

Work of Backfield Is Disappointment in 14 to 6 Victory Over Jewells.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 6.—Showing little of last year's form, the University of Missouri football team defeated the William Jewell eleven 14 to 6 here this afternoon. Missouri's first touchdown, made in the first eight minutes of play, was the work of Elmer F. Edwards of St. Charles, who went through right tackle for seven yards almost immediately after he had made a 35-yard gain. The other score was made when Slusher blocked Waterman's punt and recovered the ball behind the Jewell goal. Capt. Hamilton kicked both goals.

William Jewell played a fighting game, but at no time did they have the Tigers bested. Waterman and Capt. Mayberry, who made the lone Jewell touchdown, both played brilliant football.

Missouri rooters are disappointed at the Tigers showing today. The back field from whom much was expected failed to show the old time interference and in the line the burden of the work fell on Capt. Hamilton and Bass.

The forward pass was used only twice by the Tigers and was successful on both occasions. This play and many others which were not used today will have to come to light when the Kansas Agg'es invade Missouri territory next Saturday.

Missouri made 14 first downs to the Crimson's 8. Punting was about equal, both sides averaging around 30 yards.

Lineup:

Missouri (14).	Positions.	William Jewell (6)
Slusher	Left end	Finney
Hamilton (Capt.)	Left tackle	Thomas
Berry	Left guard	Waterman
Greenwood	Center	Williams
Kirkpatrick	Right guard	Hampton
Bass	Right tackle	Southard
Schroeder	Right end	Walker
Stevens	Quarterback	Eubank
Edwards	Left halfback	Wilkerson
Collins	Right halfback	Clippard
Viner	Fullback	Mayberry (Capt.)

Substitutions: For Missouri—Kolb for Berry, Rider for Edwards, Marshall for Rider, Pierson for Kirkpatrick, Ewing for Greenwood. For William Jewell—None.

Touchdowns—Missouri, Edwards and Slusher; William Jewell, Mayberry. Goals from touchdown—Missouri, Hamilton 2. J. A. Reilly, K. C. A. C., referee. Krauz, Washington U., umpire. Lemire, Missouri, head linesman.

WASHINGTON VARSITY IS FORCED TO LIMIT TO DEFEAT FRESHMEN, 12-6

The Washington University football eleven in its formal debut of the season met with somewhat greater opposition than it had bargained for, when the Pikeway freshmen team held it to a 12—6 score at Francis Field yesterday.

It was in fact only a belated second half rally which was productive of two touchdowns that saved the regulars from complete demoralization. The "fresh" took the initiative in the first period by scoring via the straight football route when Gil Whitley bucked the line for a touchdown. The varsity was unable to count a point during the first half.

The score was tied in the third period when Berger crossed the 1921 class' line for a touchdown. Not until the final quarter did Rutherford's charges take the lead. The score came on a forward pass which Captain Kling snared and scampered over the line with.

The lineup:

GAME LEAGUE TO MEET.

The Missouri Fish and Game League will hold an open meeting at 608 Commercial Building next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock to arrange for the field trials to be held Nov. 19, 20 and 21. All sportsmen are invited to attend by Judge Jess McDonald, president.

Walter Holke, Only St. Louis Boy in Big Series, Stars With Bat

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.

WALTER HOLKE, the only St Louis boy participating in the series, enjoyed the good and bad fortunes of war. He got two hits, it is true, and excelled all his mates with the ash, but he was picked off first in a crucial moment and that hurt. After his single in the second inning, Holke was getting a lead when Cicotte snapped the ball to Gandil and Walter was a dead cock in the pit.

No Luck for St. Louis.

A St. Louis boy proved an unsuccessful mascot for the Giants. Harry Marks Aloe, the youthful son of D. B. Aloe of the Buckingham Hotel, came all the way from St. Louis to handle the bats for McGraw. Young Aloe did his part well and was envied by every urchin in the stand even though his stable mates did lose.

McTague Party Noisy.

The St. Louis delegation, chaperoned by Jim McTague, had a whole section of boxes, elaborately decorated with American flags and in large lettering the name "St. Louis." They were a noisy lot and the Sox victory pleased them as much as though it were a Cardinal conquest.

Zim on the Pan.

Heine Zim, once a favorite in this town, was continually hooted by the fans. In the eighth inning when John Collins pushed a double through Heine's large feet the crowd cheered first and then booed Heine. Although he failed to get a hit, Zimmerman played a fairly good game.

This Finished McGraw.

No soldier preparing to go over the top ever looked as disgusted as McGraw did when Benny Kauff was picked off first in the eighth inning. McGraw threw a glove on the ground and fairly galloped to the bench where he concealed himself for the rest of the day.

Jolson Bets His Coin.

One of those big real money bets was made by Al Jolson, the well-known warbler, who wagered $1000 at evens with Tom Kearney of St. Louis on the Giants. Jolson put a like amount on the Giants to win the series and Kearney got all the gravy.

Herzog put on only one storm and that really couldn't be classed much above a moderate Texas norther. That came in the third when Burns walked after two were out and Herzie singled to right. Burns was held at second. For a time Herzie made faces at the fans and danced around like a mad man, but nothing came of it because Kauff popped to Gandil.

One of the Close Decisions.

The value of a base line umpire was established in the eighth inning. Burns hit a ball down the left field line that fell on the outer edge of the chalk mark. Billy Evans waved it foul. Silk O'Loughlin concurred and the motion was carried without a kick. But it was close—powerful close. And had it been fair (a bare two inches farther in) there might be a different story to tell. Burns was the first man up in this inning.

FELSH'S HOME RUN IS DECIDING FACTOR IN FIRST CONTEST

In the sixth leading off the batting order he struck out on three pitched balls—taking a healthy swift at each delivery. In the eighth he reached first with two out when Weaver committed the only manual misplay of the day made by a White Sox. This was a wide throw whiqh Gandil stopped, but which pulled the first sacker off the bag.

Thus Benny had a life and a run was badly needed to tie. But right here is where Kauff ruined himself with the little Napoleon, who was coaching him not 10 feet distant. Kauff, fooled by Cicotte, was caught napping off first base and ran down for the third out.

To make the cup seem the more bitter, he was the second man to get himself caught, Holke having been picked off by Cicotte earlier in the game.

Is Caught Off First Base.

In fact, the Giants were outplayed, considerably on the day's showing, although the figures show the same hits and errors. The Giants' only technical misplay was a high throw to second by McCarty, but they made several "boners" as told above.

On the other hand the only bad play made by the Sox was not of the sort that permits an error. It occurred in the third inning with Cicotte on first base. J. Collins rapped the ball for a single and Cicotte rounded second as if he were bound around the entire circuit. Being a pitcher the proper play for him was to save his breath and pull up at the middle station. Instead he was half way to third before he realized the situation. Too late, he realized his mistake and foolishly checked himself, being put out trying to slide into third base. It was a foolish chance taking and unnecessary.

Harry Sallee pitched a great game and really deserved a victory quite as much as did Cicotte. The defeat cannot be charged to Slim and it is a certain thing that these two hurlers will be seen again in another duel probably the third or fourth game in New York.

Crowds in Line Early.

By 10 o'clock tonight the line of fans who wished ta secure seats in the bleachers for the gamt tomorrow was so large that the small squad of police at the park was deemed inadequate by Chief Schuettler and he dispatched 25 mounted reserve officers to make certain that no disturbances would occur.

The scenes of last night were reenacted. All came prepared for the long vigil and made themselves comfortable for the night. Some wrapped themselves in blankets and others chatted the night away, sitting on boxes and stools.

Downtown Chicago tonight entertained one of the gayest crowds in its history. Theaters and cafe were unable to care for the merry makers and hotels reported that not since the World's Columbia Exposition in 1893, has there been such a demand for rooms. Corridors, dining room and hallways were filled with cots.

Betting was reported to be light.

CENTRAL RUNS OVER EAST ST. LOUIS HIGH OUTFIT FOR A 34 TO 0 VICTORY

Contrary to expectations, the Central-East St. Louis game was not as close as forecasted. The Centralites displayed an attack which, coupled with the poor exhibition put up by their rivals enabled them to run up a 34-0 score yesterday.

The score does not indicate the advantage which the local team had over the East Siders. Roth, Wood and Bremser carried the ball for large gains, but to Roth, the quarterback went the individual scoring honors. Following the tactics of his predecessor, Gil Whitley of last year's champions, Roth plunged through the hole made by Ed Klaiber, the big center and counted four of the five touchdowns. Klaiber's entrance into the lineup greatly strengthened the Red and Black attack over last Saturday's showing.

Ed Woods, fullback, made a good showing, averaging around 40 yards on his punts and kicking four out of five goals after touchdowns.

REDS DEFEAT INDIANS, 2-1, IN SECOND GAME OF OHIO TITLE SERIES

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Cincinnati took the second game of the series from Cleveland here today, 2 to 1, in a hard-fought pitchers' battle between Schneider and Covleskie which went 13 innings. Cleveland scored in the first inning on a triple by Graney and a single by Speaker. Cincinnati tied it up in the fifth on Griffith's triple and Shean's sacrifice fly. Griffith again in the thirteenth inning paved the way by singling and later scored on a fly by Neale and Shean's single. Score:

WAGNERS BEATEN IN KANSAS CITY BY 7 TO 3 SCORE

St. Louis Champions Find Dunn Hard to Hit With Men on the Bases.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—The Schmelzers made the Wagners of St. Louis bite the dust of defeat here today in the first game of the series to decide the Municipal Baseball League championship, by the score of 7 to 3. The masterly pitching of Ernie Dunn in the pinches was all that kept the St. Louis lads from annexing the contest.

The Wagners could not connect with Dunn's delivery when hits meant runs. The game was more interesting than the score indicates, as in all but three innings the St. Louis club had men on bases.

Haub started on the slab for the Mound City aggregation and he lasted but three and two-thirds innings. When he returned the Schmelzers had made seven tallies and seven hits. Jequel, who was catching Haub up to that time, then took up the pitching duties himself and Conley became the backstopper.

Jequel Holds Kaws Safe.

Jequel hurled in grand style and he had Kansas City club on his staff from the very minute he decorated the rubber. In the four and one-third innings he worked, he allowed but one hit and not once was there any danger of a Schmelzer denting the home plate.

The Schmelzers were the first to score, putting over a run in the second inning. In the first part of the third, the Wagners jumped into the lead by crossing the plate three times. In that inning the St. Louis lads made three doubles, but bad base running lost them a chance to make more runs.

Haub, Hahn and Keenoy each hit for two bases in that inning. That was all the scoring the Wagners did. On several other occasions they had a chance, but the pinch hit was not there. In the Schmelzers' half of the third round they made five runs.

The winners loaded the bases of Haub with one out. Anderson doubled scoring two and Barker's swat put over two more. A single by Hannon put over the other run of the inning.

The Kansas City team got another counter of Haub in the fourth and with two opponents on and two out. Jequel took up the twirling and retired the next batter. From then on the locals could not get a man farther than second base.

The star southpaw hurler will pitch both games here for St. Louis. Whalen, who let the Ellermans down with one hit in St. Louis last Sunday, will work for the Schmelzers. If the Wagners win tomorrow's contest then a third game to decide the championship will have to be played Monday. The St. Louis lads are confident of copping Sunday's cambat.

FINAL WHISTLE SAVES RANKEN ELEVEN FROM DEFEAT BY MAPLEWOOD

The Ranken Training School eleven aided by the timely blowing of the final whistle defeated the Maplewood High representatives, 7-6, on Maplewood campus yesterdav afternoon. With the ball on Ranken's 2-yard mark and a touchdown in sight the timer blew the final whistle with the winning score but two yards away.

Prior to this the Ranken team had been extremely fortunate. Ramsey leaped into the air in the second quarter, intercepted a forward pass and ran 50 yards for the only touchdown of the victors. Bruno made good the subsequent kick and Ranken took the lead. Using straight football, the Maplewood aggregation plowed its way up to the Ranken 15-yard mark, from where Green skirted right end for the remaining distance and scored Maplewood's only touchdown. He missed the necessary point to tie the score.

Ranken was on the defensive throughout the entire game, but the county lads never displayed the final punch which would enable them to cross their opponents' line. Green for Maplewood and Bruno for Ranken were the stars.

White Sox' Team Play Perfect Taking Opener Behind Cicotte

Jackson's Shoe String Catch in Seventh Inning With Holke on First Base Saved Rowland's Men From Trouble—Sallee Pitches Fewer Balls Than Rival.

on the throw across the diamond. From the midway sack he was able to score easily when McMullin doubled over second.

The second and deciding run of the contest was a home run drive of remarkable power and length by Felsch in the fourth, when the Sox center fielder caught one of Sallee's sweeping curves on the end of his bat and sent the ball soaring more than 40 feet into the left field bleachers.

Sallee Drives In McCarty.

The Giants' lone talley came in the following inning, when Catcher McCarty hammered out a three-base hit between Felsch and J. Collins, which might have gone for a home run had the Giants' backstop been able to run faster. Recently recovered from a broken leg, however, the best McCarthy could do was reach third from which point he scored easily on Sallee's single.

There were several other times when the Giants threatened, but in every case sensational plays by the White Sox turned them back. The oustanding example of these wonderful defensive plays was a shoe-string catch by Jackson in the seventh inning, when he swept in on the run and caught McCarthy's drive just off the grass and finished with a somersault, coming up with the ball in his hands so quickly that Holke was easily held at first, which he had reached as the result of a single to right.

Another unusual angle of the play was the fact that Cicotte was forced to work harder as the winning pitcher than Sallee, who went down to defeat after hurling a creditable game in every respect.

Analysis of the balls pitched indicated that the Giants worked Cicotte harder than the latter's teammates did Sallee. The tendency of the White Sox to hit anything that looked good, instead of waiting out the opposing pitcher, was illustrated by the fact that Sallee threw only 86 balls in eight innings Cicottes total for nine innings was 101.

Each pitcher was a bit off in the third inning, Cicotte threw 20 times in that session, nine of his offerings being balls, two clean strikes, three foul strikes, two fouls, one hit safely and three hits to fielders.

The total balls pitched by innings:

Innings	Sallee.	Cicotte
First	10	13
Second	10	11
Third	15	20
Fourth	10	10
Fifth	13	14
Sixth	6	9
Seventh	8	9
Eighth	14	9
Ninth		6
Totals	86	101

In the sixth inning neither pitcher had a ball called and Cicotte repeated his feat in the ninth. In the whole game the totals of the various kinds of pitches were as follows:

Balls—Sallee, 24; Cicotte, [illegible]. Strikes—Sallee 19, Cicotte 22. Foul Strikes—Sallee 12, Cicotte 11. Fouls—Sallee 4, Cicotte 4. Safe hits—Sallee 7, Cicotte 7. Hit to fielders—Sallee [illegible], Cicotte 23.

Play by Play Account of Battle

First Inning.

NEW YORK—Burns, the first man up, waited until the count was 3 and 2 and singled over second. Herzog lifted an easy one to left where Jackson was waiting. Kauff's contribution made up in altitude what it lacked in distance and Jackson had to come up in the immediate rear of short to get it. Zimmerman had two strikes called on him when Burns made a dash which carried him safely to second. The National third sacker's fly went to Felsch. One hit; no runs.

CHICAGO—J. Collins rose to the occasion as the first of the locals at bat, as had Burns. He fouled off two and then lined to right center. McMullin flashed a single to J. Collins, that he was going to bunt, and Collins made second when Sallee and Holke retired McMullin. It was a beautiful sacrifice. E. Collins retired via the Fletscher-Holke route. Herzog ran back for Jackson's fly and ended the inning. One hit, no runs.

Second Inning.

NEW YORK—Gandil was under Fletscher's high foul. Robertson rolled a slow one to Cicotte, who threw him out at first. Holke sent a leisurely grounder towards first. Gandil and E. Collins both dove for it, Cicotte attempting to cover first, but the New Yorker beat the play. His triumph was brief, for McCarthy had hardly faced the pitcher when he was caught off first. One hit, no runs.

CHICAGO—Fletscher went back a few steps for Felsch's pop up. Gandil lined so hot a drive that Zimmerman dropped it for a second, but recovered in time to throw the runner out. Sallee and Holke handled Weaver's sharp bounder. No hits, no runs.

Third Inning.

NEW YORK—McCarty sent a long fly to left center, but Flesch trotted under it with comparative ease. Sallee popped to Weaver. Burns proved a good waiter and walked. He went to second on Herzog's clean single to right. Kauff ended the inning with a foul to Gandil. One hit, no runs.

CHICAGO—Zimmerman's big mitt stopped Schalk's drive and the batter was out. Cicotte caught one on the end of his bat for a single over second. J. Collins shot another to right and went to second when Cicotte tried to make third on the play. Cicotte was out. McMullin drove the first run over the plate, with a low fly to center, which bounded past Kauff for a double, Collins scoring. Zimmerman made a pretty catch of E. Collins' foul back of third base. Three hits; one run.

Fourth Inning.

NEW YORK—Zimmerman struck at the first ball pitched and fouled to Schalk. McMullin made a pretty pickup of Fletcher's fast grounder and retired the batter at first. Robertson slammed a double to right center, which might have carried him farther had it not been for Felsch's pretty one-handed stop and perfect throw in. He died there, however, as Holke was an easy out, McMullin to Gandil. One hit; no runs.

CHICAGO, Jackson sent an easy fly to left and was out. Felsch as he came to bat was aplauded for his stop of Robertson's drive and responded by driving the ball into the left field bleachers for a homer, which proved to be the winning run Gandil was retired, Sallee to Holke and Weaver flied out to Burns. One hit; one run.

Fifth Inning.

NEW YORK—McCarty sent a terrific three-base drive to the bleachers near the score board in center field. Only the injury to his leg last spring kept him from making the circuit. Sallee rose to the occasion with a single to short right on which McCarty scored the only run of the day for the visitors. Burns hit into a double play, which retired Sallee and himself, Weaver to E. Collins to Gandil. Herzog struck out. Two hits; one run.

CHICAGO—Schalk out, Holke unassisted. Cicotte was thrown out at first by Sallee. J. Collins duplicated Schalk's effort by another unassisted out at first. No hits; no runs.

Sixth Inning.

NEW YORK—Cicotte threw just nine balls in this inning. Kauff struck out on the first three of them. Zimmermann popped to Gandil and Fletcher's fly landed in the hands of Jackson. No hits; no runs.

CHICAGO—Sallee, not to be outdone, pitched only six balls. McMullin went out, Herzog to Holke. E. Collins struck out and Jackson added another unassisted putout for Holke. No hits; no runs.

Seventh Inning.

NEW YORK—Jackson nipped a rally in this inning with a hair-raising catch in short left. Robertson had gone out, third to first, and Holke had singled just out of Gandil's reach, when McCarty hit a low fly. Jackson, coming forward at top speed, took the ball off his shoe laces, tombled over, but came up with the ball in his hands. Sallee sent a fly to Felsch. One hit; no runs.

CHICAGO—Sallee threw out Felsch. Gandil's projectile-like drive did not hound quite as Zimmermann expected and went for a hit. He stole second and went to third on McCarty's wild throw. Weaver struck out. Schalk out, Fletcher to Holke. One hit; no runs.

Eighth Inning.

NEW YORK—Burns lined to center and Herzog skied to Jackson. Kauff hit to short and was safe on Weaver's wild throw He was nipped off first a moment later, Cicotte to Gandil to Collins. No hits; no runs; one error.

CHICAGO—Fletcher threw out Cicotte. J. Collins doubled to left. McMullin hit to Sallee and was safe while J. Collins was being run down between second and third, Sallee to Zimmermann to Herzog. McMullin died stealing, McCarty to Herzog. One hit; no runs.

Ninth Inning.

NEW YORK—Zimmermann out, Cicotte to Gandil. Fletcher popped to Weaver and Robertson skied to John Collins. No hits; no runs.

RIMS NEED ATTENTION

"Tire service should mean more than merely changing and repairing tires and tubes," remarked a Firestone tire service man.

"The experienced driver appreciates a service that takes care of his rims as well as his tires. Too many dealers who are giving an elaborate free tire service are overlooking this little item. Drivers usually know more about tires than they do about rims. That is because their tires give them more trouble than their rims. But frequently defective rims are the cause of their tire trouble. The conscientious service man will examine the rims carefully, make such minor repairs as appear necessary and advise the owner on the more important repairs."

The dealer pointed out that the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. is the only tire company manufacturing rims and that Firestone dealers have the advantage of being able to supply rims and rim parts made by tire specialists.

ST. LOUIS TRUCK MEN FORM ASSOCIATION

The dealers in motor trucks and commercial cars in general in St. Louis have organized an association of their own to be known as the St. Louis Motor Truck Dealers' Association.

The initial meeting was held at the office of the General Motors Truck Co., and Charles E. Paggett of the Federal Truck Co., was made temporary chairman and W. E. Conway of the Garford Truck Co., treasurer and acting secretary. Two plans of organization are under consideration, one of them being a distinct and separate body from the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, the other being to make the truck association a bureau, or division of the Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association. All of these details are to be worked out at a meeting to be held at a place not yet decided upon, Monday night, Oct. 15, to which all truck dealers in St. Louis will be invited.

STATE INSPECTING COUNTY SEAT ROADS

Road drag inspectors appointed by the Missouri State Highway Department are now making a personal inspection of intercounty seat roads throughout the State, to see that drag funds are being properly expended. These inspectors were sent out by the State department because of numerous complaints received from counties to the effect that the roads were not being properly dragged, and that in some instances the funds appropriated by the State were not being applied upon the roads at all. The inspectors are covering the entire State, and will report any failure to drag the roads at proper times. Citizens living along the intercounty seat highways are also requested to notify the State Highway Department if the roads are not receiving attention, as the State department is determined to secure the best possible results from the expenditure of the drag funds.

HUDSON 1918 CARS HERE

The Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co. has received from the Hudson factory several of the newer models of fall and winter cars, built in the 1918 style. The Hudson for 1918 in its closed car models has made several departures from the ordinary and has produced closed cars of a character to be very attractive to the buyer who is looking for an automobile of the Hudson price and known high quality.

THREE CLOSED MODELS TO BE SHOWN BY VELIE

The Velie Automobile Co. of St. Louis has received their shipment of closed cars for the show open week.

They consist of the cabriolet, coupe and sedan. This is the third year for the coupe in almost the identical size and style and one of the most attractive coupes in the gas-car field, being very neat in size, yet roomy for four people. The car is mounted on a 115-inch wheel base, making it very easy to handle in the congested district, and with its very flexible motor it is possible to drive it from a walk on up without the shifting of the gear.

The cabriolet is mounted on the same chassis and has a very comfortable seating arrangement for three people. It has large side windows, which drop into the side of the car, and the top folds back for summer service.

The touring sedan is a five-passenger car which has the possibilities of a limousine in the winter time and the open car in the summer time. On this the doors are staggard, the left hand door is by the driver's seat, making it very easily accessible; the right hand door is between the driver's seat and the rear seat. There is an added feature to this year's sedan in the extra seat in front having a movable back so that the party that sits along beside the driver can face either with the driver or with the people in the tonneau or with the people on the rear seat. There is an aisle between the front seat that makes it absolutely a family car.

The models are all upholstered in gray whipcord, very handsomely finished. These are finished with the French plait over deep, comfortable springs.

The Velie closed car line also carries with it the town car or brougham, of exquisite refinement, which they were unable to show at this time.

MADE LONG DRIVE ALL IN HIGH GEAR

Driving from Indianapolis to Buffalo, N. Y., on high gear, never shifting for the State line and the Girard hills, averaging 25 miles an hour for the entire trip, and making an average of 14 miles to the gallon of gasoline, was the performance of the brand-new Marmon 34 driven by Charles F. Monroe of Buffalo, N. Y.

"We left Indianapolis Sunday morning and arrived here Monday evening, covering the entire 545 miles on high gear," stated Mr. Monroe upon his arrival in Buffalo. "We made 245 miles the first day and 300 miles the second day over rough and dusty roads, including 12 detours. The car was taken from the stock room and the performance on the road shows its great stability. I have enjoyed many automobile rides, but this was the greatest I ever had. In fact, I was amazed at the easy manner in which a big mileage can be covered in a day by a Marmon car. With a brand-new car, an average speed of 25 miles an hour was maintained, and we recorded an average of 14 miles to the gallon of gasoline. All this was accomplished with a new car over roads that were cut up deplorably and were thick with dust."

EXPECT GREATER USE OF CLOSED CAR TYPES

"The remarkable growth of the closed car trade is an entirely natural evolution," says John D. Mansfield of the Dort Motor Car Co., writing to the Kardell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis.

"It is not due to any sudden realization of the motoring public that this type is the most practical thing to buy, but rather to the improvement in the product itself, a greatly increased output and lower prices.

"A well-built Sedan was held a few years ago at a price making it almost prohibitive to a large majority of people. Now a splendid coach can be obtained at a figure not materially in excess of the price of a touring car. I am merely reciting a typical manufacturing experience when I state that the call for Dort Sedans and Sedanets will vastly increase this year."

SPECIALLY PAINTED JOBS

The Overland Automobile Co. has prepared an extensive display of its various lines, including the Willys-Knight Six, for showing during the St. Louis Open Week, at its big building at Twenty-third and Locust streets. An unusual feature of the company's display will be a line of especially painted jobs on which unusual and highly attractive color schemes have been used.

The sales force of the company will be on duty each evening during Open Week until 10:30.

BUILDING NEW HOME.

Frank Bishop, president of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., announces that he is negotiating for a new building. In his present location at 3143 Locust street he handles the Briscoe and the Marion-Handley lines and the present quarters are becoming too cramped for these two important cars, on which he has been very successful. Bishop has been in the present location for one year and his connection with the automobile business dates back to 1904.

SHOWING NEW "CHUMMY"

The new Wescott Chummy has but recently been received by the Brandle Motors Co., and is now on exhibition at the company's show room.

The new model has already won a popular verdict as one of the season's most attractive exhibits in the pleasure car line. Among the numerous striking features is its finish in a beautiful cherry red, with black fenders and running gear and white wire wheels. It is equipped with Silvertown Cord tires, and in every detail shows the care with which the latest Westcott model is built.

LIBERTY SIX

I Have Secured The Liberty Franchise

I have secured the franchise to sell Liberty cars in this territory.

The reason I wanted the franchise was that I wanted to buy for my own personal use the first Liberty car I rode in.

That first ride in the Liberty—it was not my Liberty either,—made me sit up straight and pay attention.

The difference in the Liberty is immediately noticeable in the way it rides and drives.

You will notice it, no matter how limited your experience may have been.

My wide experience told me in the first ten minutes that I had encountered an unusual car.

I determined, however, not to be swept off my feet.

I went at it to find out why there should be such a difference in the way the Liberty rides and drives.

I found, for instance, as Percy Owen, the President of the Liberty Company, says, that I sat in the car instead of on it.

The location of the steering wheel spelled complete comfort.

The control lever and switch were just where they ought to be.

The gear shifted with a finger touch.

The emergency brake could be set fast by a three-year-old tot.

The slightest pressure depressed the clutch.

I rode in the tonneau alone.

That's a test that destroys many a dream of easy riding.

Some cars have to have passenger-weight to hold the springs down.

It was not so with the Liberty.

Riding alone in the tonneau, I was just as easy as when I rode with two friends and no more so.

I did not stop here, of course.

The real test of a car is the personnel of the men who make it.

I went to the factory.

I can't tell you, here, all the fine things I found out.

But I want to tell you the story in person.

Briefly — there isn't even one stockholder in the Liberty Company who wasn't bred and broadened in the motor car business.

A half a dozen of the more active accociates occupy positions of honor in the industry than which there are no higher.

They started out to build a car which would produce exactly the effect of surprise the Liberty did produce on me in the first ten minutes.

I am eager to show you that instead of over-stating, I have understated this Liberty difference in driving and riding.

When can I let you sit at the wheel and see and feel for yourself?

HONOR CONVICTS BUILD OLD TRAILS ROAD LINK

Camp Established at Mineola Proving Value of System Devised to Rehabilitate Prison Inmates.

MONTGOMERY, Mo., Oct. 5.—The Mineola hills in Montgomery County long regarded as a barrier to transcontinental traffic over the National Old Trails road in Missouri, will be but a memory when 30 convicts, the first honor road builders from the State prison, complete the work commenced this week at Mineola. Engineer W. E. Barnes of the State Highway Department is in charge of construction and the camp is under the direct supervision of J. P. Johnson, representing the State Prison Board.

The men in this camp have sentences of from several months to 10 years yet to serve. They will be given a credit of 10 days for each month of faithful work on the roads. It was through the efforts of A. C. McKibbin, secretary of the State Highway Board, that this camp was established without guards and that the men are clothed as free laborers. Mr. McKibbin submitted to Gov. Gardner and the State Prison Board a brief saying that the honor system in working prisoners on roads has been successful in every State in which it has been adopted.

Camp Under Military Discipline.

The work about the Mineola camp moves with the order and precision of a military organization. A bugler sounds reveille, mess calls and taps, and one of the men has been detailed as color sergeant to hoist and lower a flag, which was raised ceremoniously when the camp was established.

The dining tent is 18x42 feet, and is provided with tables and benches. It is scrubbed throughout after each meal, and is kept clean and inviting at all times.

The food supply is wholesome and plentiful, and is prepared by two of the best cooks from the prison force. Two large ranges are installed in the cookhouse, and a refrigerator holding 400 pounds of ice keeps the meats and other supplies in good condition. This is the menu for one day:

Breakfast—Prunes, bacon and eggs, cream gravy, hot rolls and butter, coffee. Dinner—Roast beef, brown gravy, cottage fried potatoes, spaghetti, hot cornbread, raisin pie, coffee. Supper — Cold roast beef, cream gravy, peas, French fried potatoes, rice pudding, fresh light bread, coffee.

The walls of the commissary tent are lined with lumber, to protect sugar, salt and other supplies from the weather, and the commissary takes on much the appearance of a well-ordered grocery store on a small scale. It is presided over by one of the prisoners, who is an expert accountant, and who weighs to the fractional part of an ounce all supplies received at the camp. A distribution sheet shows the average cost per man of food, clothing, medical supplies and the like.

Careful attention is paid to sanitation. A combination bath and barber tent is provided, and the men are required to bathe and be shaved at least twice each week.

All the tents have board floors and the entire camp is lighted electrically from a small individual plant, which is housed in a tent on the grounds. The lighting is one of the most attractive features of the camp. Magazines and books are supplied and a good light for reading is conducted under favorable conditions.

Hawes Sponsored Plan.

This prison road camp was established under the provisions of House Bill No. 5 and House Bill No. 448, both of which were introduced in the last Legislature by Harry B. Hawes, and is in accord with the policy of Gov. Frederick D. Gardner.

The State Prison Board receives $1.25 per day for each man actually at work on the roads, one-half of this sum being paid by the Mineola road district and the other half by the State Highway Department. The per diem paid for the men actually engaged in road construction includes the services of the superintendent, commissary man, cooks and waiters, barbers and others required to maintain the camp.

Business men of Mineola and residents in general have praised the conduct of the prison camp and the excellent showing the men are making on the road. No fear is expressed because of the presence of the prisoners without guards and without stripes, and the general attitude of the citizens of the community toward the camp is friendly.

Warden Gilvin of the State prison reports 500 men now available for road work and all counties desiring to obtain their services should make formal application to the State Highway Department and State Prison Board through their County Courts. The men will be furnished upon the same terms as those supplied to the Mineola road district.

USSIAN COUNCIL TO NAME CABINET TAKES A RECESS

mbers Still Hopeful as They Leave Winter Palace After Six Hours' Deliberation.

PETROGRAD, Friday, Oct. 5.— government council, the repre- tatives of the Moscow industrial rests and five peasants 'and sol- ' delegates from the democratic gress who have been in confer- in an earnest attempt to settle sia's political and economic crisis not reached an agreement when took a recess this evening af- six hours' consultation with a to the formation of a coalition net. The men, as they came out the conference room, were still a hopeful frame of mind, it ap- red, however, although the gov- ment would not discribe the situ- on as one to be viewed with op- ism.

The conference, which was held in Winter Palace, with Premier ensky presiding, was a unique thering represtative of revolution- Russia. It was the firs ttime the shaggy peasants and sol- rs, who had been accustomed to monstrating against and attack- the Bourgeoise, had sat with m on equal terms at the council ble.

The Moscow representatives, M. hkin, Konovaloff, Tretiapoff and Smirnoff, wealthy industrial leaders, carefully-groomed and sauve in manner, contrasted sharply in the council room picture with their bluntly eloquent opponents in peasant garb.

Democratic Congress Adjourns.

It is understood that the government, as well as the Moscow leaders stood firmly for the necessity of admitting representatives of the constitutional democrats to the cabinet and that this question was still the stumbling block at the hour he recess was taken.

The democratic congress adjourned tonight after having appointed a preliminary parliament of 305 membres who will begin their sittings tomorrow and continue in session until the meeting of the constitutent assembly.

Simultaneously, the Petrograd Council of Soldiers' and Workmens' Deputies, disappointed with the work of the democratic Congress, has ordered the convocation of a general council of the Soldier's and Workmen's Deputies of all Russia, to meet in Petrograd.

Two Parliaments Possible.

The adjournment of the democratic congress seemed t ocomplicate ation. The resolution adopted by ation. The resloution adopte dby the Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies declaring the country in grave danger from a counter revolutionary movement also charges that the parliament convoked by the democratic congress includes conservative forces which are strong enough to block the course of true democracy.

The situation thus ma yresolve itself into the case of two parliaments sitting at once, and each claiming power. Awake to the situation cretade by the Soldiers' an dWorkmen's atcoin , the government is bending all efforts to hasten the formation of the cabinet ni the hope of clearing up the tangle.

Before adjourning, the democratic congress voted down a resolution urging all the democracies to "make a speedy democratic peace."

The Finnish Senate has prepared a plan for the formation of a new independent Government for Finland with a President elected by direct vote for a 5-year term and with a Cabinet responsible to the Diet, according to a special dispatch from Helsingfors. It is proposed to send diplomatic representatives to other nations and also ask representation in the general peace conference.

The expectation is expressed that after the war, Russia will withdraw her military forces, vacating the fortresses.

NEGRO BANDIT'S SLAYER ARMS SELF, FEARING VENGEFUL ATTACK

Joseph Cippola, 19-year-old slayer of the negro who on several different nights early last week forced women to bind their escorts with a rope and then submit to indignities, was arrested early yesterday as the result of an anoymous complaint that he was carrying a loaded revolver in his service car at Eleventh street and Franklin avenue.

Cipolla explained that he carried the gun to defend himself against a possible attack by friends of the slain negro. He was held a prisoner at the Carr Street Station several hours and released when the Prosecuting Attorney refused to issue a warrant. The fact that he carried the weapon on the seat of the automobile absolved him from a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, the Prosecuting Attorney said.

The police contend that the danger of an attack by the slain negro's friends did not justify Cippola in carrying a revolver.

FATHERLAND PARTY PAN-GERMAN, SAYS SOCIALIST LEADER

Landsberg Tells Reichstag Institution Aims to Purchase Papers to Influence Public.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—The Reichstag, according to Berlin dispatches, today discussed the Socialist interpellation concerning Admiral von Tirpitz and the new German Fatherland party. The Socialist, Herr Landsberg, declared the new party was a pan-German institution, its particular object being to obtain support for its leaders by means of war profits and the purchase of newspapers to influence public opinion and set forth Germany's war aims which would give them increased dividends. The Socialists, on the contrary, declared Herr Landsberg demanded that the freedom of the nation should be promoted because democracy was its greatest strength. Referring to the agitation in behalf of the new party's propaganda against the Reichstag peace resolution, Herr Landsberg said:

"We must get out of the suffocating atmosphere of a state of siege. The War Minister must admit that he protects the agitation, as he himself wrote a polemic against the Reichstag resolution.

"The way of the sword this time will not spoil the good work of the pen. The Chancellor must in his own interest and that of the nation declare against pan-German agitation. On his attitude greatly depends the country's attitude and greatly depends the country's welfare."

Herr Landsberg told how clergymen and the State authorities agitated among the population on behalf of the Fatherland party, and how officers, by speeches and the distribution of pamphlets, carried on a propaganda among the soldiers against the Reichstag resolution.

Minister of War von Stein, in replying to Herr Landsberg, declared that the army command did not permit political agitation within the army. This caused a stir and cries of "Oh! Oh!" from the left. Thereupon the President pointed out the impossibility of further debate under such conditions and begged the Deputies to resume their seats.

Minister von Stein, in continuing, said:

"The explanations given in the army are quite different in tendencies and purport. In view of the enemy's dies, which are circulated all around the world, it is clear that our soldiers must be enlightenod concerning the real causes of the war and the enemy's intentions and the consequences if we lost. Men on leave must be enlightened regarding the difficulties at home and to this must be added some explanation about supplies.

"The army hungers for intellectual nutriment and, therefore, the army command has issued general instructions regarding lectures, plays, cinemas, pamphlets and army newspapers. There is no word of politics in this. It may be true that certain impulsive natures exceeded these limits, but steps were immediately taken against this."

Minister von Stein asserted there were other sorts of agitation, such as reports that differences existed between Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Quartermaster-General von Ludendorff. He added that no two persons in Germany were so united in their convictions as these two leaders.

The War Minister then charged that enemy agents were endeavoring to induce dissensions and vacillation among the German people, therefore principles had been laid down for the army in the field and the army at home. He declared that the enemy, too, had his army propaganda to uphold and to instill the spirit of victory in their ranks.

"We aim also at maitnaing the spirit of our army at the level with which it entered on the campaign," Minister von Stein asserted.

"No army which lacks the will to gain victory and a confidence in victory is a serviceable instrument. We could drop all this and leave the rest to the enemy. As we do not, however, wish this, nor do you, we shall continue to use enlightenment in this sense in our army."

CHAIRMAN COWGILL TO RESIGN

State Democratic Committee Expected to Elect Neale.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—James Cowgill of Kansas City, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, today told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he intended to call a meeting of the committee, probably before Nov. 1, to tender his resignation as chairman. Cowgill recently accepted an appointment as a member of the Board of Election Commissioners of Kansas City, tendered him by Gov. Gardner.

"I do not believe any man should hold a position under the State and at the same time be the head of a political party committee," Cowgill said, "and, although there is no campaign near, I believe I should resign and permit the committee to select a new chairman." It is understood that a majority of the committee have agreed upon Ben M. Neale, a lawyer of Greenfield, to succeed Cowgill. Neale is known as a Progressive Democrat.

SHOTS FAIL TO STOP FUGITIVE

Detective Sergeant Helmholt last night fired several shots at a fleeing prisoner in a dash across the city hall lawn in an attempt to recapture the man, whom he had picked up as an auto thief suspect, and who jumped from an automobile in which he had been brought to police headquarters, as it stood in front of the station.

The chase continued to Fifteenth street and Clark avenue, where the prisoner ran into an alley and escaped. As the man ran across the City Hall park he threw away a watch and fob, which were recovered by a woman and turned over to the police. It is thought the watch had been stolen.

M'CLUNG IN LETTER INSISTED ON AIDING SLATE'S CAMPAIGN

Ignored Cowgill's Demand That Entire Prison Collection Be Turned Over to State Committee

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—James Cowgill, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, today gave to a Post-Dispatch reporter for publication the corrrespondence which passed between him and D. C. McClung, indicted ex-Warden of the Missouri penitentiary, regarding the $2858 collected by McClung from penitentiary employes for campaign purposes, and which did not reach the State Committee.

It is understood here that the special grand jury, which has been investigating State official irregularities and which already has returned 14 indictments, will begin an inquiry Monday into the disbursement of the prison employes contributions.

The letters reveal that McClung failed in an attempt to obtain Cowgill's consent for the use of a portion of the money in behalf of Judge J. G. Slate, in whose court McClung is under indictment, and State Senator Sam B. Cook of Jefferson City, but that he afterward said he had so used the money.

Judge Slate yesterday declined to tell a Post-Dispatch reporter whether he would sit in the trial of McClung in view of the revelations concernnig the use of the money.

Letter From Cowgill.

The first letter in the correspondence was written by Cowgill Oct. 4, 1916, and was as follows:

"Dear Mack—I have refrained from having the usual letter asking for contributions sent to the employes of the penitentiary because I know you have already collected some money from them, and have been patiently waiting for it to be turned over to the State Committee. The truth of the mater is the treasury is empty and the committee will be obliged if you will at once turn over to them the money you are holding. It is very important, Mack, that we have this. The books show we are more than $5000 in the red now, and contributions are few and far between.

"Kindly give this matter your early attention and oblige.

"I note by the papers your health is somewhat impaired, but I trust it is only temporary and that you will soon be in your usual vigorous condition.

"With kindest personal regards. Yours very truly,

"JAMES COWGILL,
"Chairman."

To this letter McClung replied the following day on the stationery of the Missouri State Penitentiary:

"My Dear Sir: I have your letter of the 4th inst., and will say in reply that if you remember the last day I was at headquarters, which was soon after you took charge, I told you that the subscriptions at the penitentiary would have to be divided, as it always has been, between the county and the State committee and that the remained, after I had paid the county about $800, ought to be used in the election of Judge Slate in this judicial circuit and Sam B. Cook in this senatorial district.

"I went over all this with you, if you will remember, and you agreed that it was as important to elect Judge Slate here in the capital (the word capital was underscored in the letter) as it was any other office in the State, possibly outside of the Governor.

"Then I suggested that the remainder of that should be used in the judicial circuit and you agreed to it and told me to go ahead and do it.

"Now I have gone over this matter with thes eegntlemen here and our organization and arrangements are almost complete. No doubt you have forgotten about this conversation with me. I also told Doc Brydon of the arrangements you and I had made and as well as I remember this arrangement was made in the presence of George Middlekamp, although I am not positive about that, but I am sure after I have called your attention to it you will remember.

"After the county here has been financed, which we always have to do, which we did two years ago and four years ago, giving the county committee about $800 each time, there would not be a great sum left.

"Hoping this will remind you of our arrangements, which I knew you have overlooked, I remain,

Very truly yours,
"D. C. McClnug,
"Warden".

Cowgill replied to this letter Oct. 6:

"Dear Mack—Your lettter of the 5th inst. received, and its contents are a very great surprise to me.

"Now, Mack, you did not mention to me, and I remember the conversation very well, that it was customary to divide with the Cole County committee any sum collected from the penitentiary employes, but at no time did I ever agree, nor was it suggested that it was your intention to take charge of this entire amount and use it for strictly county and district purposes. I am willing to do the fair thing by all of our candidates and realize the importance of electing both Judge Slate and Sam B. Cook; but it is equally as important that all our other circuit judges be elected and certainly that State Senator should be permitted to share in the funds collected for the Stat eCommittee.

"My idea is, and I hope you will see it in that light, the whole sum should be sent to the State committee and let the State committee distribute it, returning to Cole County and your judicial and senatorial districts such portion thereof as may be deemed proper.

"I am sure you have no desire to embarrass the State committee nor place us in a position where we will be obliged to embarrass you by calling on your people for assistance when they will, or might, come forward and say you have the money which they gave for State campaign purposes, to be used by the State committee. It is to relieve you of this possible embarrassment that I want again to urge you to turn over to this committee the fund collected in its entirety, being assured that we will use our best efforts to meet your needs when presented to the committe.

"Awaiting your response. Yours very truly,

"JAMES COWGILL,
"Chairman."

McClung Sent $250.

McClung did not reply to this letter, Cowgill said, but Oct. 25, nearly three weeks later, McClung wrote Cowgill inclosing a draft for $250. His letter follows:

"Dear Sir: I am inclosing you a draft, No. 1008, on the Central Missouri Trust Co. for $250, a part of our collection at the penitentiary. Yours truly,

"D. C. McCLUNG,
"Warden."

Cowgill replied Oct. 27:

"Dear Mack: I am in receipt of draft for $250, representing part of a collection taken by you at the penitentiary. Please send list of names to whom receipts are to be forwarded, that our records may be entirely straight. Your prompt reply will be appreciated. Yours very truly,

"JAMES COWGILL,
"Chairman."

No reply to this was received, Cowgill said, and Nov. 2 Cowgill wrote to McClung:

"Dear Mack: Please be referred to my recent letter and advise me by return mail whether the check for $250 you sent is a personal contribution, and if not, let me have the list of contributors that proper receipt may be mailed them.

"Thanking you for immediate attention. Yours very truly,

"JAMES COWGILL,
"Chairman."

Cowgill Returned Draft.

Cowgill said McClung did not reply to that and Nov. 10, after the election, he returned the draft, writing to McClung:

Dear Mack—"In cleaning up my desk this morning I find the attached draft for $250 which you forwarded with your letter of Oct. 25.

"I have written you twice asking for the names of the donors that proper receipts might be sent them. No list has been received and I am left no alternative, but to return the draft to you, as I cannot accept money for which no proper receipt can be issued, in order to keep the records straigth, and that there may be no suspicion attaching to any one connected with the headquarters that the money was not accounted for.

"Please acknowledge receipt to me at Kansas City, Republic building, and oblige, your very truly.

"JAMES COWGILL,
Chairman."

McClung Did Not Answer.

This letter ended the correspondence, Cowgill stating that McClung did not answer it.

The collections and disbursements of the funds were investigated last January by a sub-committee of the State Committee of which William J. Fleming of Monett was chairman. In an exclusive interview in Friday's Post-Dispatch, Fleming stated that McClung had told the committee that he had used the greater part of the money in the interests of the candidacies of Judge Slate, Senator Cook and John P. Gordon, who was a candidate for State Auditor.

Fleming also said Cook had told him he had not received any portion of the penitentiary collection. Fleming made a demand on McClung for the $250 after the investigation and in May, McClung paid $200 of it to Doc Brydon, secretary of the State Committee.

WOMEN PROTEST COUNCIL REPORT ON MILK PRICES

Organizations Declare That Situation in St. Louis Is Intolerable.

ASK RELIEF OF HOOVER

Missouri and Illinois Governors Appealed to for Bi-State Investigation Commission.

Members of 17 women's organizations protested to the Board of Aldermen yesterday against the action of a special aldermanic committee, which submitted a report Friday declaring that local distributers were justified in "charging a price not exceeding 13 or 14 cents per quart for milk delivered to customers." The organizations requested that the proceedings of the "secret meetings" of the committee be published. The committee's report was characterized as "wholly unsatisfactory."

The organizations were: The Woman's Central Committee on Food Conservation, the Women's Committee of the Civic League, the Equal Suffrage League, the Woman's Council, the Catholic Women's Association, the Consumers' League, the Council of Mothers' Circles, the Conference of Mothers' Clubs and Parent Teachers' Association, Social Service Department of Washington University Dispensary, Children's Aid Society, Missouri Suffrage Association, Women's Trade Union League, Anti-High Price League, Y. W. C. A., Provident Association, Conference of Federations and the Central Council of Social Agencies.

Hoover's Aid Is Asked.

Mrs. E. M. Grossman, Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price and Lucille B. Lowenstein were appointed a committee to take immediate action on the milk situation." The organizations telegraphed to Food Administrator Hoover soliciting his help and wrote Gov. Gardner of Missouri and Gov. Lowden of Illinois, urging them to create a bi-state investigation commission.

Women members of the Civic League will make a luncheon at the St. Louis Lunch Room, Tenth and Locust streets, next Thursday, the occasion for a further discussion of plans to reduce milk prices. President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen has been invited to enlighten the women's organizations as to the city's authority to regulate prices. He will explain the workings of bi-state commissions that have been established by Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

J. Charless Cabanne of the St. Louis Dairy Co. has promised to speak on "The Distribution Problem," and a representative of the Southern Illinois Producers' Association will give the basis of the producers' charge for milk.

The letter sent by the organizations to the Board of Aldermen is in part as follows:

Say Situation Is Intolerable.

"We feel that the proceedings of your secret meetings should be published to enable more concrete and valuable deductions to be made than your short report contains. We ask you to register your vote as a member of the special milk committee that the women's organizations be given a complete copy of the proceedings.

"The milk situation here is intolerable and unless the public knows that the greatest effort is being made to better prices, it will soon take matters into its hands and law-breaking disturbances will result. Permit us to add that our organizations represent probably in their membership the majority of the women citizens of St. Louis. Delegates from these bodies formed a temporary organization yesterday and authorized some immediate action in the milk situation."

The special aldermanic committee reported that "realizing our inability to control or question the price charged by producers in Illinois," it had contented itself with an effort to find the cost of distribution in St. Louis.

"This cost varies with different concerns, ranging from $2.66 to .75 per 100 pounds" (11.63 gallons), the committee said. This cost, added to the price of $3.20 per 100 pounds at the receiving stations, the committee said, "justifies local distributers in charging a price not exceeding 13 or 14 cents per quart for milk delivered to customers."

A. W. Hobler Joins Gardner Advertising Organization.

Mr. A. W. Hobler, for the past six years connected with the Appleton Mfg. Co., has joined the staff of the Gardner Advertising Co.

For the past four years Mr. Hobler has been general sales manager of the Appleton Mfg. Co., manufacturers of agricultural implements at Batavia, Ill. He resigned from this position to take a responsible position with the Gardner Advertising Co.

"It seems like getting back home to be connected with the Gardner company," says Mr. Hobler. "My first business experience was obtained with the Gardner company, having come directly from college to learn the advertising business. From there I went to Batavia to work for the Appleton company, whose account was at that time, and still is, being handled by the Gardner Advertising Co. In that way I kept very closely in touch with the agency, and expect to feel very much at home with them now."

Gauss' Combined Treatment for CATARRH Sent FREE to All

Disgusting

Catarrh Victims Fearfully Nauseating to Those Who Are Near to Them.

A Free Proof Package of Gauss' Combined Treatment for Catarrh Sent to All Who Write for It.

"You Are Sentenced to Deportation. Society Cannot Put Up With Your Nauseating Catarrh Habits Any Longer."

That is what most people would like to say to the man or woman who suffers from this abominable disease. It is not because society does not pity the poor victims, for it does, but because disgust is so much stronger than pity that it outweighs it.

Of course the poor victim cannot help the catarrhal practices that so nauseate everybody else—they are a part of the disease from which he suffers—but it is simply impossible for the average healthy man or woman to overcome the disgust that he or she feels at having to witness such unspeakable exhibitions. Neither friendship nor love can rise superior to these sights, sounds and odors that revolt in spite of all attempts to check the revulsion. The victim becomes a social outcast, despite all his or her good qualities, simply because it is a trial to everyone else to have him or her in the vicinity.

Much may be borne, for the sake of politeness and from a feeling of pity, but seldom indeed does one leave the presence of a catarrhal unfortunate without heaving a sigh of relief at being again in the pure, sweet, undefiled air, away from obnoxious breath-odors, and out of sight of those symptomatic habits that turn the stomach sick.

Most pitiful of all is the fact that so many of these catarrh victims do not recognize that they are objects of disgust to all around them. They do not smell their own breaths and do not, therefore, know how offensive they are. No one tells them, because no one wants to hurt their feelings. The catarrhal person doesn't notice his own acts in clearing his throat, blowing his nose and spitting, because he is so accustomed to these things, and they are so necessary to him that he pays no more attention to them than he does to his breathing. Everybody else notices them, though, and everybody else wishes they didn't have to notice them.

These catarrhal practices, both pitiful and disgusting, are enough to make even the members of one's own family breathe a sigh of relief when the door closes after the victim.

Love itself wavers and disgust forbids the kiss. And out of regard for the afflicted one, little mention of his pollution is ever made to his face, and he must rely on his own misery and such plain talk as is contained in this page to reach him and to help him. A way to stop this pestilence is within the reach of everyone. It was not always so. Catarrh has raged fiercely through the years like a firebrand, and in the eagerness to quench it, many useless things were given out as cures, but it remains now after the slow process of extermination and discovery, to offer the positive, real and effective treatment, which has been born of ceaseless searching and common sense.

Thousands Praise Gauss.

This is Gauss' Combined Treatment for Catarrh. The story is told over and over again a thousand times of the lost birthright to health restorer, of the happiness caused, of the release from a degrading pestilence and of hope and comfort and sleep returned by the use of this wonderful, simple Gauss treatment. It must be true. There are heart-stories from all over the land that bubble up from gratitude. They tell, as nothing else can, the misery in which catarrh plunges, the danger it brings, the deaths it causes, and then again there are other pictures painted in these letters of happiness and health redeemed, lost energy restored and ambition reclaimed.

Send the Coupon.

If you are a catarrh victim, don't allow yourself any longer to be avoided by your friends because of your catarrh atmosphere, to be an object of nauseous disgust among strangers, to have people you know turn their faces away from you when you talk to them, to have people move away from you and stick up their noses as you sit next to them, to have your family hate to have you come around—all because of the catarrh odor that everywhere and always makes you an outcast.

Gauss' Combined Treatment for Catarrh stops bad catarrh breath right off short and quick, and kills every catarrh germ in the body. If a man or woman will spend comparatively little time and money it takes to stop catarrh by means of the great Gauss Treatment, the little coupon at the corner of this page will be cut out and sent flying toward Marshall, Michigan, with the patient's name and address on it. By return mail you will be sent the Gauss Treatment absolutely free for you to try and prove to yourself its great power. If you are a sufferer of catarrh, send coupon below today to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Michigan, and get back a trial package of the treatment that has released so many from their catarrh misery.

Confessions of a Catarrh Victim

Some of the Experiences That Catarrh Forces Upon Its Slaves.

I get boiling mad when people tell me I've got catarrah. I've had dozens of mere acquaintances, and especially one young lady, who have come up and ventured to tell me something "for my own benefit." That expression begins to pall on me—"for my own benefit." It seems they all want to tell me the same thing—"You ought to take something for your catarrh; I'll tell you how my cousin got cured, and every doctor used to say he had the worst case he ever heard about."

Now, where a friend puts his hand to to my shoulder, I gulp in preparation for catarrh advice. This gulp is not mere throat action, but this swallowing of mucus. Nothing would suit me better than to have the earth open and swollow me up.

I walk along the street close to the curbstone. When I ride on a car, I stand on the rear platform rather than sit down inside.

I wish I could talk without having to open my mouth to breathe. I wish that kisses were obsolete. I wish that handkerchiefs could be turned into sheets. I wish that no chair but mine would be placed at the table. I wish that other people were deaf, blind and without noses.

I wish that I were alone always alone, to hawk and spit when and where I please. I wish that I was my mother's little fairy once more, with my tousled head that knew not disease lying on her warm shoulder.

Now I feel that I am an outcast. I know what they think of me, every one. I know my friends shun me, for even Jack, my old college chum, doesn't come around and chat and smoke any more as he used to do. My acquaintances only say hello, and pass by. Mrs. Grundy next door and all the other neighbors are talking about how repulsive I am. I see it in the way they look and act. People I sit next to get up and move somewhere else. People who talk to me turn their heads at an angle. And I'm in pain. It is not alone physical pain. It's my mind, too, that is in agony. I can't remember things as I used to. I say things I don't mean, and mean things I I don't say.

Trained Nurses Strongly Recommend Gauss' Catarrh Treatment to All Sufferers.

My head is thick and my brain is in a fog.

I walk alone, my work palls me, and nerves refuse me, that let-her-go feeling has got me. I relish nothing I eat, and my appetite is gone. And as I think of my misery I must hawk again. My cough is a rattle. The ruby has been plucked from my cheeks, the flush of my young health is gone. My head is in a fever, but my hands are cold, and I seem to feel in them the approaching chill of the tomb—I have read of catarrh death, and my mother's brother died of the same disease. Come on, death, and relieve me.

No, my mother comes, who Gauss, did you say, mother? Do you think so? I'll try, mother. Yes, you send for the treatment; I'll use it faithfully, I won't let go a single day without using it. They prove it in every case, do you say? All right; send on the coupon today. Perhaps, after all, there is a cure, and still one person in the world to live for, one who will love you in spite of the catarrh—your mother.

An Old Soldier Grateful

Mr. Gauss: I have finished your treatment now, and I am completely cured. My wife says she cannot detect any of it left and says my catarrh is gone. She oughtto know, for she is a graduate nurse. I am as truly grateful to you as an old soldier can be for what your treatment has done for me, and certainly will recommend it to those whom I know are afflicted. You are certainly at liberty to use this if you want to recommend your treatment to others. W. B. PLUMB.

Catarrh Everywhere, Even on Pike's Peak

No Man or Place Is Immune From the Deadly Catarrh Germ.

There is no part of the land which is free from catarrh. Altitudes and latitudes have little effect in destroying the omnipresent germ. Many imagine that the climate of the West, with its high altitudes and dry atmosphere, tends to prevent catarrh. There are just as many cases in proportion to the population, west as east of the Mississippi, only the disease is not so severe because of the climatic effect upon the nerves.

"Happy Together Once More! Mr. Gauss Has Rid Me of My Catarrh."

Even on Pike's Peak, which is over 14,000 feet above the sea level, catarrh seemed to attack several of the attaches of the signal station located there some years ago.

No place is exempt, no human soul is immune from catarrh. Don't imagine because you don't live by a lake or river that you can't have catarrh, or that you have only a chronic cold when your nose has been stopped up for some time. That is usually the way catarrh starts—with a bad cold.

Better spend a few days destroying the catarrh germ right from the start, than waiting and putting off until you feel droppings in your throat and your nose clogged up.

The Gauss Complete Treatment will stop it and avoid for you years of future misery. Cut out the coupon below, if you have even a slight cold or a touch of catarrh, and send it to C. E. Gauss, who will send you a free package of the wonderful Gauss treatment, so as to prove to yourself its great power.

It costs you nothing. Address coupon to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich.

"If I Had My Life to Live Over."

We can point to hundreds of cases of catarrh that have dragged their blear-eyed, nose-dripping, half-dead victims through fifteen and twenty years of misery. It all started with one little germ. Just one of Gauss' Catarrh Treatments for a little while would have killed off Mr. Germ and reclaimed to health and happiness in short order some of the world's best women and bravest men, who now dodder about in blank, diseased old age, or fill some cold graves—food for thought. Think of yourself at 40 or 50 or 60, clutched by catarrh. If you only had your life to live over! A 2-cent stamp would blot out all the misery.

It is not too late. Cut out the coupon below, fill in your name and address and take courage. Do it willingly and with hope. Mail it to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich., and you will get by return mail a free package of Gauss' Catarrh Treatment to prove that it will cure you.

Sniffler Chased Out of Meeting

Enraged Audience Roughly Handles Gagger Who Interrupts Speech.

San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 19.—During a public primary meeting here today a middle-aged man in the audience, who was fumbling a rolled-up handkerchief in his hand and persistently sniffling and pulling his nose during the delivery of a speech, was forcibly ejected from the assembly hall. Cries of "Kick him out" and "Choke the lobster," interrupted the proceedings, and finally resulted in a grand rush for the nose-puller by some of the enraged hearers. He was grabbed by the coat collar and unceremoniously and swiftly moved toward the door.

When the man first sat down and began loudly tearing out a throat hawk, the audience shifted nervously. After continuing the draw-rattle of his catarrh through one of the most stirring parts of the speech the audience gave vent to its feelings. He was roughly handled on the way out, and sustained several severe bruises. He was taken to the county hospital.

It is such occurrences as these which make the catarrh victim one of the despised of his race. He can't help but show his disease. If this man had simply spent a few moments' time to send to C. E. Gauss for a package of the wonderful Gauss Catarrh Treatment, he never would have suffered such an indignity as being kicked out of a public meeting.

Relief Is Certain

You can rout that catarrh, light or serious, once and forever by means of the great common-sense remedy for catarrh, Gauss' Combined Treatment. We don't ask you to believe it before proving it yourself. Therefore, we send you a TRIAL package at our expense, absolutely free to you.

It is not too late. Cut out the coupon below, fill in with your name and address and take courage. Do it willingly and with hope. Mail it to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich., and you will get by return mail a free TRIAL package of Gauss' Catarrh Treatment to prove its remarkable results.

Some Results of Catarrh

Even Slight Cases of Catarrh Have Terrible Consequences.

Every case of catarrh, of course, is not fatal. Nor does every case result in consumption or bronchitis, but nevertheless they are very frequent. No man or woman knows what his or her case of catarrh will lead to. Men of robust health have succumbed to resulting consumption and partial idiocy. Women of strong vitality have become nervous wrecks and victims of bronchitis. Your good health is not always a preventative against the catarrh germs.

The more you feel sure there is no danger of the catarrh resulting in a disease more serious, the more danger there is; simply because you neglect yourself. This happens in hundreds of cases and we see it recorded almost daily in the letters we receive. "If I had only started earlier," is a very frequent expression, showing that our warning is not fanciful, but based on fearful reality.

Even slight cases of catarrh may result in nose cancer, than which there is hardly a more pitiful affliction in this world.

Catarrh Fatally Frequent.

Some of the frequent results of catarrh are bronchitis, pneumonia, death, and decay of bones, loss of thinking and reasoning power, death of ambition and energy, loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia, ulceration, bad breath, raw throat, raw sores in the nose, general debility and sometimes idiocy and insanity.

This is why in the death list you do not find a mention of fatal catarrh; the death is caused not directly by the catarrh itself, but by a disease which was caused by catarrh. Medical books and cyclopedias will tell you even more serious news than we tell you here; probably after reading them you will have a full realization of what it is to have catarrh—a common disease, it is true, but with a common result—misery for years if not death.

Relief Is Certain.

You can relieve that catarrh, slight or serious, once and forever by means of Gauss' Combined Treatment. We don't ask you to believe it before proving it yourself. Therefore, we send you a treatment at our own expense, absolutely free to you. When you get it, you can prove it all to your own satisfaction. It is without question the greatest catarrh remover on earth. Cut out the coupon and send for the free treatment today to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main st., Marshall, Mich. When you see your catarrh begin to leave you you will appreciate what it is to have a treatment for catarrh that can be positively relied on. Send the coupon.

Catarrh Often Causes Consumption, General Debility, Idiocy and Insanity.

Eminent Doctor Says Blindness Due to Catarrh

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Dr. H. Manning Fish, of Joliet, Ill., declared at the medical congress that most of the blindness in the world is the result of catarrh in the upper nasal cavities or the bony cells composing the roof of the nostrils.

Dr. Fish described his experience in thirty-six cases, covering a period of several years, claiming that in each of these, immediate improvement of the vision followed the effective treatment of the diseased nasal cavities, and advised that in cases of loss of vision following grip, measles, scarlet fever and kindred ailments, relief be sought through treatment of the noses of the patients.

Catarrh is caused by a germ which must be destroyed before the catarrh itself can be cured. If not cured, blindness may result. An extended history of the many extraordinary cures effected by the Gauss treatment will probably be brought to the attention of the next international meeting of the medical congress.

Thought Wife a Consumptive

Your catarrh medicine is a wonderful medicine. My wife had it so bad everyone thought she had consumption. She used to cough all night and could not sleep at all. One doctor gave her up. He said she would not get cured if she stayed here. I have tried all kinds of medicine and found them no good, till I tried yours, and it acted right away. I recommend it to all my friends. You may mention my name if you please, and they can write to me and I will let them know how bad my wife was with catarrh. But she is a well woman once more. W. Thomas, 936 Talman av., Chicago, Ill.

Catarrh Terribly Embarrassing

This Is Especially True at Meals When the Uncontrollable Habits of Catarrh Victims Chase Away the Appetites of All at Table.

Catarrhals Are Unwelcome Guests.

The sufferer from catarrh either leads a life of continual embarrassment and shame over his (or her) unavoidable habits, or else is so unmindful of the opinion of others as to not care how much they are annoyed or sickened.

At the table, at meal time, when everybody is gathered about the board with sharp appetites and pleasant anticipations of the good things to come, the catarrh victim is suddenly taken with the desire (or, rather, the necessity) of raising mucus. There is a scramble for his trusty handkerchief, a quick turning of his head, a struggle to suppress the nauseating spectacle, and then—! But why detail the thing? In a nutshell, the meal is spoiled for everyone, and nausea has replaced appetite as disgust has replaced anticipation. The poor catarrh victim feels ready to sink through the floor at each repetition of these mortifying, degrading scenes. He feels like a leper—like one who has no business to associate with clean, normal people. It is awful!

My! My! What An Awful Breath! Take My Advice. Write Gauss Today and Stop That Catarrh.

If you have nerves, or you believe other people have any, you will just stop and look at yourself as you are, and before other people move away from you when they see you coming, you ought to run away from them. Go somewhere, anywhere, just to be alone, and take this page with you, cut out the coupon at the bottom and send it now, before you pull your nose again, to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich.

In the Coils From Childhood

I have suffered with catarrh since I was 4 years old, but it has annoyed me more in the last two years.

I tried everything I read or heard of, but they did me no good, and I saw your advertisement in a paper and I wrote to you and received a sample package. I was impressed so favorably with the sample that I immediately sent for the full treatment.

I suffered much with the dropping back into my throat and after I had taken the medicine for three or four weeks this nasty sensation entirely ceased and I have never had any return of it. I am now fully cured of my catarrh and am very grateful to you and your medicine.

I will be very glad to tell any one whom I think needs it and if you wish to use my name you may do so, as I am so grateful that I wish everybody who needs it would use it, and I am sure that it will cure them. Mrs. Mattie Whaley, 845 Smith St., South Bend, Ind.

Catarrh Kills Thinking Power

Gradual Clouding of the Brain and Loss of Memory Inevitable Result of Catarrh.

Catarrh anywhere in the head or throat or ears is right next to the brain. The catarrh germ grows fast, does an enormous amount of damage in its burrowing into the bone and flesh and is difficult to destroy. There are thousands of little nerves that run from all parts of the face and head to the brain. Some of these little nerves have to pass through probably a mass of catarrhal inflammation on the road to the brain. When they do they are weakened, and sometimes destroyed.

What affects the nerves is bound to affect the brain, and when the nerves are deadened by constant catarrhal discharges there is bound to be a certain torpor or stupidity brought about in the brain of the victim. Thus follows sleeplessness, inability to think clearly, or connect ideas, loss of memory, lack of concentration, lack of presence of mind, and a wandering thought.

When it takes such a comparatively short time to stop this terrible disease by the Gauss common sense treatment and regain the flash and brilliancy of the normal brain, there is no good reason why one should not spend the two or three minutes it takes to cut out the coupon below and send it to C. E. Gauss and have him prove to you that he is right and that he positively stops catarrh. The coupon below mailed now will bring you back by return mail a package of the wonderful Gauss treatment. It costs you absolutely nothing. Address C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich.

How to Judge Man's Honesty

The Man Who Lets You "See for Yourself" Is Usually Honest.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. The antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will depend on being able to stand the gleam. There are always men who aim to tear down every good thing, and there have been men who set about to ridicule the Gauss Catarrh Treatment and figuratively tear it into shreds. They turned on the gleam and dissected it. They expected to find mere dross, and found gold. So Gauss has been discovered by his enemies.

But regardless of all this, if a man will "show the goods" he has, willingly and openly, and let his patients prove first to themselves by their own senses the value of what he offers them, instead of expecting them to take his word for it—there must be something of value in his "goods," and it must show his intentions to be honest.

Every catarrh victim should make a test of the great Gauss Catarrh Treatment. It is free. All you have to do is to spend a minute or two cutting out the coupon below, filling in with your name and address, and send it on to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich. You will get back a package of the Gauss Catarrh Treatment in plain wrapper and under seal, with full information and instructions. It costs you nothing, and you put yourself under no obligation whatever.

Use it according to instructions; don't expect too much of the treatment you get, and it will prove to you that the worst case of catarrh can be cured, and that the Gauss Catarrh Treatment can do it.

Cut out and mail the coupon today.

I Want to Help You

I only wish I could gather some of my patients together and let you hear them talk. Some of these people had some of the most serious cases of catarrh you could imagine. My treatment not only stopped the catarrh, but it made the patient feel many times better as far as general health is concerned.

After a one-minute conversation with a Gauss patient, you would be firmly convinced that the statements set forth here are facts.

But I can't do that, so let me do the next best thing. Let me send you a trial treatment free. Fill out the coupon below.

"Thank Heavens We Have Such a Man as Gauss"

There is no case too serious for Mr. Gauss to consider; no case too slight for considerate attention; whoever writes to him receives a prompt reply; whatever questions are asked are answered, and advice is freely given. It is his liberal treatment of everyone, the broad view that he takes of everyone's whims and eccentricities, and his sympathy for the afflicted, that has so often brought forth in letters received from happy patients all over the land this sentiment: "Thank heavens, we have such a man as Gauss."

It is not necessary to write a letter in asking for a free treatment. Just cut out the coupon at the bottom of this page and send it to C. E. Gauss, 2264 Main street, Marshall, Mich., and you will receive by return mail a free package of Gauss' Catarrh Treatment. It will cost you nothing, and put you under no obligation whatever. This is to prove to you at once what the treatment will do, even in the worst cases of catarrh.

United States Commissioner Heard From

Having been absent for some time, I now take the opportunity of answering your letter. I took the treatment as nearly as I could and would state that I am cured. It is the best catarrh medicine that I have ever taken, having tried everything that I could hear or read of; and I am thoroughly satisfied that it is a genuine remedy for catarrh; and if ever I feel the effects of this disease coming back to me I should immediately order more of your treatment. Your medicine for taking internally, I think, is the best I have ever used for constipation or indigestion. You are at liberty to use the contents of this letter, and any reference made to me will be cheerfully answered.—Edward McCagherty, United States Commissioner, Warroad, Minn., Box 1.

LARGE SPACE IN POST-DISPATCH BUILDING LEASED

Continental Supply Company, Specializing in Sale of Pipes and Tubes for Oil and Gas Wells and Refinery Equipment to Occupy 12,500 Square Feet.

SALES AGENT FOR LARGE FACTORIES

Located Six Years Ago in St. Louis as Foremost Commercial Center, and Chose New Home Because of Superior Position—Is First Lessee.

By BERRY MOORE.

The Continental Supply Co. has acquired a 10-year lease of the entire seventh floor and one-fourth of the sixth floor of the new Post-Dispatch building at Twelfth and Olive streets.

The space will be used for the general offices of the company, which now occupy the ninth floor of the Third National Bank building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Olive street, which has become inadequate for its requirements.

The lease was effected by Cornet & Zeibig, agents for the Pulitzer Publishing Co., publisher of the Post-Dispatch and owner of the building. The Continental Supply Co. was represented in the negotiations by W. K. Hughes, its vice president and general manager.

The lease provides for the subdivision of the space to conform with the requirements of the lessee, and possession will be taken as soon as this can be completed, which will be not later than Jan. 1. This work will be done under the supervision of Barnett, Haynes & Barnett, the architects of the Post-Dispatch building.

The new quarters, having a frontage on Olive street of 100 feet and on Twelfth of 125 feet, and embracing a floor area of 12,500 square feet, including the space ocupied by the elevator shafts, will provide ample acomodations for the general offices of the Continental Supply Co., the growth of which has been unprecedented.

Why It Came to St. Louis.

The company, which was organized only six years ago, but which is one of the largest of its kind in the United States, chose St. Louis as its headquarters, according to Hughes, because of its geographical position, which, he declares, assures its future as one of the foremost commercial centers.

This company specializes in the sale of pipe and tubes for oil and gas well operations and refinery equipment, which include a multiplicity of items. It is the exclusive sales medium of several of the largest factories in the United States, and has established large branch depots and warehouse at 29 advantageous points, as follows: Bartlesville, Cushing, Healdton, Morris, Quay, Shamrock, Tulsa, Wann and Billings, all in Oklahoma; Caspar, Wyoming and Bridgeport, Ill.; Charleston and Clarksburg, W. Va.; Coffeyville, Augusta and Eldorado, Kan.; Houston, Wichita Falls and Humble, Tex.; Logan and Marietta O.; Shreveport, Mansfield and Oil City, La.; Pittsburg, Pa. and St. Louis.

The new quarters in the Post-Dispatch building, according to President Hughes, who constitutes the dynamic force of the organization, was selected because of its superior advantages and commanding location, which is in the heart of the new hotel and theater center of the city and midway between the retail and wholesal districts.

First Lessee of Space.

The Post-Dispatch occupies the entire sub-basement, basement and and first five floors of the building, except several commodious and attractively arranged offices on the second floor overlooking Olive street and the corner of Twelfth street. The remainder of the building, including the sixth, seventh and eighth floors, and the ofices on the second floor, together with four stores, two on Olive street and two on Twelfth street, is being ofered for lease, the Continental Supply Co. being the first lessee of space in the new building.

The building and equipment, exclusive of the site, cost more than $1,500,000. It is the most sumptuously finished and perfectly appointed building in St. Louis. The first floor and corridors throughout are finished in exotic marbles and in bronze, while the equipment includes a battery of five high-speed elevators, there in the front and two in the rear. The building, whicsh represents the acme of construction, is sounuproof and fireproof, and is replete with sanitary provisions, including the latest and most costly automatic plumbing system.

The Johns-Manville Co., one of the largest roofing supply concerns in the country, recently leased, through Cornet & Zeibig and the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., the 6-story and basement building at teh southeast corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, which is being prepared for occupancy as the company's headquarters.

TAKES 2 FLOORS UNDER LEASE

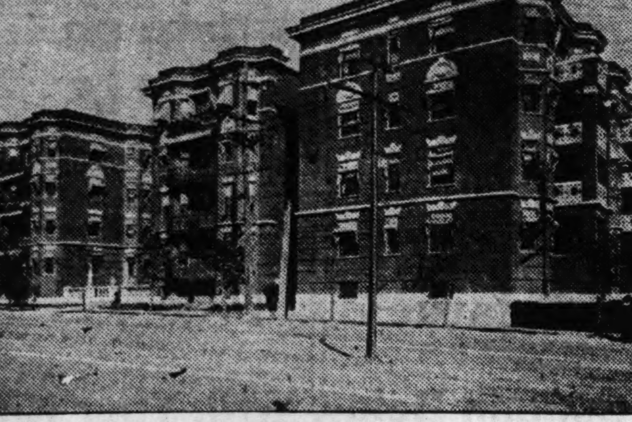
Selling Agent to Locate in Silk Exchange Building.

The Martin-Trepp Real Estate Co. announces the closing of a five-year lease to Henry Sicher of St. Louis and New York of the fourth and fifth floors of the Silk Exchange Building at the southwest corner of Washington avenue and Twelfth street. Sicher, who is agent for manufacturers of coats, suits and dresses, will take possession of the quarters, which contain 12,000 square feet, Jan. 1.

The No Name Hat Manufacturing Co., the lessor, was represented by William M. Cooper, manager of its local agency.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

West-End Apartments Which Were Recently Sold for $160,000



The Chesterfield Apartments, located on the northeast corner of Waterman and Union avenues, have been sold to Walter A. Zelnicker of the Walter A. Zelnicker Supply Co. for the Pufeles Realty Co., of which Sig. H. Pufeles is president, for $160,000, through the agency of J. M. Levi & Co.

These four-story buildings were erected in 1908 and contain 24 apartments of seven and eight rooms, with two baths and all modern improvements, including electric elevators, and have been entirely occupied since their construction. They have a frontage on Waterman avenue of 101 feet and on Union boulevard of 185 feet.

These buildings are considered among the best-constructed apartments in the city, as well as being in a location where values will be maintained for at least a great many years.

MANY HOMES BOUGHT ON LINDELL BOULEVARD

Recent Acquisitions Along Street by Wealthy Residents Restore Former Popularity of Thoroughfare.

Numerous sales and leases of handsome homes on Lindell boulevard indicate that this thoughfare is rapidly regaining its former prestige as a high-class residential center.

"For a time the future of the boulevard hung in the balance," said a real estate man yesterday. "The death of several citizens rendered vacant and threw a number of its handsomest homes on the market and the business depression then existing held buyers off.

Most of these homes have been sold recently and the street is taking on its former appearance."

The Mercantile Trust Co. concluded a lease by which Edward F. Goltra will acquire possession of the Thompson home on Lindell boulevard near Taylor for his residence.

A week ago the Mercantile Trust Co. announced the sale of the Battle residence at 4463 Lindell boulevard to Alexander R. Hoyt, vice president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co.

Among other recent sales of homes reflecting the popularity of Lindell boulevard with home buyers was that by which Firmin Desloge acquired the Morton Jourdan residence at 4445 Lindell boulevard. The home of the late Gov. E. O. Stanard at Lindell boulevard and Taylor avenue was acquired recently by Julius S. Walsh Jr., who now lives there. The A. D. Brown mansion at 4616 Lindell boulevard has been purchased by John T. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce. W. N. Clagget has bought the home at 5115 Lindell boulevard. Mr. Clagget has removed from Jefferson City. Thomas S. Maffitt, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Iron Co., recently acquired a lease of the Haase residence at 4390 Lindell boulevard.

Lindell boulevard from Grand avenue to Skinker road is the widest residence street in St. Louis. It is the main approach to Forest Park and Washington University, and is used largely by visitors to St. Louis.

The new Cathedral has added to the dignity of the street, and the various property owners have co-operated to improve and brighten their residences and grounds in order to maintain Lindell boulevard as the first-class residential district that it has been since it was first laid out as a street of homes.

LAND SALES IN "DIAMOND HILL" REPORTED AT $12,000 FOR WEEK

More Than $140,000 Worth of Property Sold in Riverview Gardens Subdivision in Season, Agent Says.

Sikking & Beckwith, agents for Riverview Gardens subdivision, report that the sale of the newest and best portion, "Diamond Hill," is now in full swing. Sales of $12,000 were made during the week, making $27,000 since Diamond Hill was opened two weeks ago. This raises the aggregate sales in Riverview Gardens during the season to more than $140,000.

"Every man who bought this week selected the place for his home," Mr. Sikking said, "and, judging from the high character of the buyers, and the plans of improvement outlined, Riverview Gardens will be the prettiest home district in St. Louis."

Riverview Gardens is in the extreme north end of St. Louis, just below the Chain of Rocks. It affords a splendid view of Mississippi River scenery.

Riverview Gardens is reached by North Broadway car, changing to municipal line at Baden. Scenic drives to all parts of the subdivision virtually are completed, and city water is being laid throughout the tract.

This week the old Destrehan home, which for more than a hundred years occupied a commanding spot on Diamond Hill, and which was perhaps the oldest landmark in that section of the city, was razed. The Destrehan family was one of the oldest French families in St. Louis. Diamond Farm, the present Riverview Gardens, was the family's country estate.

WEST END FLATS AND APARTMENTS IN BRISK DEMAND

Westmoreland and Netherby Hall Units Prominent in Leases Last Week.

The past week was one of the briskest in renting and leasing for a long time. It showed if the present record be sustained vacancies soon will be at the lowest stage in the history of the city, agents declare. This applies especially to apartments and flats in the West End and on the South Side, where the construction is comparatively new.

Accoring to Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. ten apartments in the Westmoreland Hotel apartments, nthe eight-story fire-proof building nearing completion at 5300 Berlin avenue, were leased during the last week of October.

This building already has been more than half taken, the indications being that it soon will be "entirely absorbed." The Westmoreland suits are being leased furnished or unfurnished.

All except one 11-room apartment of the Netterby Hall building, just being completed at 4540 Lindell boulevard, of which Chase Ulman is the owner, has been leased, according to Edward L. Bakewell, its agent.

COMMUNITY MARKETING REDUCES EGG LOSSES

Big Percentage of $600,000,000 Crop Now Wasted Could Be Saved, Says Federal Bulletin.

The office of information, United States Department of Agriculture, in a bulletin on community marketing of eggs, says it reduces losses.

If farmers would realize that the annual value of the country's egg crop is equal to the average value of its annual wheat crop—approximately $600,000,000—and that nearly 8 per cent of the eggs marketed are lost through spoilage or breakage, the industry undoubtedly would be put on a more businesslike basis, says the bulletin. Improper handling between the farm and the market, the bulletin declares, is responsible for a large part of the loss. This loss, it is suggested, could be greatly decreased if farmers would co-operate more generally and market their eggs through community egg circles.

These organizations take care of the frequent collection and the proper packing and marketing of the eggs of members, attend to accounting and making collections, establish standards, encourage the raising of better breeds of poultry, the use of improved methods, and the production of infertile eggs.

The bulletin tells farmers how to go about the formation of a community egg circle and prints a suggested constitution and by-laws for such an organization. Copies of the bulletin may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, by application to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Book for Chicken Raisers.

Scientific breeding of chickens and egg production in winter is made clear in a 64-page book recently issued by the Ralston Purina Co. of 873 Gratiot street. The book is being mailed free to applicants and contains information of value to poultry raisers and breeders. It contains maps, charts, plans for chicken houses, empty spaces for keeping daily egg records and other things of value to poultry fanciers. Many receipts for cooking eggs also are included.

Chance Offered to Send Your Dog to the Front

If you can't go to war, perhaps you can send Fido, Spot or Madge in your place. This in all seriousness. Senator Brady of Idaho, has introduced a bill for the enlisment and equipment of 1000 dogs. The experience of European countries has shown that dogs are not slackers, although like human soldiers they need training. The War Department favors the use of dogs. It is asserted that 12,000 are in use in European armies. According to Senator Brady the war dogs of Europe have given a splendid account of themselves in several forms of service.

"Their ability," he said recently, "is marvelous. They can pick out a wounded man in the blackest night on a battlefield. They quickly learn to distinguish between friend and foe. They are valuable couriers. Their obedience is unquestioning."

A "Military Dog Club" has already been formed in New York. It is expected that the dogs wanted will be donated. So here is a chance to send your dog to the front if he can past muster.

Specialty Shows Less Frequent Than in Past

A new poultry club is the Western Barred Plymouth Club. It promises to become large and flourishing, as it should. In such a variety as barred rocks a healthy rivalry in organizing sectional and specialty clubs is likely to help the variety. There used to be more specialty shows than there are now; that is, shows in which there was one variety only, like the old-time light brahma exhibitions in Boston. Specialty shows of dogs and pigeons are more common now than those of poultry. Every breeder of good, purebred birds might do well to join the national club of the variety he raises both for his own benefit in receiving the literature put out by the club and also because of the help he can give to his variety in a general way. The usual annual dues are only $1.

COTTON MARKET SHARPLY HIGHER ON FROST DAMAGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Prospects for frost in the eastern belt, caused a sharp advance in the cotton market today. The cattle markeet last week st ed out in fairly good shape, but trading advanced receipts grew lar er, and all of the gain was lost.

During the early market a gene advance was scored on all classes, the unusually heavy run later pletely reversed conditions, and spite of an advance of 25c to 50c steers of all varieties at the st yesterday's trade closed fully 50c cwt lower on beef steers and stock and feeders, than prices in force the close of the previous week.

Even at this decline it was hard move stocker and feeder grades, the low-priced killing steers. At outset butcher cattle as a rule 50c to 75c higher. The trade clos however, no better than it was at close of the previous week.

Choice to prime beef steers quoted at $15.50 to $17.50; good choice, $12 to $15; medium to go $9.50 to $11.50; common to medium, to $9.50; common off-colored killing steers, $7 to $8; good choice stockers and feeders, $8 to medium to good, $7 to $8; common medium, $6.25 to $7; good to choi cows, $6.50 to $6.75; good to choi stock heifers, $7 to $7.50; choice prime fat yearling butcher cattle, to $16; good to choice, $11 to $14; dium to good, $8.50 to $11; comm to medium, $7 to $8.50; choice fancy heavy beef cows, $9 to good to choice, $8 to $9; medium good, $7 to $8; cutters, $6 to $7; ners, $5.50 to $6; good fat beef $8.50 to $10; heavy sausage bulls, to $8; light sausage bulls, $6 to $7.

The hog trade showed some provement over that of the previ week, prime hogs again reaching high record of $19.80 per cwt. pects are that heavy hogs will scarce for the next 60 days, and command a premium, as they did the close of the past week.

However, light hogs and pigs been plentiful, and these have rather slow sale and weak. The of yesterday's market was $19. the best hogs received, though were no prime hogs on sale, but the right kind been available would have sold steady with Fri when a top of $19.80 was made.

Choice hogs, 180 lbs. up are at $19.25 to $19.80; mixed hog lbs. up, $18.35 to $19; 120 to pigs, $17.50 to $18.25; 90 to pigs, $16.75 to $17.50; best rough $18.40 to $18.60, with halffat at $14.50 to $15.50.

Sheep trade was good and advanced from $1 to $1.50 per while fat sheep showed an adva of about 50c per cwt. At the of the market Friday top lambs at $18.50, with the bulk of the lambs selling from $18 to the medium to good $17.50 to $18; sheep $11.50; choppers $8; canners to $6; choice breeding ewes $14.50 $15.50; fat Angora goats $8 to fat hair goats $7 to $7.75, and kids $8 to $10.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Eveni in its copyrighted weekly says:

Wall Street's very natural anxie the situation of the money ma with a loan operation of $3,000 000 impending, and with the pro shifting of funds during t an and winter, on account than a billion dollars of Trea certificates outstanding, has be ared relieved by the volunta gements made by bankers ide for the needs of borrowers

At the very outbreak of the w saw the striking effect of nouncement of the 'hundred m dollar gold pool' to meet our c ations abroad, hardly one-fifth ich was actually used.

The really significant fact in co ion with any such plan as w ounced this week, was the ta erstanding that the rediscounti vileges of the reserve bank wo availed of as needed. But th financial markets are comi and more to look with con at the Government institutio ested by the fact that, within three of the city's great tr panies, organized under the St have either entered the Fede ve system, or have applied bership.

The Market Movement.

The most obvious comment on t movements in the Stock E age is that the market is adju itself to conditions of w ance.

To appreciate the real influence conditions, one has only to what would have been the on the market of a $3,000,000, ernment borrowing in time —without new taxes, withe riction of prices for the output ufacturing companies, and wi the present uncertainties of ational finance.

The period of the 'billion dol Corporation underwriting,' early months of 1901, is reme d nowadays as a period of enth tic speculation for the rise. announcement of that operati its preliminary stakes, w ked by very decided and v eral weakness in the market sting shares.

Recovery came later, when the diate effects of the preparation the new steel securities had be pleted, and when the process mulating fresh investment ca was again under way.

The stock market's handicap sent is the fact that so very gr part of the accruing resources estors is reserved for the Uni tes' loan. There will at all ti selling in a stock market, qu rt from 'bear operations,' and ened by individual circumstanc on ordinary occasions it will t by the equally normal inqu crop raisers, with new money est.

In due course, this offsetting nce will operate again, at, sent time—as it did, in fact, a war loan of last June had b ted.

Even an oversubscription to ending war loan would not h as much capital as was called the English war loan subscript last February; yet the Lon k market soon recovered f at earlier adverse influence g-up resources might have there was no continuous dec stocks.

It should not be forgotten, h how the general investm rket acted when, in 1915 and 1 investors were subscribing in the thousands of millions to ropean war loans.

The present Government loa a larger sum, and it is put single operation. But, on the o nd, it is reaching a vastly w rcle of investors, large and sm as did the loans of 1915 and 1 the financing of it is suppo immensely increased facilitie hands of the Federal res nks.

parently, the day of the war or stocks as speculative favorites passed, and those issues are now sunk into speculative oblivion. stocks were without demand because of the policy to wait until the Government had completed its investigation of the trade and announces terms at which it desires petroleum product sales to be conducted.

Mining stocks generally also were lower, with Magma selling down about 6 points to 46, and losses of around 1 point were sustained in Butte Copper and Zinc and in Mason Valley.

Nipissing sold off slightly in sympathy, partly with the 10c decline in the price of silver metal, but changes in other silver stocks were small and without importance.

There was no special change in the position of Motor stocks. Chevrolet ranged from 83 to 75, with a rally yesterday at 74.

Smith Motor came very close to elimination of market value, selling at 2½ to 1⅛.

In Independent oil stocks the widest movement was in Midwest Refining, which ranged from 153 to 158. Cosden sold at 9⅛ to 8⅝. International Petroleum from 14⅛ to 14⅝, Oklahoma Producing from 8⅝ to 7⅝, and Osage 8½ and 7⅝.

London Review.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—"Financial London is greatly cheered by the news from the Western front, and the point is emphasized that even if gains of territory by our own army after each battle seem small, they are always gains, and the advance is almost mathematical in precision.

"The week's announcement of the placing of all exports to neutrals under Governmental license, following your Government's proclamation, indicates closer co-operation of England and America in the economic blockade of Germany. This is recognized as of the highest importance, and the city's only regret is that it could not have operated earlier.

"Sound finance on both sides of the Atlantic naturally dislikes embargoes, whether on export of money or on export of goods. But our market is accepting the view of the Washington and London authorities as correct, because they undoubtedly know most about the facts and see farthest, but also because of recognition that indefinite prolongation of the war would be the greatest enemy to resumption of natural functions in finance and commerce.

"Hence, even if the foreign exchange position is temporarily upset by the embargoes, and if prices of commodities rise as a result, nothing should be allowed even temporarily to arrest the effectiveness of the blockade.

The Gold Embargo.

"As regards restriction of gold exports, the neutrals after all have the same opportunity as was exercised by you when neutral—the granting of credits to the allies if continuance of trade is menaced by demoralization of the exchanges.

"Beyond all this, however, financial London is recognizing now that the period of the war is at hand when civilians must share its dangers and losses. But this fact is held to be wholly consistent with the likelihood of the shortening of the war.

"The rapid decline in silver, this week and last, was in part a natural reaction, especially in view of the abnormally high price lately reached, which had made it contrary to your own public interest to permit a further rise. Important bullion houses here, however, ascribe the continued fall of the last few days to weakness in China exchange; which has caused nearly cessation of Chinese purchases in San Francisco, but resales from that quarter.

"With the immediate indications of a falling market, potential buyers held off, this accentuating the downward tendency. Nevertheless, it is pointed out that your Government continues to make purchases for subsidiary coinage, and, supplies being scarce, a fresh advance is not improbable.

"There is curiously little information from any source regarding the pending German war loan; but all indictions are of the increasing financing of war expenditure by paper issues.

"In connection with the weaknes in your railway shares at New York, I can say that our public is certainly not selling them. It is impossible to know what action the Government is taking, with the shares which it controls.

"In the city's view, the best and perhaps the only reliable indication of the probable course of events in Russia, is that the allies are fully disposed to exercise patience. Russia's earlier services in the war are cordially remembered. As for Russia's finance, that will necessarily depend on the help of her allies.

"All that we hear from your side impresses us with the excellent organization of your war loan convass, both as regards the publicity campaign and the handling of the money market. The city believes that you will break all records in subscriptions."

CORN MARKET HIGHER DESPITE GOOD WEATHER

Week's Range Favors the Bulls Slightly; Oats Also Are Firm.

Attention to the feeding value of corn as compared with prices of livestock, was a prominent factor last week, in bringing about an advance in the corn market here. As compared with a week ago, corn showed a gain of 1c to 1⅝c. Oats were firm and 1c to 1½c higher.

Much notice was taken of the fact that the present visible stock of corn ready for immediate use is the smallest in more than 30 years. Any uneasiness over this circumstance, however, was dispelled by the generous size of the 1917 crop, now virtually out of danger from frost. But the increased farm demand for the feeding of hogs, and readiness with which offerings of new corn were absorbed gave some point to estimates that although the crop would total larger than the average, the amount would be 60,000,000 to 66,000,000 bu short of the total suggested by the Government report of a month ago.

British military success in Belgium led at one time to selling of a broad scale, but the bearish effect did not prove of a lasting sort.

Big withdrawals of oats from store inspired a good deal of confidence in the bull side of the oats market. The market lost about 1c from the top in the late dealings, however.

Quote No. 3 white oats, 60½@61c; No. 4 white oats, 59c; No. 2 oats, 58½@60c; No. 3 oats, 58c.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Killing frosts which visited large sections of the corn belt last night, were regarded by many traders today, as more a benefit to the crop than a harm. The effect was to weaken prices, which although steady at the close, were ⅛c to ⅝c net lower at $1.18⅞ December, and $1.15¼ to $1.15⅜ May. Oats finished ⅛c to ⅜c@½c down and provisions up 35c to 75c.

Notwithstanding that the frosts sounded the knell of further growth of all the corn that was touched, the accompanying low temperatures appeared likely to improve the condition of the new corn and thus to facilitate shipment to distributing centers.

The fact that some increase of country offerings was reported gave a further advantage to the bears, but the enlargement did not prove sufficient to render selling at all aggressive. On the other hand, rallies lacked power and failed to last. In numerous cases a disposition was evident to await the Government crop report due on Monday.

Slackness of export inquiry left the oats market limp, and prices dragged lower with corn.

Active demand for provisions contrasted with the inert aspect of grain. Commission house buying was stimulated as a result of new purchases of meat and lard for Belgium.

Drillers and Refinery Men Are Now Buying BIG BEAR Oil Stock

Over $30,000.00 worth of Big Bear Oil Co. stock has been purchased by Casper, Wyoming, people. Our two rigs are only 10 miles from Casper, so these men know how fast we are drilling and how close we are to a big production. The Big Bear Oil Co., though only five months old, is drilling two oil wells in the Big Muddy field. This rapid financing is due to the fact that it is a co-operative company, no officer receiving any salary or commission. Your money goes for actual drilling. Officers are efficient and reliable men. Because of the rapid sale of this stock, we offer it now at 12½ cents per share, reserving the right to reject your subscription and return your money if your subscription comes in after 100,000 shares are sold at this price. Stocks now selling for $40, at the start sold for 10 cents a share. Capitalization is only $500,000; stock full paid and non-assessable. Sold on monthly payment plan if desired. Drilling in the famous Big Muddy field, where all wells drilled to Wall Creek sands are over 500 barrels daily capacity. One 500-barrel well should make this stock sell in the dollars. If you want some stock at the 12½-cent price, write at once. Get literature, bank references and map. WM. G. KRAPE INV. CO., 971 Gas & Electric Bldg., Denver, Colo.

NEW YORK REOPENS QUIZ OF BERNSTORFF-BOLA INTRIGUE

Adolph Paventstedt is Recalled and Details Incidents of $1,700,000 Loan to Further Peace Move.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Exposures of the State Department of Bolo Pasha's activities in this country resulted today in a re-opening here of the State Attorney General's inquiry into the machoinations of the spy with former Ambassador von Bernstorff to bring about a separate peace between Germany and France in 1916.

After additional testimony had been given by a recall witness, Alfred Becker, deputey attorney general, left for Washington to place before the French Ambassador the disclosures resulting in this state. This evidence will be sent to the French military authorties to be used at the trial of Bolo now under arrest in the French capital.

The witness recalled today was Adolph Pavenstedt, a former partner in the exporting firm of G. Amsinck & Co., through which German funds passed at Von Bernstorff's direction from the German foreign offices to Bolo Pasha in Paris by way of New York. Pavenstede was questioned regarding the cablegrams made public last night, which passed between Von Bernstorff and his government in which the then Ambassador arranged for a loan of $1,700,000 to "one of the leading political personalities" in France, after having learned from " an enitrely trustworthy source" that peace might be brought about. Pavenstedt today identified himself as "the trustworthy source," and testified he believed Von Bernstarff menat Bolo Pasha as the "personality."

Pavenstedt said also it was he who proposed to Von Bernstaorff, at Bolo's suggestion, that the German silence " the change in the inner political situation in France." Pavenpress be influenced to pass over in stedt added that it was at Bolo's suggestion also that he arranged with Von Bernstorff the passwords, "Sanct Regis for Bolo's use to establish his identity later with the German Foreign Office.

Do you let PROFESSIONALS do your singing for you?

Do you always LISTEN, never sing yourself?

If you seldom use your voice for anything but TALKING, you're like many, many other grown-ups.

AND IT'S ALL WRONG! When we stop singing, and take ALL our vocal music "second-hand," we LOSE SOMETHING, physically and spiritually.

We'll say you are a business man. And that you sometimes go home tired, nervous, and shortbreathed. You eat dinner, read a newspaper or magazine for half an hour, throw yourself on a couch and think about business matters, then go to bed UNRELAXED and get up next morning with "that tired feeling."

We CHALLENGE you to try this:

Sit down at your Gulbransen Player Piano after dinner, put a song roll on—any song you like—lower or raise the key to suit your voice, and SING IT. Then do it again with another song roll. And again!

You may have been "nervous as a cricket" when you sat down; you may have been worried about some business deal; but you'll be RELAXED and CALM by the time you have sung four or five songs. YOU CAN'T SING AND THINK ABOUT BUSINESS. Ask the doctor.

The GULBRANSEN Player Piano is an IDEAL instrument to accompany home singing, because of its sweet, full tone and its transposing device, which permits you to play any song in seven different keys.

And we will supply you with song rolls with THE WORDS PRINTED ON THEM.

STURDY CAR PULLS MEN OUT OF WATER

Caught in a cloudburst while on a desert road in Southern Nevada, a few weeks ago, Edward Rooney and three friends of Kansas City found the powerful engine of the Maxwell strong enough to pull them out of the swift running water and shifting sands.

After battling their way over the virgin sand trails, fighting a torrent occasioned by the summer cloudburst, the motorists from the Kaw City have arrived in San Francisco. Fred Terry, George Beimer and George Norton were with Rooney.

The start from Kansas City was made without any extra equipment.

When half way through the State of Nevada the tourists were advised of a short cut to the coast. The detour was undertaken. All went well for a time then the road disappeared and the Missourians shot out into the desert. Then grief in large quantities befell them.

"Not even a wagon track marked the route," Rooney informed his friends in California.

The tourists were in a dry wash when the waterspout struck them. In less than 10 minutes the auto and men were in the center of a raging torrent of water. It took strenuous work for the Maxwell to buck through the water and soft roadway.

The Maxwell was just in time as the gasoline gave out just as the car reached a ranch house.

AUTO TO MOVE FARM CROP

"The extraordinary demands on our transportation facilities to move the crop to feed ourselves and our allies may be relieved materially through the employment of the automobile as haulage power" said Edward V. Hartford, president of Edward V. Hartford, Inc. "Of the over four and one-half million motor cars in the United States in the hands of owners, over 40 per cent are on the farms. They are business cars with ample power to pull heavily-laden trailers to the side or team track.

"The employment of the trailer as a medium for haulage means no disfigurement of the car and does mean efficient and economical market opportunities. With spring assistance for the car as provided by frictionally acting shock absorbers and the proper trailer hitch, a crop movement of record magnitude may be accomplished.

"It is real practical patriotism to keep the food market supplied in the present emergency and the automobile employed as a business car will prove its worth."

JAVA PLANTER TAKES CHALMERS AT FACTORY

A. Van Schermbeek, prominent tea planter of Sinagar, Preanger, Island of Java, en route back to his far-Pacific home, tarried just long enough at the Chalmers factory Oct. 2, to take delivery of a completely equipped seven-passenger touring car, with the new semi-Victoria top. With his friend W. Westermann, Mr. Van Schermbeek will drive the new Chalmers through to the Pacific Coast. After touring in the West they will embark on the S. S. "Koeningen der Nederlanden" for Java, the new automobile going with them. Mr. Van Schermbeek is a Captain of the Volunteer Automobile Corps of Java. Each year the members of this corps are called out for 14 days' work in the "Minervas" to play the war game. Capt. Van Schermbeek plans to use his Chalmers in this year's annual maneuvers.

WILL FEATURE WINTER MODELS ON LOCUST ST.

St. Louis Motor Car Dealers, Concentrated on Auto Row, to Hold Special Exhibit All This Week of Closed Jobs.

For the first time in the United States, St. Louis will hold a comprehensive display of fall and winter model automobiles. The exhibition begins Monday, Oct. 8, to last until Saturday night, Oct. 13.

The display will be at the salesrooms of the various automobile distributers on Locust street, the Auto Row of the city. All distributers who are not located "On the Row" will be there, dividing salesrooms with other concerns.

The big week will be under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association. According to the plans for the week, all salesrooms will be kept open until 10:30 each evening during the week and will be elaborately decorated for the occasion with plants, flowers and foliage suitable for the fall and winter season.

To meet the requirements of the week each of the St. Louis dealers has secured from his factory or factories models of all of the closed or semi-closed jobs that are to be offered for the 1918 season, so that this showing will be in advance of any other city in the country, because they usually wait for the new models until they have been exhibited at the automobile shows after Jan. 1.

Additional to this display a special exhibit has been arranged for the same dates of all the trucks and truck units handled in St. Louis These trucks will be congregated on the open street on Garrison avenue (Thirtieth street, to the north and south of Locust street, in two blocks where special lighting will be arranged to show them to best advantage.

The regular display will exhibit limousines, coupes, landaus, landaulets, cabriolets, town cars and many other styles, including the late models of semi-closed jobs.

MARMON MARKS NEW ERA IN CAR BUILDING

"The success of the Marmon 34 has been one of the most interesting chapters in the history of the motor car development," said H. H. Rice, sales manager of Nordyke & Marmon Co., makers of the Marmon 34.

"It was in 1914 that Marmon engineers conceived the idea of reducing weight by scientific construction and the careful selection of metals, and in 1916 this was a realization. At the present time thousands of these cars are in the hands of owners, proving by every-day critical tests the claims of the makers.

Buyers were quick to recognize the merits of this remarkable car, and since its introduction the demand has been far ahead of the supply. In the Marmon 34, engineers accomplished what was thought impossible—a light car which rides easily. Scientific construction which resulted in a long, strong, flexible car, yet over a half a ton lighter than the old order cars, made this possible.

The Marmon 34 that is sold now and that which will be sold next year is the same car that was conceived in 1914, with the exception of a few minor changes in detail, adding to the comfort and utility."

WINDOW DISPLAY WEEK.

This is International Window Display week, fostered by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and automobile dealers and accessory dealers, along with merchants in all other lines of trade, have been asked to make special displays in their windows of nationally advertised goods.

This will be observed by most of the men in the automobile trade in St. Louis, who will make special exhibits in their windows of the nationally advertised tires, horns, speedometers and the many other lines, which use newspaper space and magazine space to place their wares properly and effectively before the public.

RIDES LIKE A PULLMAN CAR

"For the same reason that Pullman passengers prefer riding in the center of the car where they will be between the springs at either end, motor car buyers in search of maximum ease of riding have given the Marmon 34 their stamp of approval," said H. H. Rice, sales manager of Nordyke & Marmon Co., makers of the Marmon 34.

"The body is not built on top of the springs so that the passengers ride on the car rather than in the car. In Marmon design, the springs are of the compound cantilever cross suspension type located below the rear of the body at the extreme end of the frame. This means that the passengers are between the springs, and not on top of the springs, as is the case in conventional design. This method of spring construction eliminates side sway and together with Marmon's half-ton less weight and perfect balance, results in riding qualities hard to find in any other car."

TO SHOW MITCHELL LINE

The Mitchell Motors Corporation, handler of the Mitchell car, has had shipped in from the Mitchell factory several models of the fall and winter styles and these will be displayed at the salesrooms of the company at 3308 Lindell, during the Open Week. This is said to be the handsomest automobile salesroom in the United States.

Wesley A. Stanger, president of the company, has invited to share space with him for the week the Woods dual power car.

MEETING IS POSTPONED.

The regular monthly meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis, which was to have been held Tuesday night, was postponed by direction of President E. S. Marvin, because it was found that practically all of the members would be busy entertaining the public at their stores on Locust street. The meeting will be held at the City Club Tuesday night, Oct. 16. Chairman John F. Shuford of the Entertainment Committee has prepared an unusual program for it.

Under Mitchell Efficiency Methods

Mitchell Junior—our smaller Six— has a 120-inch wheelbase. It has a 40-horsepower motor. It has nearly all the Mitchell extras, and our 100 per cent over-strength. It comes in four new-style bodies. See this example of Bate factory methods. It will be a revelation.

A Marvel in Value

No other car of this size and class sells at $1250 now.

Yet Mitchell Junior, like the larger Mitchell, is built to the standard of 100 per cent over-strength. That is twice the usual margin of safety. It has all the Mitchell beauty, luxury and style. It has about all the 31 extra features which Mitchell cars include. It has, like all Mitchells, the Bate shock-absorbing springs, which have never yet been broken.

And now it comes in four new styles of bodies, including Club Roadster, Sedan and Coupe.

Fifty Surprises

There are fifty surprises in the new Mitchell models. The extra features and the extra strength are among them. How we give such values at these prices is the marvel of the times.

In the past three years we have doubled our margins of safety, to make this a lifetime car. In the past year alone we have added 25 per cent to the cost of finish, upholstery and trimming. We include numerous wanted features which many cars omit.

All through factory economies, due to John W. Bate's efficiency methods. All through a factory built and equipped to minimize labor cost.

19 New-Style Bodies

The fall line of Mitchells includes 19 new-style bodies. All designed by famous experts, and built in the Mitchell shops. This is the largest line of like class in motordom. There are open and closed cars of every popular style. There are several new types of convertibles. There are sport cars and speedsters. No other line on exhibit today offers so many attractions. Come and see them.

PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America

Among smart people the Sedan is, by all odds, the most popular type of enclosed motor car. It makes an instant appeal to both the city and suburban dweller because of its many practical advantages.

It is, in fact, two cars in one—a snugly, comfortable vehicle for cold weather and a splendid touring car for spring, summer and fall. The sliding windows are responsible for this magic.

As a type, the Sedan is unquestionably the most sensible car that you can buy. But don't stop there. Go just one step further and buy the handsomest of all Sedans—the Paige model.

You will know what we mean when you make comparisons. You will then realize that there are many Sedans, but only one Paige.

KISSELKAR

The ALL-YEAR Car

See the Famous ALL-YEAR Cars that Changed the Motoring Habits of a Nation

In 1915 Kissel introduced his original two-cars-in-one idea that gave owners all the advantages of a permanently closed car in Winter and an open, roofless car in Summer.

Experienced car buyers were quick to appreciate what such an innovation meant—the actual enjoyment of two cars at the cost of one.

They have been doing it ever since—in New York, Chicago, Boston—in all motor car centers.

The interior of the Salon body—ORIGINATED BY KISSEL—is upholstered in exclusive motor weaves. It possesses all the personal comforts and individual refinements you naturally expect in more expensive cars.

When Summer comes, the Top is easily removed, and replaced by a distinctive Summer top, giving you the ideal open Summer car.

All Ready---the New Models Are Here
Stunning Effects in Body Color, Upholstery and Interior Refinements

Right here in St. Louis, the All-Year car has attained such a lead among people who can well afford $3000 cars that it would prove a hopeless task for any car of its type to attempt to overtake it.

Consider the facts—the All-Year top is built in, not on—no visible fastenings or attachments—no rattles, draughts or leaks. The smooth, graceful blending of the top and body rivals that of the permanently closed cars—it is difficult to tell them apart.

The ALL-YEAR Car being mounted on the Hundred Point Six chassis—the Car of a Hundred Quality Features—with the new sturdy Kissel-built power-plant—or the DOUBLE SIX, Kissel's new, powerful, 7-passenger touring "twelve," gives assurance that in performance and economy, its mechanical superiority equals its leadership in body design and construction.

Such is the ALL-YEAR car as St. Louis will see it at our showrooms tomorrow.

Extra! Extra! Extra!

The New Kissel 4-Passenger Sedanlet Will Be on Exhibition All Week.

This latest Kissel triumph in body designing and coach building introduces the latest All-Year Top, which is not only entirely removable, but in which all six windows can be lowered or raised, literally giving you three cars in one.

In severely cold, stormy weather, the Sedanlet is entirely closed, with no rattles or draughts. In the early Spring and Fall months, the windows may be lowered or raised at will. In Summer, the entire top is easily removed, giving a wide, open car, on which is placed the new and original Semi-Victoria style Summer top.

If You Think it Necessary to Pay Custom Prices for Custom-Built Appearance in Your Motor Cars, You Will Enjoy the Many Surprises the ALL-YEAR Car Holds for You. You Will Also Be Introduced to the New Staggered Door Sedan. See Them All in this First Public Exhibition.

HARDEST JOB IS TEACHING OWNERS

"Teaching people how to treat their cars and tires is one of the most difficult tasks that fall to the manufacturers," stated the service manager of the Fisk Rubber Co., in addressing a meeting of the tire experts not long ago. "Getting a product onto the market is easy compared to the task of teaching the motorist how to obtain the full mileage from his tires.

"However, thanks to the valuable assistance of the newspapers and auto magazines, the man who pays the bills is being rapidly—and profitably—educated on the subject of how to make two miles roll where one mile rolled before. Increased mileage on tires comes from one cause only, namely, more careful use of the tire and expert attention at the right time.

"Newspapers, particularly, have done a whole lot of good among motorists by disseminating useful and instructive information on this very pertinent subject of 'tire care.' The motorist who watches the auto topics page of his local paper can pick out here and there facts about the care of tires which are gems of practical knowledge, gathered by tire experts from countless experiments and observation. It is money in his pocket for the autoist to consider such pointers and apply them in the protection of his own tires.

LONG TRIP IN HIGH.

A. J. Dueth, a prominent automobile tire dealer of Chicago, has just written St. Clair Couzens, Director of sales and advertising of the Olympian Motors Co., Pontiac, Mich., stating:

"I have just completed a trip from Chicago to Schroon Lake, N. Y., which is in the heart of the Adirondack Mountains, and made every hill en route in high gear. This trip of 1200 miles was made without troubles of any kind, regardless of the fact that my Olympian car is a 1916 model and has had hard usage. My gasoline economy was over 22 miles per gallon.

The Moerschell Electric and Auto Supply Co. has been appointed distributor for St. Louis territory for the Tillotson carburetor. This is the carburetor which is used on Overland cars.

CHALMERS-MAXWELL MERGER COMPLETED

The entire executive staff of the Maxwell Motor Co. of Detroit, Mich., which has leased the Chalmers Motor Co. for five years, moved last week from its headquarters at Woodward and Warren avenues to the Chalmers plant, on Jefferson avenue.

Walter E. Flanders, now president and general manager of both companies, announced all of his department heads and also the fact that the sales of both companies will hereafter be directed from the Chalmers plant, with the exception of a sales department at the Maxwell factory, Oakland avenue, to take care of Maxwell dealers who visit Detroit.

This move will completely wipe out the old Maxwell executive headquarters at Woodward and Warren and the men who have meen with Mr. Flanders all through his remarkable development of the Maxwell company, building the production from 2000 to 100,000 cars a year, now take on similar positions in the Chalmers, to apply the simple and successful Maxwell manufacturing and sales policies to this higher priced car.

Some Desirable Territory Open

Complete satisfaction in the purchase of an automobile is the earnest desire of everyone. Oldsmobile owners have found their experience to be of utmost interest to prospective buyers. The sons and daughters of those who first drove Oldsmobiles find their old time comfort and pleasure greatly enhanced by the splendid appointments and mechanical perfections of the present day models.

For 1918, the Oldsmobile is offered to you in two principal models—the Eight and the Six. Each the product of nineteen years of automobile building.

Eight-Cylinder Models

The comfort, power, body design and coachwork of the Oldsmobile Eight meet every desire of the experienced motorist—at a price several hundred dollars below any comparable value in a motor car.

Its comfort is a revelation; the underslung, long rear springs combined with the deep double-tired springs of the upholstery give riding unexpected smoothness and ease.

Remarkable flexibility, fascinating smoothness of overlapping power impulses and freedom from vibration—all characteristic of eight-cylinder construction—are perfected to the highest degree.

Club Roadsters

The Sport model idea in motordom is completely expressed in the Oldsmobile Club Roadster. Designed primarily to permit comfort, intimacy and fellowship for five, this club model is further characterized by body lines of unusual smartness and symmetry.

It is a beautiful car to own, an enjoyable car to ride in, an easy car to drive and an economical car to maintain.

Oldsmobile Standing

The long and constantly increasing list of "Orphan" cars prompts the prudent buyer to make his selection from among those cars whose makers have proven their stability beyond question.

Oldsmobile reputation is a veritable bond to you; it inspires the same confidence you have in the oldest bank in the city. A twelve months' guarantee is back of each Oldsmobile.

Six-Cylinder Models

The Six-Cylinder Oldsmobiles are built for those who want a car at a very moderate price that in appearance, power and durability is the equal of any to be met on the road.

In both Touring Car and Roadster you find the trimness of line and the distinctive simplicity and dignity of design characteristic of Oldsmobile.

Its flexibility and wide range of speed make frequent gear shifting unnecessary and driving easy. To these advantages add also an unusually high mileage from every gallon of gasoline.

All-Season Cars

The new Oldsmobile Sedan and Coupe combine many points of superiority in both style and equipment. The bodies are designed and built especially for Oldsmobiles and will not be found on any other car. They are instantly converted into open Summer cars or closed Winter cars by lowering or raising the plate windows.

Oldsmobile Service

Realizing the importance to a motorist of proper and prompt service, we have recently completed, at 3101-03-05 Olive Street, one of the most efficient and modernly equipped service stations in the city.

Manned by thoroughly trained factory mechanics and supplemented by a marvelously complete stock of parts it stands at your service—a strong endorsement to the twelve months' guarantee by the factory.

Please compare Oldsmobile values only with those of the best motor cars, putting finish against finish, trimming against trimming, equipment against equipment, and measuring performance with performance.

It is really only by performance that the true value of the Oldsmobile can be measured, and only by demonstration can its performance be fully realized. Make an appointment this week.

Greater Convenience—Greater Service!

MOTORING has its proprieties just as does fashion.

That is why it has been necessary to have more than one type of car at your disposal.

Social occasions, business requirements and weather conditions have demanded it.

But—now that is no longer necessary.

The arrival of the new Cole Eight Four-Door Toursedan eliminates the necessity of owning more than one motor car.

Here in one unit you have all the advantages of an open touring model or the privacy and protection of a Sedan or Limousine.

In each condition the car has all of the appearance of permanence. It is completely transformed from one type to another—not temporarily converted!

The appointments are faultless. If made to your personal order they could offer nothing more.

It is advisable to place orders for the Cole Eight Four-Door Toursedan at once to insure immediate delivery.

WORTH OF AUTO FOR BUSINESS AND PLEASURE PROVEN

Owners Find Commercial Distance Removed by It, and Touring Possibilities Add to Enjoyment.

"This season has proved to American motorists the real value of the automobile," says Edward Weber of the Weber Motor Car Co., distributor of Studebaker cars in St. Louis and vicinity.

"Never before has the worth of the motor car as a dual business and pleasure necessity so forcibly been brought home to the man or woman owning a machine. In this stirring time of business and the increasing shortage of labor the man with a motor car has been able to do twice, and in many instances many times, as much work as he was formerly able to do.

"The time saved in going to and from the office and to and from appointments has been one of the big features of the use of the automobile in business. And the man owning motor trucks, while his competitor still sticks to the old method of horse-drawn drays and trucks, has found the "going" and the business results far in advance of his neighbor.

"But the big feature of owning a motor car lies in its adaption for touring about the country. We have greeted more Studebaker owners from many states of the union here this past month than we have for many months preceding.

"The owners almost without exception declare that their cars have proved the means of giving them an opportunity to learn more about their own country in a short space of time than would be possible over three or four times the same period —and riding on a train does not permit of the exploration of the interior of historic places that is possible through the use of the automobile.

"The education that the car provides also cements a stronger feeling within every American to see "America First," and once having seen much of their native land to go back home and redouble their energies to do their bit for Uncle Sam.

"So, the man of moderate means can find it very profitable from many angles to own a Studebaker and learn more of the land in which he is living besides using it in his business life every day."

SEDAN BODY FITS ALL WEATHER DRIVING

Throughout the country there is a decided trend among automobile buyers towards the type of closed car that can be driven by the owner himself. Motor car authorities attribute this to the fact that chauffeurs, young men as a class, are in a large proportion subject to the selective draft for the new national army.

Owners who are thus deprived of a chauffeur are, however, seeing relief in the convertible touring sedan and they are in sufficient number to give a recognizable impulse to the demand for cars of this type.

"We are already experiencing a demand from owners who have lost or are going to lose their chauffeurs," said George Weber of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., local National Highway motor car distributer for the new National 12 and six cylinder sedans. "This car, with its airplane type 12-cylinder or powerful six-cylinder motor, is so easily handled that no woman finds the work exhausting. It is easily and quickly converted from the closed sedan to the open touring car model—without stepping out of the car. Protection against rain without the bothersome work of putting up curtains, and absence of a lot of work removing and housing top or parts of the top meet about every other demand, so that where chauffeurs have been summoned, touring sedan provides a way out of the difficulty. With the sedan the driver is with the rest of the passengers, just the same as in a touring car.

"It is also true that our touring sedan gives a wider range of vision than the cloth tops, which many motorists never lower, anyway, because of the bother. There is less overhang—it is not needed for curtain attachment—and the back window is larger than in most cloth tops.

"Thus the man or woman who desires all-year driving need not depend on a chauffeur. The touring sedan, sans chauffeur, answers all requirements, summer or winter."

GRANT TO BE SHOWN AT OLD BUICK LOCATION

The St. Louis Grant Motor Co., distributors of the Grant Six line, by arrangement with the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, will be displayed on Locust street at 3205, the former location of the Vesper-Buick company.

J. C. Barcus, president of the St. Louis Grant Co., announces that it will show off the Grant cars, the touring model with wood wheels, which sells for $875; the touring car with wire wheels which sells for $1000; and the roadster with wire wheels which sells for $1000.

It is said to be the only six cylinder car which sells under $1250 which has a full floating rear axle. It is claimed for the Grant that it has the lowest up-keep of any car on the market, getting 20 miles from a gallon of gasoline and 7,000 miles from the tires. The St. Louis Grant Co., has the territory in Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky and it is meeting with marked success in placing the line.

NEW MOTORCYCLE RECORD

Cannonball Baker, past master of the art of motor cycle record making, instigated the biggest explosion of the year at the Cincinnati speedway, and when the smoke had cleared eight world's records had been shattered, four by the Cannonball himself on a United States tire equipped Indian machine and four by Teddy Carroll, riding a United States tire equipped Indian side-car combination, with George von Staden as a passenger. The new solo mileage for the 24 hours is 1534¾, the intermediate records being 500 miles in 6:59:15, 1000 miles in 16:14:15; 12 hours, 821⅓ miles.

Carroll's Powerplus circled the track for a total of 1275¾ miles in the 24 hours, and as a pastime he took generous slices out of the previous records, covering 500 miles in 8:56, 1000 miles in 18:48:30; he rolled up 661⅓ miles in the first 12 hours.

CONDEMN MISSOURI ROADS

Tourists in traveling through Missouri invariably make complaint of the condition of bridges and culverts. It is hard for them to understand why a county, township or road district will spend several hundred dollars or perhaps several thousand dollars in building bridges and culverts and then neglect to fix the approaches so that the bridge may be crossed in safety and comfort.

Many culverts leave a hump in the road, which makes traveling dangerous and retards progress in making a cross-state trip. The "water breaks" which were formerly considered necessary to drain the water from a public road have been forgotten in Missouri counties, but there are still a few relics of early-day road construction, and all county highway engineers and good roads enthusiasts throughout Missouri are urged to correct this condition in their own county.

A motor truck must submit, and PASS, the acid test of COST.

That is the test we want you to apply to the one-ton Maxwell truck—its first cost—and its operating cost.

A Maxwell truck—which is a REAL truck, worm-driven—sells at a price that can not be met in any other motor vehicle of like efficiency, durability, and economy.

A Maxwell truck will cover 100 miles in a work day—twice the distance covered by two teams and two drivers.

It will do this at an operating cost of less than that of one team of horses.

Moreover, it is of a size and capacity adapted to the needs of almost every form and phase of commerce, industry, or farming.

The question is not, "Can I afford to have a Maxwell truck?"

The FACT is, Mr. Business Man, you can not afford to be without one.

THE 1918 BUICK COUPE

CAR JUMPS HURDLES.

Before a large and intensely interested group of military experts, an Elgin Six stock touring car proved that it is not only able to jump army trenches, but that the car is so well constructed and so perfectly balanced that it can withstand this strenuous service without damage.

At Fort Sheridan, Ill., recently, a strictly stock Elgin touring car jumped 4½ feet clear of the ground and proved to the satisfaction of the hundreds of army officers and soldiers who witnessed the test that it could hurdle army trenches. In order to perform this unique feat, this sturdy motor thoroughbred approached the mark at a speed of more than 45 miles an hour, rising on a slight incline 18 inches high at the point of jumping off. The Elgin hurdled through space and alighted safely at a point 60 feet and 6 inches distant.

Mr. Lewis has secured from the factory several of the closed car models of the Chandler of a very attractive character.

OLYMPIAN CLOSED LINE.

Three styles of inclosed cars have just been announced by the Olympian Motors Co. of Pontiac, Mich.

The present tendency in designing closed cars is to increase comfort and luxury to the highest degree. This has been accomplished in the new Olympian models. The Olympian line includes a sedan, Springfield type, coupe and winter detachable top.

Women who have learned to preside at the steering wheel show a marked fondness for the modish coupe. Physicians and professional men also prefer the coupe.

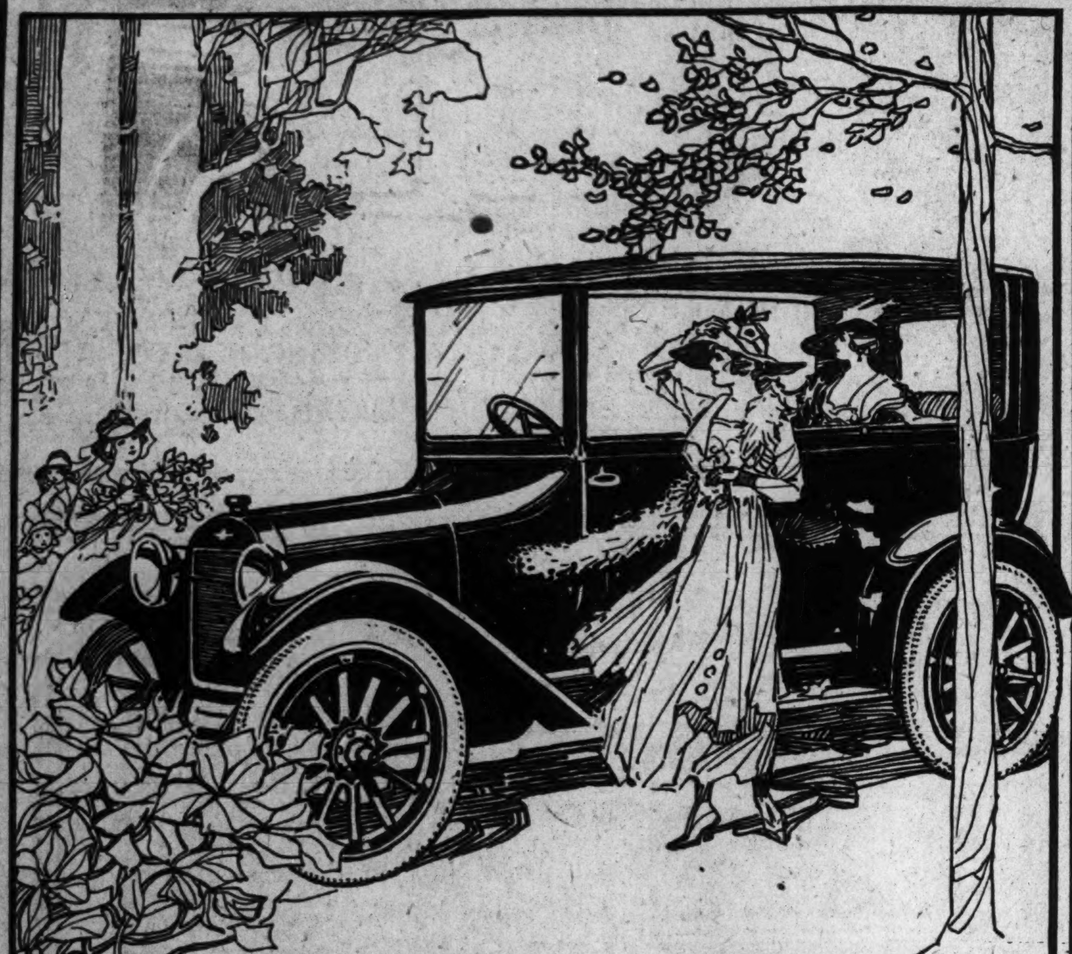
Social requirements are met by the Olympian sedan, which has several unique exclusive features. The car is very roomy and yet has a friendly atmosphere permitting the owner-driver to be one of the party.

The winter detachable top is the choice of many who desire in one vehicle the advantages of a closed car for the winter and a touring car for the summer. This car has many features which ought to make it a popular car this season. Many of the objectionable points in the winter detachable top haye been eliminated.

UNDER-SURFACE DETAILS.

"'Speed and power when needed, but dependable performaneo at all times,' is the motto of car purchasers of today," says Harry Newman of the Kissel Kar.

"That is why they make sure of the under-the-surface details—the parts-next-to-the-road, for it is there where the performance features that count are located."



The New

CHEVROLET SEDAN

This is a very distinctive Sedan, at an uncommon price.

The new Chevrolet Sedan is so sweetly proportioned that it has the appearance of a harmonious unit—no "added top" effect in this car. Top, body, chassis, wheels—everything about it harmonizes.

Its luxurious interior appeals to every lady who inspects it Fine gray cloth upholstering, finished with whipcord binding—dome light—silk curtains on rear windows—security locks on the doors making the car as private as a dwelling—they don't make anything more attractive in Sedan cars.

When fine weather comes and you want an open car, just release a little catch and the side windows drop out of sight into pockets and rear windows drop down to the wheel housing. Five minutes time puts them all in place again when needed. Or they can all be taken completely out, and stowed in receptacles in the car body.

The new Chevrolet Sedan is weather-tight. Its windshield is absolutely water-tight.

This car has the regular Chevrolet Four-Ninety Chassis, with its famous Valve-in-head Motor. You can make 50 miles an hour in it on the level, or climb the steepest sort of a grade at 5 miles an hour on "high."

Yet with all its luxurious appointments and power, this car sells for only $1,060 f.o.b. Flint, Mich. Come in and look it over for yourself. Our salesrooms are open every evening and Sundays.

NEW BUICK LINE IN NEW BUILDING

The new building of the Vesper Buick Auto Co. at the corner of Grand and Lindell, will be formally opened for business during the Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association Open Week, beginning Oct. 8th, and a full line of the 1918 series Buicks will be on exhibition.

The series consists of four and six cylinder cars, eight models in all, being continued with the valve in the head type of construction in all of its models, and all of the improvements made for the current season are in the nature of refinements convenience, as no radical departures have been made in the standard of construction.

The line ranges from a small two passenger, four cylinder type, to the seven passenger, six cylinder touring sedan, including also a seven passenger six cylinder touring car.

This seven passenger car is particularly luxurious in its upholstering, has many small conveniences and touring comforts, used for the first time.

The five passenger, six cylinder touring car is similar in its construction in that it utilizes the same motor and power plant. The wheel base is shorter, and no room is provided for extra seats. The seats, however are extremely wide and deep and made very comfortable.

On all Buick cars a new type of the dry multiple disc clutch is used that can be disengaged with the very slightest pressure.

The six cylinder roadster that has been so extremely popular in the past season, is continued excepting that the body is made longer with wider seats and additional foot room.

The Buick line includes for 1918 a larger assortment of closed cars, all of which are built with solid tops and wih detachable sides of the approved touring type, and four passenger touring coupe with detachable sides, and the seven passenger touring sedan, are new additions to the line, taking the place of the former coupelet types built by the company.

SERVICE TO PUBLIC KEYNOTE OF SUCCESS

Service—good, adequate, unfettered service—has been found by W. O. Rutherford, general sales manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, to be the keynote of success of the vast corporation he represents.

By the establishment of a touring bureau to promote interesting educational trips for the motorist, by the expenditure of huge sums in the experimentation of tires through the medium of test car fleets, which leave no road untraversed, by the maintenance of large laboratories for study on the improvement of casings and tubings—by these and other means all coverging into the general term "Service" has the Goodrich company achieved the position of the largest rubber company in the world. Its profits this year will exceed those of last year by many millions and chiefly because it renders service and quality to the motorist.

"The B. F. Goodrich company," said Mr. Rutherford, "is not in business solely to make money. If it were it would not be the largest rubber company in the world. The function of the Goodrich company is to give a useful service to mankind, and by fixing that as an ideal and working to that end profits naturally accrue, for by rendering service we attract the consideration and patronage of people who want service.

"If it were not of benefit to the community there would be no reason for our existence. If we fixed our goal at so much profit, we would not go fast or far, but when we put before us a vision of how much service we can give and do our human best to make good on it, then we come to realize that we are growing and expanding and constructing new buildings to keep up with the demand for our products."

ALLEN CLOSED CARS.

The Mound City Buggy and Auto Co. has received word from the Allen factory that they have shipped for 'Open Week' one Allen coupe painted London Smoke brown with brown Spanish trimmings to match; one dark blue coupe the blue-gray whipcord trimming to match; one Allen Sedan painted dark blue with blue-gray whipcord trimmings to match and one dark blue sedan with blue-gray Spanish trimmings to match. The coupe lists at $1175 and the sedan at $1195.

The Spanish trimming in the closed cars is an entire departure from the old way of trimming closed automobiles—it is more sanitary, always looks well and wears better than any cloth that could be put in the cushions and backs of any automobile.

These cars on the show room floor Monday morning, October 8th. All Allen closed car bodies are made in the Allen factory and have embodied some of the very latest features in closed car body construction.

PLANNING 1918 AUTO SHOW

At the first monthly meeting of the season of the automobile manufacturers and dealers last Tuesday night at the City Club the speakers were Barney Verheyen, secretary of the Efficiency Board of the Police Department, and Sergt. Joseph Gerk, in charge of the downtown traffic squad. Both talked along traffic lines and the co-operation of automobile dealers in making motor car driving in St. Louis safer.

There was considerable discussion as to the new war revenue tax on automobiles, and it was decided that the tax of 3 per cent was to be added as a separate item on the bottom of the bill for the car, in exactly the same way that the manufacturers will bill the cars to the dealers.

It was announced by Chairman H. W. Spalding of the Show Committee that the plans for the 1918 Automobile Show were well under way and it was certain that a suitable building for the show would be secured in due time. The show will be held in the middle of February.

WESTCOTT LINE ADVANCES

The Brandle Motor Sales Co. of St. Louis has been notified by the manufacturers of the Westcott car, because of the extreme high cost of materials, they will be compelled to make an advance in the Westcott line on Oct. 31.

After that date the roadster will sell for $1890, which is a $100 advance in price; the touring car for $1940, which is a $150 advance, and the sedans and coupes will be priced at $2790, which is an advance of $100 per car. LIBERTY OFFICIAL HELPS GOVERNMENT

A telegram from the Quartermaster's Department of the War Department last week summoned James F. Borquin, vice president of the Liberty Motor Car Co., to Washington, to assist the Government in the production of motor trucks for army transport.

It is reported that the Government will need for its war service thousands of trucks, and the fact that they have called on the Liberty company for the loan of one of their officials to assist them in this production is a splendid tribute to the Liberty Motor Car Co., which has already, through co-operation of its organization, rendered large assistance to the Government on various points.

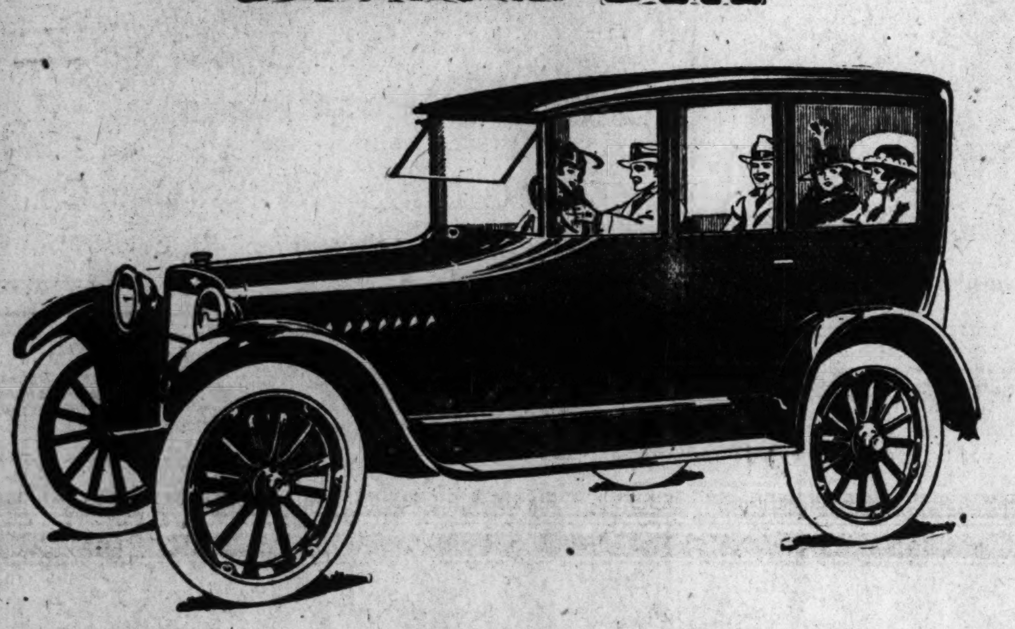
G. B. Allen of the Engineering Department has left Detroit, having been commissioned as First Lieutenant, and his work will be in connection with ordnance.

Every department of the Liberty Motor Car Co. has furnished men for the Government service. It speaks well for the character of the organization that the Government has called on a number of its highly trained men for the army service.

It seems particularly fitting at this time that the Liberty Motor Car Co. should assist as it is in the general movement and fight for liberty and "freedom for democracy throughout the world." The Liberty is handled in St. Louis by the Northern Motor Co.

Help needed at home can be called through a Post-Dispatch Want Ad.

SAXON "SIX"



For Every Day of the Year

Saxon "Six" Sedan

Winter and Summer—rain or shine—every one of the 365 days of a year are motoring days with a Saxon "Six" Convertible Sedan.

It is either a luxurious limousine or a handsome touring car as weather conditions or occupant's whim may direct.

From a perfectly enclosed car of glass and metal, it becomes to all purposes an open touring car by simply lowering the windows into the body and dropping the side supports into a specially designed rear pocket.

And this change can be made easily in a minute or two.

All-year serviceability is only one of Saxon "Six" Sedan attractions. The appointments and refinements are of equal importance. Every detail that makes for beauty and for comfort is to be found.

The body is of metal and the upholstery is overstuffed. Throughout the interior the finish is in a fine quality, all-wool grey Bedford whipcord. The front seats are of the Pullman type with an aisle between them and an entrance to the body is through a single door on each side of the car. In a Sedan smooth, flexible power is desirable. Nothing less than six cylinders satisfy particular motor car drivers.

NEW STATE LAW WILL PROHIBIT BLINDING LIGHTS

Measure Requires That Glass in Headlights Must Be of Nature to Dim and Diffuse Brilliant Light Rays.

St. Louis motorists are gradually beginning to realize that motoring at night may be a pleasure instead of a danger. The State has a headlight ordinance, effective Jan. 31, which many motorists are trying to obey now.

What the law requests is perfectly plain. Those who were instrumental in drawing this law realized quite fully those things that were necessary to safequard night driving. St. Louis has a light expert in Charles M. Talbert, Director of Streets and Sewers, who has done much to improve motoring conditions at night. He has spent his own money to carry through plans that would benefit the motoring public.

Mr. Talbert's plan necessitates a test, after which a sticker of approval is pasted on the lens. In order to secure this, the motorist must take his car to the city hall and there, after being questioned in reference to the candle power, etc., of his lamps, he submits them for test. The device which is the work of Mr. Talbert is ingenious. By throwing the light from the headlight through a slotted aperture, the one in charge can quickly determine whether or not its strength is such that will forbid its use on highways.

The law says that white lights shall be used and the rays from such a lamp shall not rise above 42 inches from the ground. There are lenses and devices that fully comply with these requirements. With the light agitation going on in many states, many devices have been foisted upon the public which do not comply with the law. A demonstration of the lens you are considering will quickly relieve your mind as to its worthiness. If it shows a white light and the rays do not rise above the 42-inch line they will be in accordance with the law.

Municipalities everywhere usually reserve the right to equip their fire department, emergency, patrol and ambulance vehicles with red and green lights. If the law did not specify white lights, it would only be a matter before the autoist would be solicited to purchase lights of every conceivable color, thereby hampering the efficiency of those city departments which, of a necessity, must propel their conveyances at a dangerous speed.

St. Louis can be the advance guard in this light agitation if those who drive motor cars will realize that soon the authorities will reach out and arrest those who do not comply with the law. A time limit has been given in which to equip every motor car properly. Soon there will be a police crusade on in every city in Missouri, which will check those who have not complied with this State law. Why not anticipate such a condition and equip your car with that lens or contrivance which will meet the requirements.

You believe in safeguarding the highways and therefore in complying with the law you are doing only that which in your own mind is needful to make motoring a pleasure at night as well as in the daytime. You, as a motorist, who have complied with the law should appoint yourself a committee of one to see that those who have not equipped their cars with a lens of approved type be advised accordingly.

It is merely a question of working together to make St. Louis the ideal city in the world as regards night driving. Only one out of every 15 motorists has complied with the law while in Kansas and Nebraska, 16 out of 18 cars are equipped with a view of complying with the law.

This law has not been drafted with a view of making a profitable business for manufacturers but to make the highways safe. You would not venture out in your car at night without some signal device such as a horn or bell, and it is just as important that you do not drive unless your lights are so equipped that their blinding rays will not cause an accident. Eighty-nine per cent of night accidents with motor cars are due to the light question—so why not make this an issue and help in promoting safe night driving by complying with the law.

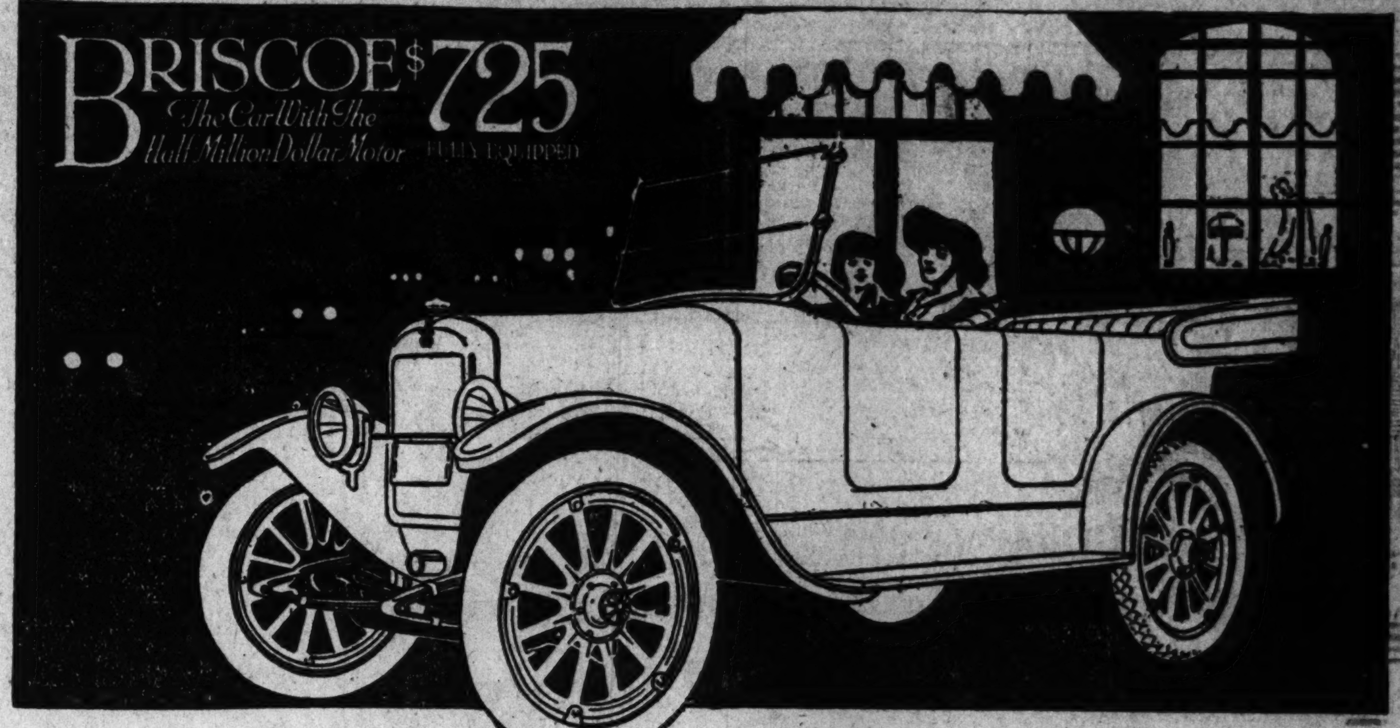
OPPONENTS IN BATTLE MEET AS COWORKERS

The old epigram, "truth is stranger than fiction," received a new affirmation last week, when fate brought together again, at the plant of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., at Akron, O., two men who on the murderous afternoon of April 21, 1914, faced each other in deadly battle at Vera Cruz, when the Mexican Naval Academy there was stormed by Admiral Fletcher's trusy marines.

One of the determined Americans to advance, inch by inch, in the deadly charge on the academy, in the face of a terrific machine-gun fire, was William Dearborn, now drillmaster for the Goodyear, and soon to leave for service with our forces in France.

And one of the defenders of the Mexican academy on that fateful afternoon, who bravely but hopelessly endeavored to beat off the Americans with machine-gun fire, was George Castillo now a tire builder in the big Goodyear factory. High up in the besieged building he stood with a hot rifle in his grasp, picking off the marines as fast as they showed themselves.

These two men met the other day—as friendly members of the company's big family of workers. And they told different tales of the battle, because they saw it differently.



BRISCOE $725
The Car With The Half Million Dollar Motor
FULLY EQUIPPED

The "Class" Car Among Light Weight Fours

The Briscoe model B4-24 is, to our knowledge, the only light weight four-cylinder car whose finish includes more than one color.

In addition to its many other superior qualities, this Briscoe model satisfies your pride of ownership by the distinctive looks of its body and running gear in different colors. Its meadow-green body, black fenders and running gear and cream color wheels give to it that little touch of exclusiveness and good taste that we all admire.

The interior of the car will win your approval also. The upholstering is well done; cushions are extremely deep and restful; backs of seats come way up to your shoulder blades and the instrument board is so neatly arranged that you, like every one who has seen the car, will stamp it O. K. on these points.

Have you noticed the increasing number of these cars on the streets of late? The satisfaction these owners are getting from this Briscoe model is one of our best advertisements.

You will like this new Briscoe—like it for its distinctive appearance, for its unusual leg-room, for its accessibilty, for its power, for its economy, and for the completeness of its equipment.

The motoring season is at its height. Delay may mean disappointment as well as an advance in price. Now is the time to buy!

INSPECTORS AT WORK.

Road drag inspectors report to the Missouri State Highway Department that many of the intercounty seat roads are being neglected, and that the money appropriated by the Legislature to improve these roads has been allowed to accumulate in local banks while the roads remain in very bad condition. These inspectors are instructed by the State Highway Department to report failure to drag or otherwise improve intercounty seat roads, and it is the purpose of the department to withhold drag funds from any county in which the county highway board fails to provide for the improvement of the intercounty seat roads.

GOOD SERVICE TAUGHT OWNERS GASOLINE SAVING

Brandle Service Department Sent for Dissatisfied Owners and Showed Them Secret of Economy.

"As far as may be practicable, the attitude of this company is that the customer is right in every instance, even though there may be room for some reasonable doubt on the matters involved," President T. C. Brandle of the Brandle Motors Co. said in referring to a recent meeting of the corporation's directors, at which the whole question of service was considered and the conslusion as stated reached, with the additional decision that the same policy should be pursued whether the customer be the owner of a Chevrolet or a Westcott car. "It has become a maxim with us that this policy of cheerful and sympathetic service is the main basis of success for any organization, and it has been demonstrated to be the correct principle in our own business."

Recently the Brandle company wrote to each owner of a Chevrolet car in the city, asking for a complete report on the car's performance in his or her hands. Replies to these inquiries were considered at the meeting of directors. Some of them, as is natural, showed that in some cases the owner had, through neglect or other cause, failed to obtain from the car all its easy possibilities in service when handled according to plain instructions. From the average, however, it was found that the owners were getting better than twenty miles on the gallon of gasoline and more than 500 miles on the gallon of oil.

Upon this showing the company wrote to each of the owners who was getting less than the average and invited him or her to bring the car in for attention and service so that they might obtain the full service that was inherent in the machine. Most of them have already done so and from their rechecked statements they are now getting results which they had thought at the time of the purchase to have been exaggerated claims for the car.

One of the latter class of owners, who was getting only 16 2-3 miles on a gallon of gasoline has since reported that, by following suggestions made at the service inspection he is getting better than 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Pursuing this service policy still further, the Brandle Co. is co-operating with the Goodyear Tire Co. through which suggestions have been made which insures to the owners of the Chevrolet the maximum of mileage from their tires.

KISSEL'S SEDANLET IS THE NEWEST CREATION

With tomorrow's opening of St. Louis' closed car week, Harry Newman, Inc., will place on exhibition at the salesrooms the new Kissel all-year cars, including the four-passenger sedanlet, the all-year top of which is not only entirely removable, but in which all six windows can be raised or lowered at will.

The feature, destined to revolutionize this type of automobile, it is claimed, goes every convertible car one better in that it is virtually three cars in one. In severely cold and stormy weather, the sedanlet is entirely inclosed. For the early spring and fall months, all six windows may be lowered full length. During the summer months the all-year top can be entirely removed and replaced by the new semi-victoria style summer top, a recent Kissel origination.

"As everybody knows, Kissel originated the two-cars-in-one idea three years ago," says Harry Newman. "Since that time he has maintained his leadership in the all-year idea. In no other car can be found such perfection in body designing and building. In the new models this perfection is even more noticeable, setting a new standard not only in coach building, but in power and operating economy.

"The all-year car has a reputation that has become nation-wide. It gives car purchasers in one car the utility, style and completeness of two cars and is conceded by critical car buyers of New York, Chicago and in fact in all parts of the country, as the highest development of the convertible idea. In appearance it is that of a permanently closed coach, the all-year top being built in, not on, and blending smoothly with the body of the car.

"The exclusive Kissel construction eliminates all rattles, squeaks, drafts or leaks. All fastenings and attachments are invisible, yet the entire top can be quickly removed for summer motoring without a roof.

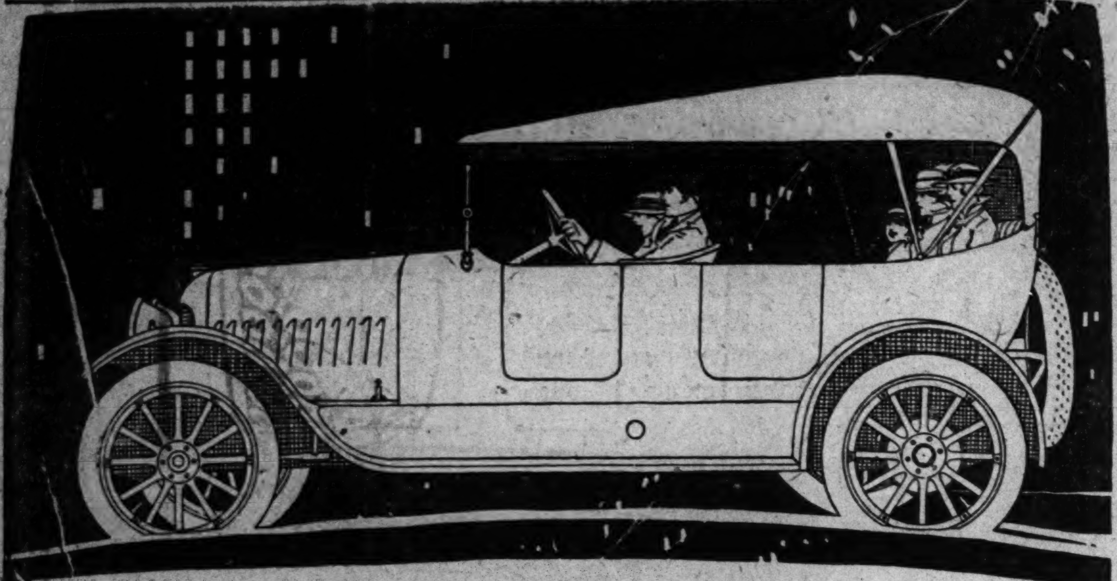
"We are also showing Kissel's new double six—his seven-passenger touring "twelve," in which is reached the nearest approach to the ultimate in motor car performance."

TIRE MATERIAL THAT DOES ITS BIT

"Do you realize how little difference there is in tires as to the amount of material used?" asked an accessory dealer. "It's a fact that there is very little more actual tire material in a good tire than there is in a cheap tire. The big idea is this—good tire manufacturers by careful selection and superior workmanship so combine and fashion the various raw materials for strength and service that their tires last longer and are better investments.

"For instance, Globe tires haven't much more material in them than those cheap tires over there—but they will probably last twice or three times as long. Globe tires are not only made by skilled workmen, but only the best materials are used and these are selected, tested, strengthened, and combined just as well as these workmen know how. The result is a tough, long-wearing tire.

"That's one reason why I like to sell Globe tires. I know they are going to give my customers good service and honest service of course, and it certainly tickles my fancy to think that every ounce of rubber and fabric in these tires is going to do its fullest duty before it wears out."



An Extraordinary Bargain

GRANT SIX
$875
f. o. b. Cleveland

THE man who buys a GRANT SIX at the present price is getting an extraordinary bargain. Nearly all other cars have advanced in price without any advance in quality or equipment.

The GRANT SIX is one of the very few cars that is selling better this fall than ever before—and there must be a reason for this.

You cannot match the GRANT SIX quality, appearance or performance in any other car under $1150.

GRANT SIX economy still remains without rival—20 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 900 miles to a gallon of oil, 7000 miles or more from standard tires.

It is pre-eminently the car of the hour, because it gives a maximum of service and satisfaction at the lowest investment.

Compare the GRANT SIX with any car under $1150 and it will be your choice.

LOWER STEEL COST WILL NOT REDUCE MOTOR CAR COST

A Hundred Other Items, Including Cost of Making Parts, and Their Transportation, Will Prevent Any Reduction.

The prominence which has been given to the discussion of the effect which the cut in steel prices will have on automobile manufacturing, since the agreement was reached by the President and the steel men of the country, has found a ready response and many of the men most prominent in the motor car industry have uttered opinions which to prospective buyers of automobiles should carry considerable weight.

That a reduction of almost 50 per cent in the price of steel and allied materials will have little effect on the price of motor cars seems to be the belief of practically all of the leading builders.

J. J. Cole, president of the Cole Motor Car Co. of Indianapolis, who has represented one of the most progressive elements in the industry during his more than a decade of activity in the automobile world, has the following to say concerning the steel situation.

"Steel is just an element in automobile production. It is not a determining factor. Of course, without steel we cannot proceed, but there is so much more to an automobile than steel that it is not the sole barometer gauging the cost of production.

"Furthermore, raw steel and steel as we motor car people use it are as different as day and night.

"You may reduce the cost of all steel all you please, but after that our expense begins. It must be refined, it must be made into the parts we use, it must be transported to our plants.

"Each of these operations is becoming daily more expensive. Being compelled to place our orders for the so-called raw materials months and months in advance of the time of which we actually expect to use it, we will be forced to have in production from six months to a year from now the material purchased at the advance figure—materials which cost at least twice as much as the price determined on by the recent agreement.

"Further than that, if the cost of labor and machinery continues to soar during the coming year as it has during the last 12 months—if we continue to meet the same or increasing obstacles in our efforts to move the raw stock to our plants—this cost will have mounted to such proportions by the time we are in the market for the cheaper steel that by the time it reaches us it will be offset by the other increased costs.

"But as I stated at the otuset—steel is only a contributing element in automobile manufacture. It is not the determining element.

There is leather and rubber, paint and glass, aluminum and fiber, patent devices, lenses, and a score of other materials that are increasing daily. These are quite as important in the building of a motor car as is steel, and with these increasing in price the little difference in the price of steel when it reaches us—providing there will be any difference six months from now—will mean but little.

"Motor car manufacturers realize that it would be good merchandising for them at this time to reduce the price of their product. But they are bound hand and foot. They simply cannot do it if they want to, and no conscientious builder of motor cars would consider sacrificing quality to gain a point or two on the price side of the ledger.

"Hence if the manufacturer would keep the quality of his car—preserve the merit that has been the foundation stone of whatever success he has enjoyed—he cannot hope to reduce the price of his product one cent.

"The cost of steel under any agreement—alone, will not do it. And there is no sign of relief in any other direction."

BROKE RECORD ON A BET

Coffeyville's most prominent citizen—not excepting the illustrious Walter Johnson of big league fame, is Fred Etchen. He drives a "Studebaker Cupie" and recently smashed to smithereens all cross-country records for stock cars. Fred, took a bet and raced his Studebaker from Coffeyville, Kan., to Denver in 23 hours and 29 minutes. The other fellow said Fred couldn't do it inside of 24 hours—and backed up his assertion with real coin of the realm. Etchen not only turned the trick and collected his..$1000..but he drove every mile of the 733 mile trip. Three reputable citizens of Coffeyville made the trip with Etchen as official observers. Only 48 gallons of gasoline were used on this 733 mile trip—an average of 15¼ miles to the gallon—and but two gallons of motor oil.

MONTGOMERY APPLIES FOR CONVICT ROAD CAMP

The County Court of Montgomery County, Mo., has requested the State Highway Board and the State Prison Board to furnish from 25 to 100 convicts for use in road work in special road districts in the county. The convicts will be put to work on the construction of an eight-mile stretch of State road through the Mineola special road district. This link in the Old Trails road in Missouri has long been regarded as a barrier to cross-State traffic north of the Missouri River.

It is expected, on acocunt of the present scarcity of labor in many localities, that the use of convicts will be a solution to the problem of securing labor for road building in many counties in the State.

SEPTEMBER IS BIG SALES MONTH FOR CARS

September is living up to the predictions that far-sighted automobile men made for it last summer when they said that the fall month would be a big selling season for motor cars.

This is evidenced by the reports which are coming from motor car dealers in all parts of the country. At the plant of the Saxon Motor Car Corporation at Detroit, according to a letter the Frye Motor Car Co., the latest tabulations from the dealers show that the month has exceeded expectations. It has been with difficulty that the factory has been able to supply the demand for cars and at the present time there are hundreds of unfilled orders on hand. The total sales of the Indianapolis dealer organization to date in September are 214 cars.

Now that some time has elapsed since the August retail business closed, Saxon dealers are coming forward with the information that this month also was a splendid sales season. E. J. Borchers of Dayton, O., established a record for sales in August by selling 18 the first day of the month and kept up the pace. While reports for other parts of the country indicate a comparatively large amount of business.

Despite the slack period in sales which immediately followed the declaration of war, dealers are averaging a bigger business this year than last. The Grand Rapids territory, which takes in a fertile section of Michigan's farm country, reports that business has increased so that Saxon sales this year show 290 per cent increase in nine months, whereas the nearest competitor showed only 200 per cent increase. These records are based on the official records of the Secretary of State. In the Far West business has gone steadily onward and Spokane territory already has sold 650 cars. In the same way the Middle West shows large gains.

The dealers say the ideal weather of September has helped some and that if October brings pleasant days also, the sales will keep right up. They look for an active retail market until snow flies.

NEW BUICK BUILDING AT GRAND AND LINDELL

At Grand and Lindell avenues in St. Louis, the intersection of the city's two main lines of automobile traffic, is located the new Vesper Buick Building, which was completed and ready for occupancy last week. The company extends an urgent invitation to the public to inspect it and the new Buick 1918 models, which are now on display.

The new plant is one of the handsomest and best equipped of its kind, and represents an investment of several hundred thousand dollars. It has been made necesary by the unusual growth of the number of Buick owners and Buick enthusiasts in this territory.

The showroom for automobiles is of exceptionally beautiful design, with wide tiled floor, furniture and finishings to match, in fumed oak, and other details carried out in striking harmony to the whole. A feature of the showroom is the big, attractive fireplace.

The illumination is skillfully diffused by a combination of indirect lighting, with a system of direct lights around the cornice. The building has been planned to facilitate the utmost promptness in serving the wants of Buick owners, not only locally but throughout the whole St. Louis territory, and its ample design provides storage room for a complete stock of Buick parts and equipment.

ARE BUILDING CARS TO AID EFFICIENCY

"It has come to pass," said George F. Heising, chief engineer of the Moon Motor Car Co., "that the automobile manufacturer who is successful these days is the one whose cars are built to add to the efficiency of their buyers.

"The study of the automobile engineer is therefore to design a car that not only affords comfort and appearance, but which is economical of operation, adaptable in its finer points to the needs of the owner, which has motor flexibility, and which has power and speed sufficient for satisfactory performance on all classes of roads and grades.

"The manufacturer who keeps these points in mind usually designs a car that sells beyond his capacity for production. In designing the new Moon Thousand Dollar car we have taken into consideration every one of these points, and we believe that this new, light six-cylinder car, with its Continental motor, is going to meet every demand of the most exacting buyer.

"We are planning to produce 20,000 of these cars a year and have installed the machinery in our greatly increased plant in St. Louis to meet the demands of this large output."

CAMOUFLAGES A FORD.

The Kelsey "Stream Line" for the Ford chassis is a new creation, which makes of the Ford a classy touring car, which no man need be ashamed to drive for pleasure or business, regardless of his financial standing in the community. The body is built of heavy gauge pressed steel, the upholstery is extra high grade artificial leather, with double deck spring cushions in the rear seat. The doors have lapped joints and concealed hinges and a flap pocket.

A striking feature of the body is the one-man top, which fastens to the slanting windshield. The hood has the streamline effect. The gasoline tank fits under the front seat, holding 10 gallons, and there is a tire carrier on the rear and many little refinements, such as robe rail.

The body is furnished in several colors and fits accurately the standard model T chassis, using the regular Ford fenders. The body sells for $195 f.o. b. the factory. It is sold in St. Louis and surrounding territory by the Wielandy-Reller Auto Equipment Co., 1423 Locust street and will be displayed during the open week.

CADILLAC ENCLOSED CARS ARE TRULY SNUG

The word cozy carries all of its real meaning when it is applied to Cadillac enclosed cars, for they are truly snug and comfortable. At every point where draughts or cold air might creep in to chill the passengers, skilled provision has been made against them. Tops and bottoms of windows, door sills and door frames, all are protected.

When the adjustable windows in a Cadillac enclosed car are in place the top edge of the plate glass is held firmly in a channel lined with felt. At the bottom the hooked edge of the window frame fits tightly over a "fence" on the window sill. Rain and cold are kept out—and there is no chance of the window rattling.

Around the door openings runs a roll of live rubber, covered with upholstery, which fits snugly against the door when it is closed. The rubber not only seals the door against the weather, but assists it to close softly and without slam.

The bottom edge of each door is fitted with a rubber strip which contacts with a special bead on the aluminum sill plate. Thus another favorite entrance of draughts is effectively closed.

NEWELL IN CHICAGO TO STUDY SERVICE

Believing that one is "Never too old to learn," J. E. Newell, president of the Newell Motor Car Co., spent the past few days in conference with the Bird-Sykes Co. exchanging service ideas.

The Bird-Sykes Co. represent the Paige line in Chicago, being one of the largest distributers in the United States. For many years this company has been one of the foremost exponents of efficient service to motor car owners, and today they lay their success to their service department in equal share with the qualities of the Paige line.

Service has always been the hobby with the Newell company, too. Working on the theory that the satisfied user is the best advertiser, the Newell "boys" have endeavored to instill this idea into their entire organization.

Shortly after Mr. Newell announced the Paige as the car of his choice he receved an invitation from the Chicago distributer to visit his place and exchange ideas on what efficient service really is. Combining business and pleasure, Mr. Newell accepted the invitation and will no doubt be one of the throng to see the opening clash between the Giants and the White Sox.

PLACE ELGIN AGENCY WITH WILSON CO.

Announcement is made by the Wilson Motor Car Co., of St. Louis that it has taken on the distributing agency for the Elgin line of cars. The Elgin was first seen in St. Louis at an exhibition made at the 1917 Automobile show, but has not been represented here. The Wilson company through its officers made a careful inspection of the car and its performance, and selected it as a companion seller to the Haynes car which the company already represents in this territory.

The first cars because of slow railroad deliveries are being driven through from the Elgin factory by representatives of the local company and will be shown here during Open Week on Locust street, at salesrooms of the company, Locust street.

The Wilson Motor Car Co. announces that it has contracted a new building which is to be 2900 block on Locust street, immediately opposite the present lac building. This is to be a structure with handsome exterior brick and terra-cotta, in which Haynes line and the Elgin be displayed. A well equipped service station is to be installed in rear of the new building.

The Velie Brougham

The Velie Brougham has won a name for satisfactory service, beauty and luxury of appointment never obtained by a car of similar price—in fact, the Velie Brougham is found in many of the largest private motor garages in company with imported or specially designed creations. Not a detail has been omitted which might improve the comfort or convenience of the rear compartment.

UND GOLD MINE IN OLD TIRE CUT

Prospectors are hitting the trail of automobile tire today out in the Northwest as the result of an odd discovery by W. B. Stewart, manager service at Goodrich branch at Spokane, Wash. Mr. Stewart was inspecting, a few days ago, an old tire received from Kalispell, Mont., and noticed that a neglected cut had admitted a small quantity of black sand to the interior of the casing. As he examined this sand, lo, and behold! his eyes fell upon some gleaming yellow grains.

An expert of long experience was consulted. He pronounced the grains to be pure gold—declared furthermore, that the proportion of yellow metal made the sand especially good pay dirt.

It is his surmise that the sand worked into the cut in the casing while the tires were plowing across some stream or through lake or river sands in Montana.

"I have seen rice in old tires from China," said Mr. Stewart, "tea leaves in tires from our Kokio branch, white Australian sand in tires from Kangarooland, Lempen filler in tires from Manila, cactus thorns in tires from Arizona, pineapple and sugar cane syrup in and on tires from Hawaii, red volcano dust in tires from Mauna Loa, but this is the first time I have ever found real gold."

WHAT Sells Marmon Closed Cars

Marmon Closed Cars—mechanically, leaders among modern high-grade automobiles—excel in riding comfort and beauty. They ride safely and luxuriously at 55 miles an hour or faster.

Perfect balance and low center of gravity minimize skidding. Scientific spring suspension eliminates sidesway, and gives unequaled riding ease.

The Marmon accelerates from 10 to 50 miles an hour in less than 20 seconds; stops quickly and smoothly; handles easily, and turns in a short radius.

Marmon mechanical excellencies are crowned by the work of master coach builders—bodies by Holbrook, Kimball, New Haven Carriage Company and Thompson.

Artistic color effects in rich upholstery and body finish to harmonize with the personal tastes and the requirements of the owners.

A ride will prove to you the unrivaled luxury Marmon has attained in Closed Cars of scientific construction.

HIGHWAY SCOUTS' CAR IS MIRED IN SALT DESERT

Thrilling Experience West of Salt Lake on Lincoln Highway Forced Abandonment of Supply Car.

Stranded on a desolate stretch of the great Salton Desert, near Granite Mountain, in Northern Utah, and compelled to toil under the heat and glare of a merciless sun for half a day to extricate a big touring car which had settled into a treacherous sub-surface hole, President F. A. Seiberling of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and director of the Lincoln highway, reports one of the most thrilling motor experiences of a lifetime.

Director Seiberling, in company with three other Lincoln highway officials, set out on a tour of inspection of a 17-mile strip of proposed highway through the desert regions west of Great Salt Lake. They were followed by a camp car, laden with the necessary equipment for roughing it in an uninhabited region.

Camp for the night was pitched on the rim of the desert and it was well that sleeping bags and blankets had been provided, for the temperature dropped to 40 degrees by morning. By noon, however, it had mounted up to 120, and the sun blazed down in a blinding glare.

A preliminary inspection had been made by two of the other members of the party, with the report that the route was passable. All went well at first, but before long the big camp car, traveling about two miles behind the touring car, broke through the hard crust and sank in the soft material below. On account of the danger of sinking through the sandy surface, if an attempt were made to turn around, the touring car was forced to back in its tracks for the two miles.

The camp car was soon towed out of difficulty, but mired again when half way across the desert, and in the effort to extricate it, the touring car broke through also. So the camp car was abandoned and the attention of the party given to reclaiming the other car. In the meantime one of the men started out on a 12-mile hike to the nearest ranch for help, while the others tugged steadily at the marooned car.

After a six-hour struggle, which netted an exquisite collection of blistered hands and reddened faces, the big car was finally coaxed out onto the roadway, and plowing through the sands like a ship in a heavy sea, reached the ranch at dusk, just as a relief party was starting out to rescue them.

But while the struggle was a laborious one, not one of the party was really sorry that it happened, for they worked to the accompaniment of the beautiful phenomena of the desert reaches. The most wonderful mirages of clear, cool lakes, running streams, islands covered with shady forests and moving figures approaching from a distance, which appeared to be relief parties coming to our rescue, revived the spirits of the marooned party and made them temporarily forget their predicament. What appeared to be men and horses was only the mirage transforming distant tufts of sage brush into moving objects.

TWELVE AND A HALF DAYS FROM COAST TO COAST

From New York City to Portland, Ore., a transcontinental trip of 3489 miles, in exactly 12½ days driving, is the remarkable record recently established by Dr. Robert H. Ellis of Portland, in a Franklin car.

After purchasing a brand-new car at the Franklin factory at Syracuse, N. Y., Dr. Ellis journeyed to New York City. From there he followed the Lincoln highway across the country to Granger, Wyo., where he branched off to the Oregon trail to the Columbia River highway, and thence to Portland.

An average of 11 hours driving was maintained every day, and 350 miles represent the greater distance travelled in a single day. Dr. Ellis carried three passengers throughout the trip and was handicapped on several occasions by storms and slippery roads. Exactly 200 gallons of gasoline were consumed and an average of 17½ miles to the gallon was made during the trip.

NOVEL TEST MADE OF WATER CONSUMPTION

One of the most striking results of the recent Dort economy run under A. A. A. auspices, was the record of 601.08 miles to a gallon of water, showing very unusual cooling qualities. In the entire mileage of 4658.4 covered, only 31 quarts of water passed through the radiator.

The start was made from Los Angeles on Sept. 6, at 10 a. m., when G. F. Stephenson, A. A. A., technical representative, sent Jerry Woodill away accompanied by W. J. Stipe as observer on the first leg of the run. Woodill turned the car over to Bill Fitzgerald and Observer James Whyte in San Francisco after averaging 23.37 miles to the gallon. "Fitz" drove back to Los Angeles with an average of 25.44 miles to the gallon. Then W. B. Felix and Observer Herbert Harms climbed aboard and with a determination to better the first days' marks, Felix shot the Dort through for an average of 26.21 miles per gallon over 498 miles, the high mark of the run.

AT ONCE! STOPS INDIGESTION, GASES, STOMACH MISERY

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, upset stomachs feel fine.

Neutralizes acids in stomach, starts digestion and gives relief.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother.

If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have dyspepsia. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach sweetened and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it stops fermentation and acidity and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.—ADV.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone—ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now—your very life may be at stake.

BOY FILES WAY OUT OF TRUNK IN WHICH HE WAS TRAPPED

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Oct. 6.—The accidental finding of an old file saved the life of O. B. Fields, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Fields of this city.

The boy was playing in the barn. He discovered an old trunk, and crawled into it. The lid closed, the lock snapped and he was a prisoner. His screams failed to reach his mother in the house, several yards away

The boy found an old file in the trunk. For three houres he worked with the file, finally opening the trunk.

He was almost suffocated and fainted when the lid was opened The finding of his unconscious body beside the big trunk was the first intimation the parents had of the boy's narrow escape.

Rupture's Worst Enemy

Such Makeshifts Have Forced Thousands Into Risking Dangerous Operations

Wearing elastic and spring trusses year after year is almost sure to shorten your life.

You can't make them hold, even when drawn so tight you can scarcely stand to keep them on.

They usually let you get worse all the time—that's why every year they are forcing thousands of people into undergoing operation.

They are simply a crime—squeeze the rupture, often causing strangulation—dig into the pelvic bone in front—press against the spinal column at the back—make life miserable for nearly everybody who wears them.

The Plain Truth Is This:

You can't possibly get well—can't even keep from getting worse—unless your rupture is constantly held in place. Just as a broken bone can't knit unless held securely together.

And just as a bandage or splint is the only way a broken bone can be held, so the right kind of truss is the only thing in the world that can keep a rupture from coming out and growing worse.

You'll feel like a new person from the day you put on that kind of truss.

But you know as well as we that you'll never find such a sure-to-hold truss at any drug store.

Yet it's easy enough to get. And you can test it first—by sixty days' trial—without having to risk a single cent.

It's the famous Cluthe Truss or Cluthe Automatic Massager—absolutely guaranteed to hold, and won't cost you a cent if it doesn't.

It is so utterly different from everything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents.

Made on an entirely new principle. Instantly and automatically protects you against every strain so your rupture can't possibly be forced out. Self-regulating, self-adjusting. Far more than just a truss.

In addition to constant holding, it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does that—entirely automatically—and how it has thus completely cured hundreds and hundreds of people whose cases seemed almost hopeless—is all explained in the free book which the coupon below will bring you.

No Belt—No Leg-Straps—No Springs.

The Cluthe Truss does away with the curse of belts, leg-straps and springs. Thousands say it is as comfortable as their clothing. It is water-proof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof and easily kept clean.

Make This 60-Day Test—You Won't Have to Risk a Penny

We don't ask you to trust to a mere try-on the way you have to do at a drug store.

We'll make a Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss especially for your case—make it to your measure—and let you try it sixty days—

We'll practically lend it to you that long just for a test.

If it can't be made to keep your rupture from coming out or from bothering you in any way, no matter how hard you work or strain—if it doesn't prove every claim we make—then it won't cost you a penny.

Free Book Full of Facts Never Before Put in Print

Don't keep on letting yourself get worse—don't spend a cent on account of your rupture until you get our free book of advice.

This remarkable book—cloth-bound, 104 pages—sums up all we have learned about rupture during nearly half a century of experience.

You'll find it full of facts never before put in print.

It shows just why elastic and spring trusses cause so much misery and such a shameful waste of money that the law should stop their sale.

It explains why operation is always dangerous—and why, if you do manage to live through it, you may have to keep on wearing a truss.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," "locks," etc.

It shows why sixty days' trial is the only safe way to buy anything for rupture—and how the Cluthe Truss is the only thing of any kind that you can get on such a long trial because the only thing good enough to stand such a thorough day-after-day test.

And it tells all about this famous Automatic Massaging Truss—how simple it is—how it ends constant expense—how it has saved thousands from operation—how you can get it on trial, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Also gives voluntary endorsements from over 5000 benefited and cured people.

Oregon Resident Fought in Indian and Civil Wars.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 6.—Although he is 105 years "young" and fought in the Indian and Civil Wars, "Uncle" John Dowd, of Williamina, has not had enough of excitement and wants to enlist in the United States Army and go to France to fight the Germans.

He is as earnest in his desire to enlist as any youthful recruit. Dowd walks two miles daily and often makes six miles a day on foot.

FARMERS URGED TO FEED OATS; SAVE WHEAT GIVEN TO HOGS

Illinois Food Administrator Asks That Price of Corn Not Determine Uneconomic Rationing of Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Reports from certain localities in Illinois that farmers are feeding wheat to hogs because corn commands higher prices than wheat, caused Harry A. Wheeler, State Food Administrator, to issue an "oats feeding" statement to the farmers of the State today.

"Feeding wheat to hogs because it is lower in price than corn is a serious mistake," said the statement. "Even if the hungry human beings of the world were not in want of every grain of wheat not needed for seed, it is a much poorer livestock feed than oats or barley. Oats is the crop we should be feeding to everything from humans to chickens this year. There is a monster crop of the finest quality oats in this State. Many sections report yields of 70 to 80 bushels to the acre.

"With bins full of oats that are worth only 65 to 70 cents a bushel on the market, at least half the hog and cow ration can be made up with big profits. As to the horse, which normally gets over 27 per cent of the corn crop, oats always have been recognized as the feed par excellence, and all the armies feed oats exclusively for grain to war horses. No corn should be fed horses unless they are to be fattened, with prices of oats and corn in their present relationship.

"American farmers should take a leaf from the experience book of the Europeans and the Canadians, where whole oats are fed to hogs and are recognized as the best bacon producer next to barley, which is supreme as a hog ration. Denmark, which excels at bacon production, uses barley and oats almost exclusively.

"Wheat as whole grain is the most wasteful feed that could be put into hogs, even if human beings were not hungering for it. Too much whole grain is lost in the manure, from which little value has been extracted. The oat crop is the right answer to the reduction of the feed cost, as it is already in the bins at hand and does not await harvest."

Wife to Blame If Husband Drinks, Says Druggist Brown, of Cleveland, Who Tells Wife What to Do

A New Treatment Given Without the Consent or Knowledge of the Drinker.

Cleveland, O.—"No wife has a right to blame her husband because he drinks," says Druggist Brown of Cleveland. "It is her fault if she lets him drink and bring unhappiness and poverty to her home, and she has no right to complain. A woman can stop a drinking husband in a few weeks for half what he would spend on liquor, so why waste sympathy on a wife who refuses to do it." Druggist Brown also says the right time to stop the drink habit is at its beginning unless you want drink to deaden the fine sensibilities of the husband you love. Begin with the first whiff of liquor on his breath, but do not despair if he has gone from bad to worse until he is rum-soaked through and through. Druggist Brown knows the curse of strong drink, because he himself has been a victim. He was rescued from the brink of a drunkard's grave by a loving sister, who, after ten years' time revealed the secret to him. She saved him from drink—rescued him from his own depraved self, by giving him a secret remedy, the formula of an old German chemist. To discharge his debt to her and to help other victims out of the murk and mire he has made the formula public. Any druggist can put it in the hands of any suffering wife, mother, sister or daughter. Just ask the druggist for prepared Tescum powders and drop a powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or any other drink. Soon liquor does not taste the same, the craving for it disappears and lo, one more drinker is saved and knows not when or why he lost the taste for drink.

One woman who used this prescription on her husband says: "It is going on the fourth week since he has touched a drop of anything in the form of liquor or used tobacco of any kind. He seems already like a different man. Tescum has gained a wonderful enthusiast in me. I regard it as a Godsend. Just think. I have never seen my husband sober for more than 48 hours in years, and now it is going on one month since he had his last drink."

Another one gratefully writes: "I have used Tescum powders on my husband and find it one of the greatest cures in this world. He hasn't taken a drink for almost five weeks and says he never will. My home does not seem like the same place and life seems worth living. I hope thousands gain what I have. This has been a good new year for me without drink in my home."

NOTE—Tescum, referred to above, should be used only when it is desirable to destroy all taste for alcoholic drinks of every kind. The wife who approves of drinking in moderation and believes her husband safe should give it only when she sees, as most do in time, that the danger line is near. You take no risk with Tescum, as it is sold in this city under a steel-bound money-refund guarantee by Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and other first-class druggists. They guarantee it to do the work or refund the money.—ADVERTISEMENT.

"Anaemia—Lack of Iron—Is Greatest Curse To Health and Beauty of American Women"

Says Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author

Any Woman Who Tires Easily, Is Nervous or Irritable, or Looks Pale, Haggard and Worn, Should Have Her Blood Examined for Iron Deficiency.

Administration of Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Careworn Women 100 Per Cent in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

THE CHILD'S APPEAL

Mother, why don't you take NUXATED IRON and be strong and well and have nice rosy cheeks instead of being so nervous and irritable all the time and looking so haggard and old—The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks just fine.

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy-cheeked women without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author. "In my recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

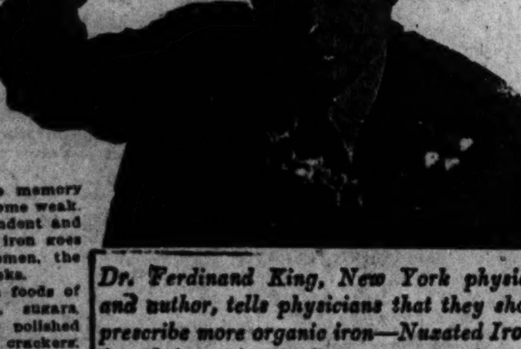
"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful health and strength to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength-builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases, and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood.

"On account of the peculiar nature of woman, she requires iron much more than man.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely rid themselves of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form; and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.



Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and author, tells physicians that they should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients—Says anaemia—iron deficiency—is the greatest curse to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American Woman.—Sounds warning against use of metallic iron which may injure the teeth, corrode the stomach and do far more harm than good; advises use of only nuxated iron.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful healthy rosy cheeked women full of Life, Vim and Vitality

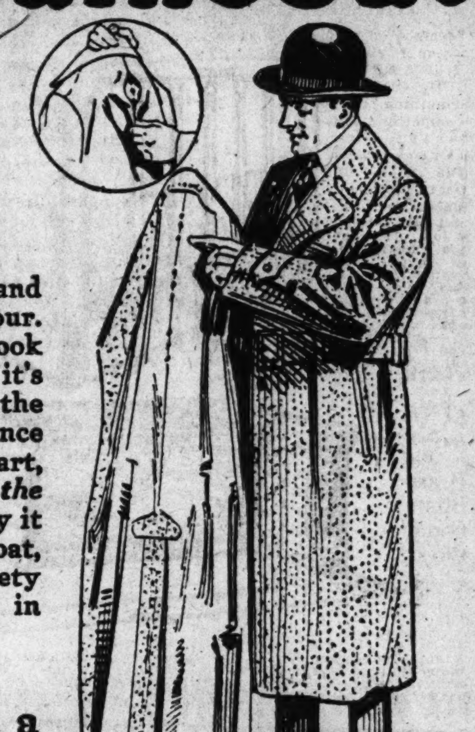
"I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder.

"Many an athlete and prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But so many American women suffer from iron deficiency with its attendant ills—physical weakness, nervous irritability, melancholy, indigestion, flabby, sagging muscles, etc., etc.—and in consequence of their weakened, run-down condition they are so liable to contract serious and even fatal diseases, that I deem it my duty to advise all such to take Nuxated Iron. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and all good druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

At Last!—something new in a raincoat.



AIR-IN, "The Coat with Lungs," is a raincoat with a brand new idea. First of all, it's a real raincoat—it will keep you dry and comfortable in a down-pour. But an AIR-IN doesn't look like a raincoat, because it's made to look well when the sun is shining. In appearance an AIR-IN resembles a smart, snappy top-coat—it has the fabric look. Ten feet away it looks like a stylish top coat, because it is made in a variety of fashionable fabrics and in the newest styles.

Before buying a light over-coat, investigate the AIR-IN—the real rain-or-shine coat.

Air-in "The coat with lungs"

Besides its smart appearance, the AIR-IN has two great points of superiority.

The First Big Feature

The special AIR-IN construction makes it a ventilated raincoat. Under the plait in the back of every AIR-IN are a series of vents or openings which open or close as the wearer moves or walks. Inside these vents are thin folds of perforated rubber sheeting which let in the air but keep out the rain. The expulsion of heated air and admission of fresh air through these vents keeps the body temperature even and normal. The wearer of an AIR-IN will never experience any uncomfortable perspiration under the arms or around the neck and shoulders or that feeling of "stuffiness" that some raincoats give.

The Second Big Feature

An AIR-IN is really rain-proof—not just shower proof. Between the outer fabric and the inner lining there is a thin film of rubber which makes an AIR-IN absolutely waterproof. You are sure to keep warm and dry in an AIR-IN because all seams are double sealed with cement and overlaid with tape.

You will get a world of wear from an AIR-IN because it doesn't look like a raincoat. There are several popular models ranging from the newest belted trench coat to staider styles for the more conservative.

Special Introductory Prices ranging from $13.50 to $25.

Ask your dealer now to show you an AIR-IN.

GIRL IN KOEHLER CASE DEMANDS A TRIAL FOR MURDER

Hedda Burgemeister, Who Shot Millionaire, Resents Dismissal of Charge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 6.—Miss Hedda Burgemeister, the young and pretty German trained nurse who, on Nov. 12, 1914, shot and killed Otto Koehler, multimillionaire brewer and banker of San Antonio, wants to come back here and stand trial on the indictment of murder that stands against her in the court. Miss Burgemeister is now in New York City, but her exact address is being withheld from the public for the present.

It is expected that she will have a dramatic story to tell upon the witness stand. The mystery connected with the circumstances leading up to the crime probably will be cleared up.

Koehler, who was one of the best-known business men of this State, was killed in the cottage home of Miss Burgemeister. She immediately surrendered to the police and an indictment for murder was returned a few days later. She remained in jail until a short time before the date set for her trial, when, much to the surprise of the general public, she was released on $7500 bond, which was signed by "James R. Voble and Mrs. Emma Dorschell." The identity of these persons was not known, it seems, to anyone here.

Did Not Seek Bondsmen.

Miss Burgemeister now declares that she had nothing to do with obtaining this bond and that the names signed to it were fictitious.

Shortly after her release from jail, announcement was made that Miss Burgemeister had forfeited her bond and gone to Germany as a war nurse. It now develops that she has been in this country all the time and that it was without any desire on her part that she was spirited away from San Antonio to escape trial for killing Koehler.

The formal motion that her case be reinstated in court and that she be allowed to return to this city and stand trial on the indictment was filed in the District Court here a few days ago by John L. Sheppard, an attorney of New York. In her petition Miss Burgemeister gives among her reasons for wanting to be tried on the charge:

"Because James R. Voble and Mrs. Emma Dorschell, sureties on said bond, nor defendant as principal, have never been cited as scire facias as required by law.

"Because said James R. Voble and Mrs. Emma Dorschell, so defendant charges and alleges, are fictitious persons, and that she did not know them and did not request that they make said bond.

Feared for Her Life.

"That defendant was not present when said case against her was set for trial, because she was threatened and coerced and persuaded to leave the jurisdiction of said court, telling her nothing would be done in the matter, and that through fear from outside sources, of her life, she left, upon advice of her attorney at that time and certain officers of the county, who have since known of her whereabouts.

"That in truth and fact she has violated none of the laws of this State, as evidence upon the trial thereof will show, and that she will and expects to voluntarily return to the jurisdiction of this court from New York City, where she now is, and stand trial on said indictment. That she is not and never has been a fugitive from justice, and only left the jurisdiction of the court in the manner and for the reasons above stated.

"Wherefore, defendant prays that said judgment nisi be set aside, and said cause set down for an immediate trial in order that she may show the world the cause and justification of said killing."

Miss Burgemeister was brought to San Antonio from Germany by the Koehler family and employed as a trained nurse in the family of her multi-millionaire victim. So far as known she had no relatives and few acquaintances in this country.

The Koehler home is one of the most palatial in San Antonio. Koehler formerly resided in St. Louis, where he was connected with brewery interests.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE PAY WHEN CURED FISTULA—FISSURE

This Treatment for Piles—Fistula and Fissure Deferred When the Affliction First Appears Is Dangerous—The Cause of Untold Annoyance, Suffering and Probably an Incurable Condition.

For this reason I warn you through this advertisement, of the great mistake you are making by letting a trouble of this kind run on indefinitely without this treatment. There come under my observation nearly every day very severe cases that should have been attended to years ago. The sufferers put this treatment off thinking they could cure themselves by the use of salves, ointments, suppositories, etc., that they could buy at their drug stores. When all these disappointed them, they applied to me; some with serious cases and others with incurable conditions.

Don't Make the Mistake That Many Have Made.

And spend a great amount of money for treatment that will not cure you. There is positively no treatment that you can buy and apply yourself in your home that will ever cure a genuine case of Piles, Fistula or Fissure. I have made a special study of these diseases—the nature of them—the treatment of them for more than thirty-three years, and with the knowledge that I have acquired through my close study of these troubles, I know that this is absolutely true. Don't wait until your condition reaches a more serious stage before you apply to me. The sooner a trouble of this character is treated after its appearance, the better it is for your general health, and the more time and expense you will save yourself.

Don't Let Distance Stand in Your Way of Treatment That Will Cure You Permanently.

Your health means more to you than the small expense and short time that would be necessary for you to come and take this treatment. I have cured many men and women who have come from great distances, as you will see from the list of cured patients published in my books. Send for my books—read about the success of this treatment, then investigate it if you wish by writing to or calling on anyone who has been treated by me.

Women.

It is just as important for you to heed the warning given above as for the men, if not more so, because of the delicacy of the constitution of woman and because of the great inroads these diseases make on her general health. Write to me or call on me today and let me give you evidence of what this treatment has done for other women.

Bear in mind that no publicity is ever made of women's cases in my newspaper advertisements; in fact of any case whatever if the patient does not wish it.

Free Books.

WOMEN—Send for my free 100-page book published specially for women.

Mr. Geo. Spitz Jr. Cured of Piles Without Loss of Time From Work.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8, 1915.

Dr. M. Ney Smith, St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. Smith—Nearly two years ago you treated me for Piles. I had suffered for three years and tried everything heard of and could not get relief until I went to you. You gave me treatment for a few weeks and I was not detained from my work but a few hours during the time of treatment. Now I am in the best of health and gaining weight every day. Your friend,

Geo Spitz Jr.

2832 Oregon.

Statement from Mr. James Morrison of South Bend, Wash. He was afflicted With Piles Twenty-Five Years.

South Bend, Wash., Oct. 6, 1915.

Dr. M. Ney Smith:

Dear Doctor—I never felt better in my life. I told you that I thought your charge pretty cheap. I would not go back to where I was for quite a bit more than you charged me, so I am satisfied with the treatment.

Wishing you the best of success, Yours respectfully,

James Morrison

Mr. Adolph Moll Cured of Piles and Fistula.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 7, 1917.

Dr. M. Ney Smith, City:

Dear Sir—After treatment for Fistula and Piles by you, in which you so quickly succeeded in curing me, I feel I owe you a fitting testimonial, and if you wish you may refer any person in trouble with same to me.

Before being recommended to you I had been under the care of five different physicians daily during a period of five months, and all I can say is the treatment received from same was torturing and extremely painful and without any encouraging prospects for a complete cure.

I can now say that I never felt better and weighed as much as I do at present. Ten months ago physicians told me they could not benefit me, and that it was impossible to cure me. Refer any person to me doubting the possibility of being cured by you. Respectfully,

Adolph Moll

The New Vesper-Buick Building, Grand and Lindell

Buick

Valve-in-Head
Means Buick

Ready—the New Buick Building and the New Buick Cars!

You are cordially invited to visit the new Buick Building at Grand and Lindell, and to see there the new 1918 Buick models now on display.

In this new building you will recognize an investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars, made necessary by the amazing growth in the number of Buick enthusiasts in St. Louis and the St. Louis territory.

In this new building ample provision has been made for carrying the increased stock of Buick parts and equipment, thus insuring prompt delivery, not only locally, but also in the entire territory supplied thru the St. Louis headquarters. The new building also contains one of the handsomest show rooms ever designed for the display of automobiles, where you are welcome, whether you contemplate the purchase of an automobile or are merely interested in looking about.

Here you will find the new Buick models---the finest achievement of nearly 20 years' experience in motor car manufacture. Eight models comprise the 1918 series--fours and sixes--and in one of them you surely will see the car that satisfies you most completely, in size, type and price.

You can know the beauty of a car by a few minutes' inspection; you can test the comfort of a car by a few minutes' ride, but you cannot know the quality of its mechanism except by actual ownership and use, or by reputation. The Buick reputation is built on the perfection of its mechanism —its pioneer valve-in-head engine is universally conceded to be the most powerful, economical and enduring of any type of motor made.

Prices $795 to $2175 (f. o. b. Factory) depending on size and type

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Ethel K. Strother, who died one year ago, Sept. 27, 1916.

Some time, some day
Our eyes shall see the face we loved so well,
Some time our hands shall press in hers and never say farewell
Her merry laugh we hear no more,
The voice we loved is still,
And all that is left for memory is her grave on a distant hill.

Sadly missed by husband and son,
WALTER H. STROTHER,
SAMUEL H. STROTHER. (c)

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ley:

One sad year and years have passed away,
Sad and sudden was the call for our dear parents,
Loved by all, with little thought that on that day
Our dear parents were called away.
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that they were dead.
Day by day we sadly miss them;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief
That within our hearts concealed,
Shall never be forgotten
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will aways linger
Around the grave where they are laid

Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS AND SON.

In Memoriam.

In sad but loving memory or our dear father, husband, son and brother, Harry L. Budde, who was suddenly called away Oct. 5, 1916.

The memories of the happy past
Come thronging close to me;
I see that face which now is gone,
That face so fatherly.
I see that smile, I hear those words
Which now, alas, no more
Will charm my ears with sweetest sounds.
For death has closed the door;
The Lord doth give, the Lord doth take;
Why weep when I know best.
Come, come to me, for I alone
Can give you truest rest.
'Twas then I knew that if my heart
Remain both real and true,
That I my husband's face
Would see beyond the starry blue.

Sadly missed by your WIFE, SON, MOTHER AND SISTER.

In Memoriam.

For our dear mother loved by all;
With little thought that on that day,
Our dear mother was called away.

Day by day we sadly miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief that's within our hearts concealed.
She shall never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger

SIMPSON'S "Travels in Russia" is not a war book, but one based on travels in 1910 and 1912, when nothing worse than the old regime and the Asiatic cholera prevailed. The farmborn newspaper man, author, formerly of the Illinois State Journal and the New York Musical Courier, is one of the few Anglo-Saxon writers who had the industry to speak and read the difficult but beautiful language of the Russians before traveling among them. Thus he was enabled immediately to go far into less beaten paths of the interior. There were the beautiful Crimea, the Black Sea, Sebastopol, the old Tartar capital, Bachtchiserai; Odessa, Kiev and the Dnieper River; the Volga River, Samara, Kasan and the famous fair at Nijni Novgorod; the Kama River, Perm and the birthplace of Tschaikowsky at Votkinsky Zavod; Moscow, Petrograd, Warsaw, Cracow, Bruenn in Moravia, also Austria and Hungary, the Danube from Vienna to Buda Pesth; finally Finland, with Helsingfors and a wonderful visit with Jean Sibelius at Jarven peae.

Though the book strongly reflects the life of a musician, it is also for laymen, and since issuing in December, 1916, many beautiful letters to the author attest nonmusicians' great enjoyment of the casual humor, the fine tone and the great help toward finding some of the true flavor of Russian everyday life. The book is most closely written, comprises but 136 pages, with more than 50 half tones and 16 musical etchings. It is destined to a classic place as an aid to club workers, and for the intense entertainment of all who love a book brought together with industry and literary conscience.

IF YOU THINK THAT SOME OTHER ADVERTISER of real estate is using too much space, isn't this a pretty good sign that YOU ARE USING TOO LITTLE? It might PAY YOU to let other dealers, or owners, get the impression that YOU are using too much space. A good many successes have been won through a campaign big enough to attract attention—through the Post-Dispatch Real Estate pages.

Big Bargain on Lindell Boulevard Residence

We offer a rare opportunity to purchase for much less than value a handsome, dignified residence, 3846 Lindell bl, opposite the beautiful little triangle park. This house is surrounded by some of the most prominent and aristocratic homes in St. Louis.

Contains 10 cheerful rooms, 2 modern, tiled bathrooms on second floor; hardwood floors; large modern living room in ivory white finish; new, clean decorations; house of best construction; hard granite base and red Colonial brick; practically as good as the day it was built.

No "safer" investment in a home can be made. It can be bought at less than half what it could be duplicated for today, and will make anyone a handsome, comfortable home for the next 10 years, and is in a high-class, convenient neighborhood. One need have no worry of locality changing and values depreciating, for the future of Lindell bl. from Grand to Vandeventer is most promising.

This house is erected on a lot 60x213 feet. Ground alone is now almost worth the price of the entire property. It could today be changed into a display building for business purposes and would command immediate tenants, but it is far too desirable a residence property at this time, and will remain so for many years to come; but it is property with an assured future.

Price extremely low for quick sale. Open for inspection all day Sunday.

Adjoining these lands you will find developed farms producing excellent crops of clover, alfalfa, vetch, wheat, oats, corn, rye, beans, peas, potatoes, buckwheat and all vegetables. Dairying and live stock farming are carried on extensively. These are also among the best apple and cherry lands in the country. The quality and quantity of all these products bear evidence of the high grade of the soil.

THIS IS MORE THAN A LAND SALE. We are colonizers. We do not sell a man land and then go away and leave him. We operate a demonstration farm near our new headquarters at Westwood, where we conduct a farm advising department for the purpose of aiding our customers in their farming operations. You have the advantage of our knowledge and experience gained in developing Michigan lands during the past 20 years.

THIS DISTRICT IS NOT UNSETTLED. There are fine gravel roads leading to nearby good market towns. You do not have far to go to see your neighbors. Telephone lines, rural mail routes and daily newspapers keep you in close touch with large markets.

NOW IS THE TIME for you to get the choicest selection at the lowest price. To act at once means money in your pocket. At the start the lands will be sold at the very low figures—$18 to $30 per acre. We do not sell large tracts to land speculators to hold for higher prices, as we are selling for the purpose of actual settlement. Therefore, the land is sold in tracts of 20, 40, 80, 120 or 160 acres. You can buy for cash or on our minimum easy terms—$2.50 per acre cash down and 25c per acre per month, on tracts of 40 acres or more. On 20-acre tracts, $50 down and $10 per month. Payments can be arranged on a yearly basis. If you cannot go on the excursion of October 16th you had better send in your first payment at once and have a piece reserved for you. We will make the best selections possible in the order the deposits are received and hold the land 30 days for your inspection. If you are not satisfied when you make your inspection, we will exchange for any other piece you may prefer at the same price. Titles guaranteed and abstracts furnished with deeds.

COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF the great future that is in store for the people who take up these lands. Don't wait. Be among the first this time and get one of the choicest selections. While excursions will be run every two weeks until the lands are sold, it is a case of first come, first served. Be sure to be at the head of the line. Take a few days' vacation and join our BIG SPECIAL PULLMAN CAR EXCURSION TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16TH. First-class accommodations for both men and women at our fine new hotel. Round-trip rate, including railroad fare, Pullman car, hotel and two days' automobile trip over the lands, $14.70. Leave Chicago at 11:00 a. m. Tuesday, back early Friday morning.

WRITE TODAY for our new handsome illustrated free booklet, giving full information about these lands and their advantages. Also ask for a reservation on our big land excursion of October 16th.

MORE EGGS OR MONEY BACK

The perfect balance of white and yolk elements in Purina Chicken Chowder when fed with Purina Scratch Feed makes possible an iron-bound guarantee of more eggs or money back. Grain feeds make too many yolks, which cannot be laid, so are absorbed by the hen and form fat which cuts down egg production. Wheat, corn, oats, barley, and kafir contain (above bodily maintenance) elements for an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Whereas the perfect balance:

	Yolks	Whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05	282.55
Purina Scratch Feed	247.49	142.11
Combined Ration	429.54	424.66

Note the perfect balance and the large quantity of white and yolk elements supplied.

Use less feed

99 out of 100 hens eat too much grain which cuts down egg production. Feed the perfect balance—100 lbs. of Purina Scratch Feed to each 100 lbs. of Purina Chicken Chowder and you will actually use less feed and get more eggs. If hens do not lay more eggs when fed Purina Chicken Chowder as directed with Purina Scratch Feed than when fed any other ration, the money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded. You take no risk. Sold only in Checkerboard bags by the leading dealers. If your dealer cannot supply you send us his name.

BIG LAND OPENING

HERE'S THE CHANCE to get the pick of 40,000 acres of the best new lands in the United States. We are opening up a tract of cut-over lands situated in Antrim, Kalkaska and Charlevoix Counties, Michigan, which have produced wonderful forests of maple, beech, elm, basswood, oak and ash. Adjoining these lands you will find developed farms producing excellent crops of clover, alfalfa, vetch, wheat, oats, corn, rye, beans, peas, potatoes, buckwheat and all vegetables. Dairying and live stock farming are carried on extensively. These are also among the best apple and cherry lands in the country. The quality and quantity of all these products bear evidence of the high grade of the soil.

THIS IS MORE THAN A LAND SALE. We are colonizers. We do not sell a man land and then go away and leave him. We operate a demonstration farm near our new headquarters at Westwood, where we conduct a farm advising department for the purpose of aiding our customers in their farming operations. You have the advantage of our knowledge and experience gained in developing Michigan lands during the past 20 years.

THIS DISTRICT IS NOT UNSETTLED. There are fine gravel roads leading to nearby good market towns. You do not have far to go to see your neighbors. Telephone lines, rural mail routes and daily newspapers keep you in close touch with large markets.

NOW IS THE TIME for you to get the choicest selection at the lowest price. To act at once means money in your pocket. At the start the lands will be sold at the very low figures—$13 to $30 per acre. We do not sell large tracts to land speculators to hold for higher prices, as we are selling for the purpose of actual settlement. Therefore, the land is sold in tracts of 20, 40, 80, 120 or 160 acres. You can buy for cash or on our minimum easy terms—$2.50 per acre cash down and 25c per acre per month, on tracts of 40 acres or more. On 20-acre tracts, $50 down and $10 per month. Payments can be arranged on a yearly basis. If you cannot go on the excursion of October 16th you had better send in your first payment at once and have a piece reserved for you. We will make the best selections possible in the order the deposits are received and hold the land 30 days for your inspection. If you are not satisfied when you make your inspection, we will exchange for any other piece you may prefer at the same price. Titles guaranteed and abstracts furnished with deeds.

COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF the great future that is in store for the people who take up these lands. Don't wait. Be among the first this time and get one of the choicest selections. While excursions will be run every two weeks until the lands are sold, it is a case of first come, first served. Be sure to be at the head of the line. Take a few days' vacation and join our BIG SPECIAL PULLMAN CAR EXCURSION TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16TH. First-class accommodations for both men and women at our fine new hotel. Round-trip rate, including railroad fare, Pullman car, hotel and two days' automobile trip over the lands, $14.70. Leave Chicago at 11:00 a. m. Tuesday, back early Friday morning.

WRITE TODAY for our new handsome illustrated free booklet, giving full information about these lands and their advantages. Also ask for a reservation on our big land excursion of October 16th.

MORE EGGS OR MONEY BACK

The perfect balance of white and yolk elements in Purina Chicken Chowder when fed with Purina Scratch Feed makes possible an iron-bound guarantee of more eggs or money back. Grain feeds make too many yolks, which cannot be laid, so are absorbed by the hen and form fat which cuts down egg production. Wheat, corn, oats, barley, and kafir contain (above bodily maintenance) elements for an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Whereas the perfect balance:

	Yolks	Whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05	282.55
Purina Scratch Feed	247.49	142.11
Combined Ration	429.54	424.66

Note the perfect balance and the large quantity of white and yolk elements in the combined ration.

Use less feed

99 out of 100 hens eat too much grain which cuts down egg production. Feed the perfect balance—100 lbs. of Purina Scratch Feed to each 100 lbs. of Purina Chicken Chowder and you will actually use less feed and get more eggs. If hens do not lay more eggs when fed Purina Chicken Chowder and Purina Scratch Feed than when fed any other ration, the money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded. You take no risk.

Sold only in Checkerboard bags by the leading dealers. If your dealer cannot supply you send us his name.

THE TRUE STORY OF THE "TANKS"

∴ Born of a Novelist's Dream and a Yankee's Ingenuity ∴

Col. E. D. Swinton, father of the land battleship, now in this country, tells how an H. G. Wells romance supplied the idea and Benjamin Holt of Peoria, Ill., furnished trackage system without which new military engine could not exist — Origin of the nickname "Tank" and reasons why crews divide metal monsters into "male" and "female" :: ::

COL E. D. SWINTON, C. B., D. S. O., of the Royal Engineers, world-famous as the inventor of the Tank—which is the only novelty in the way of military machines thus far created by the war—is paying his first visit to this country, and has taken advantage of the occasion to confess that the mobile fortress owes its existence first to the invention of the caterpillar system of trackage by an American, and, second, to a forecast of "land battleships" in a novel by H G. Wells, whose gift for exploiting the scientific in fiction is well established.

The American referred to is Benjamin Holt of Peoria, Ill., and Col. Swinton is generous enough to say that "without the Holt tractor there would very probably not have been any tanks." The Briton also offers a new and no doubt the true explanation as to how his steel dinosaurs gained the nickname of "Tanks," and reveals the fact that these monsters have two sexes, being known as "male" and "female."

"Some tanks are armed with small guns firing shells," he explains, "and are used especially against machine-gun nests. They are popularly known in the tank unit as 'males.' Other tanks carry machine guns and are intended primarily for use against enemy infantry. They are the 'females.' But there is no difference in the construction of the two kinds of tanks."

The name tank, he continued, was originally a bit of camouflage, designed to conceal the real purpose of the new engines while they were building and when it was necessary to keep the secret from the Germans until the new machines were launched against them on the Somme. They were variously described as snow plows for use on the Russian front and as mobile water tanks to accompany the British armies in Palestine, Egypt and Mesopotamia. Both views were encouraged by the authorities, and the name tank, suggested by the latter story, was employed in telegrams and verbal descriptions. After the machines were exhibited in their true character, however, the incongruous name clung to them, much to the surprise of their sponsors, and tanks they became and remain in the vocabularies of the Tommy, the poilu and the civilian. And now the American Congress has appropriated money to build tanks for our overseas expeditions.

Col. Swinton began to think about "land battleships" as a means of offsetting machine-gun fire long before the outbreak of the present war. In the first decade of this century plans were worked out in England for a model tank, which was almost identical with the one in use today, save that a different traction system was experimented with. This proved the weak spot in the idea, and the plan was laid aside. It was not until July, 1914, a few days before Austria sent its ultimatum to Servia, that Col. Swinton quite accidentally first heard of the Holt tractor, which, with its caterpillar tread, solved the problem of traversing rugged and uneven ground.

"Let me make a remark which should be of interest to you Americans," said Col. Swinton to a reviewer in Washington the other day. "The principal German weapon of slaughter was and is the Maxim gun, invented by Hiram Maxim, an American by birth, although he later became a British subject. And the weapon we Britishers devised to counteract the murderous efficiency of your American Maxim gun was based on the ingenious invention of another American, the Holt tractor. I don't mean to say that the Holt tractor is the tank, by any manner of means. It is not. But without the Holt tractor there would probably be no tanks."

With his admiration for Yankee inventiveness, Col. Swinton has had a lifelong curiosity as to American ways and customs, which he now has an opportunity to satisfy for the first time. He has been detailed from his post with the British War Cabinet in London to act as assistant to Lord Reading in the mission which the English Chief Justice has undertaken to tighten the bonds of efficiency uniting the war war programs of the United States and her allies.

Returning to the story of the tank's development, Col. Swinton said that reports reaching him concerning the Holt tractor just before the war broke out revived his interest in the project, which had been abandoned for lack of a proper traction system. "The first plan came to nothing," explained he, "because we weren't ready for it then."

"When I went to France with Lord French in August, 1914," he went on, "and saw what modern warfare was like, I became convinced that an armored car independent of roads and capable of traversing any terealn to attack fortified positions was a necessity for the offensive. When we, with the French, started our offensive after the battle of the Marne, we smashed ourselves against the German machine guns. The Germans had foreseen the enormous destructiveness of machine guns and had amassed thousands of these weapons in preparation for the war. Every subsequent battle on the Western front showed the need for developing some weapon which would offset the deadly mechanical certainty of the machine gun in the trenches.

"By October, 1914, I had a fair conception of the kind of engine which might be relied upon to neutralize the growing German power in machine guns, combined with the most elaborate fortifications ever built on a grand scale. The Germans' ascendancy of fire had enabled them to dig themselves in with their usual thoroughness. In October I returned to England to try to interest the authorities at the War Office in my idea. I had my troubles, but not as many as I might have had, because other men of their own accord were working along the same line."

The speaker here. with the typical modesty of the British soldier, disclaimed the notion that all the honors of the tank's parentage belong to himself. The fact was, he said, that while he was making his experiments for the War Office the British Admiralty was also being urged to engage in experiments for evolving a similar machine: The fact remains, however, that Col. Swinton won the principal credit for persuading the authorities that the land forts were practicable, that he was the first Captain of tanks in the British army, that he organized the first tank unit in France, and that he launched the formidable brood in their initial victory on the Somme during September, 1916.

"You must get this very straight," he said, nevertheless. "Whatever credit there may be for inventing the tanks belongs not to any one man, but to many men. A proof of the plurality of inventors is that while one group of us was endeavoring to interest the War Office in the idea, another group of men, entirely ignorant of what we were doing, was trying to get the Admiralty to take up a similar line of experimentation. And it is no more than fair to point out that the first money provided for experimentation with landships came from Winston Spencer Churchill, then First Lord of the Admiralty. But he was only one of a number of men who played parts in the development of the finished engine. For example, there are two men in particular who worked out the mechanical problems. I wish I could give their names, but I cannot.

"After all, the tank is merely an elaboration of military devices as old as the history of military engineering. Its ancestors were the armored automobile, the belfry or siege tower on wheels of the Middle Ages, and the testudo of the Romans.

"The peculiar original feature of the tanks, upon which their efficiency most depends, is the construction of their trackage, which, as I have said, was the invention of an American. It is the feature that enables them not only to negotiate rough and broken ground, but to surmount obstacles and knock down trees and houses."

Col. Swinton is of the opinion that it is at present not feasible to build tanks any larger than those in use. Larger machines, he said, would have to be dismantled for transport by rail, and would also present difficulties to travel by road. Moreover, even with the present dimensions, the wear and tear on the tractor part is enormous, so that they do not last very long. The tank, he said, despite its size and strength, is a rather delicate contrivance.

"So far," declared Col. Swinton, "no positive means of combating the tanks has been developed."

The Germans, he said, were paralyzed with fear when the great beasts of metal came clambering over the trenches, knocking down every obstacle and spitting flame, like huge armored beasts of the prehistoric past. They got over their terror in time, but still take to their heels when the tank attacks.

Col. Swinton was well known by repute in military circles of this country long before he invented the tank. About 10 years ago, after he had served in the Boer War, he published an unusual series of short stories in a leading English magazine, and one of them, "The Defense of Duffer's Drift," is used as a textbook at West Point. The entire collection, published under the title, "The Green Curve," is to be found in the library of almost every military student.

He was the "Official Eye-witness" during the early part of the war, whose periodic descriptions of the fighting in France and Flanders attracted wide attention for their concise clarity and vigorous descriptive power.

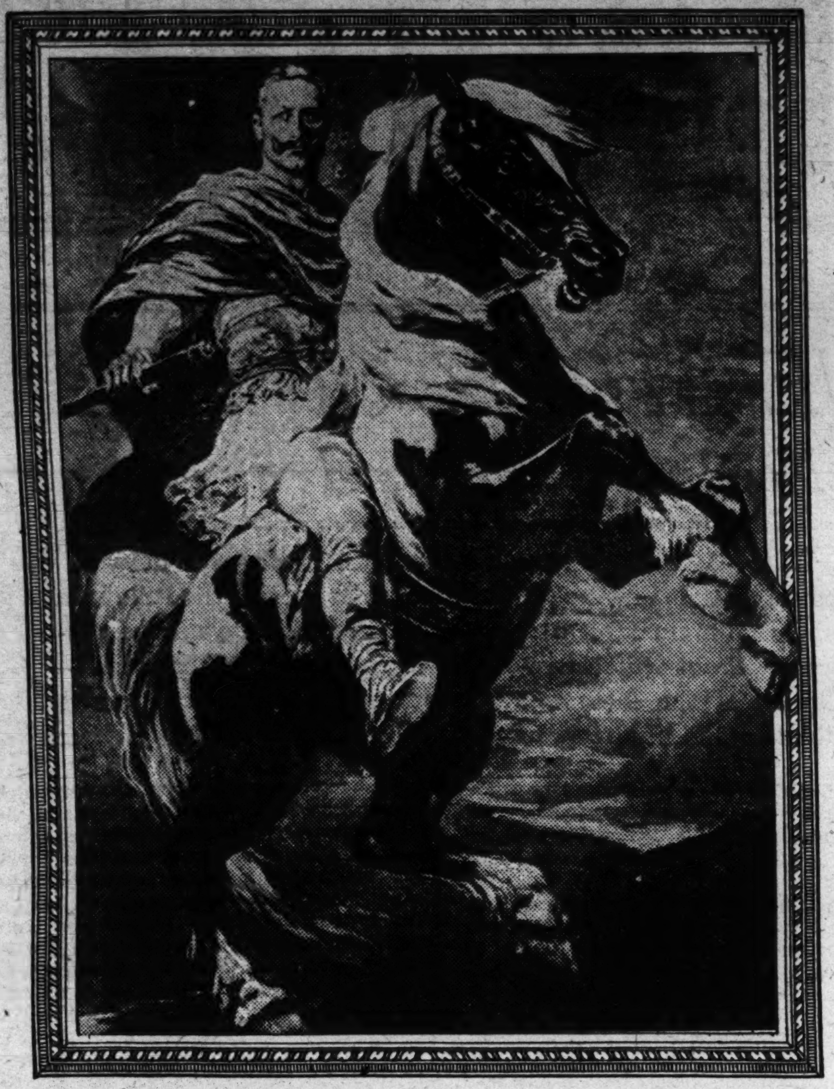
More Extracts From Diary of a Lady-in-Waiting, Revealing the Real Kaiser

He is not an unkind husband, though he has a knack of forgetting the Kaiserin's very existence when he thinks he is better off alone—Paintings, cartoons, lectures and sermons credited to him usually the work of other men — Proud of his prowess as a hunter and will interrupt affairs of state on which the fate of governments hinge to display his trophies — His court is penurious though he has one of the largest incomes of any royal house



A striking illustration of the Kaiser's egomania. Portrait depicting him as a Roman Emperor, painted at his order by Prof. Eberlein.

FOLLOWING are more extracts from the diary of Countess von Eppinghoven, long Lady-in-Waiting to the German Empress, in which she reveals the Kaiser as he really is and describes in detail the life at the German court. A portion of her memoirs, which have been published by Henry Fisher in "Private Lives of Kaiser Wilhelm II and His Consort," appeared in Last Sunday's Post-Dispatch Magazine.

THAT in the feverish hunt after amusements and excitement, family life at the German court, of which the contemporary press makes so much, is a delusion, goes without saying, though to accuse William of neglecting his frau, in the ordinary sense of the word, would, perhaps, be unjust, for he keeps up appearances in a general way, and I have reason to believe that he loves his wife. Yet he has a knack of forgetting her very existence whenever he thinks he is better off alone, which, I know, is extremely painful to Auguste Victoria.

And the worst of it is, this fixed idea of complete self-sufficiency grows stronger and stronger with him as his egotism gradually develops into egomania. With all that, however, he is not an unkind husband, albeit his actions often imply great lack of conjugal gentleness and generosity. It is merely his boundless love of self that claims ascendancy in his every action. * * * As in those awful days of San Remo, when he claimed, as representative of the old Emperor, precedence over his afflicted mother on the way to the village church, he uses his present supreme position as a club to intimidate all directly depending upon him into a state of quiet, but utter, submissiveness. And this has been going on so long that the Empress, on her part, has become used to it, and would think it queer, indeed, if this state of affairs were changed.

"Aegir" the Kaiser's opera, affords an interesting illustration of William's mode of work. He has talents, undoubtedly, but they are creative only in giving work to others, the product passing for his own in the end. As Herren von Moltke and Philip Eulenburg are the real authors of his "Song to Aegir," so Prof. Knackfuss, in Cassel, composes his cartoons, though being credited only with their technical execution. The late Court Chaplain, Frommel, used to write the imperial sermons delivered with so much eclat on the deck of the yacht Hohenzollern; officers of the military household prepare William's lectures and the artist Karl Saltzman paints his landscapes and marine views. * * *

Both majesties, being indifferent talkers, after-dinner entertainments at the Prussian court are not of the very lofty sort; indeed, I am not stretching the point when I say the ennui begins to hang heavily upon all present in the gilded salons as soon as the coffee is brought in, unless the Kaiser begins to lecture or chooses to exhaust his stock of humorous remarks; in that event it becomes everyone's duty to appear at least interested and edified.

To diversify things a bit, we frequently arrange "rebus competitions," a form of amusement in which the simple-minded Empress takes great delight, while the Kaiser, who not only tolerates the "twin sister of charade" in his own house, but has introduced the game into the army officers' casinos, takes active part in the sport, either for the purpose of drawing attention to some smart idea that has entered his head or merely for the sake of hearing himself talk.

"Moderation, the virtue of which Princes stand in such urgent need, is never found in passionate hunters, who experience an irresistible impulse to pursue the game and a cruel and bloody delight in killing." This passage in her majesty's copy of Frederick the Great's "Antimachiavelli," which the young Princes are allowed to handle freely, is hidden, the margin of the page containing it being pasted to the next, as if by accident. The boys shall not learn of the judgment passed by an ancestor on this father's terrible frenzy for blood; but this ostrich policy, justified in the children's case, cannot obscure the fact that the Kaiser grows fonder of gory spectacles to which imperial hunts have degenerated from year to year. * * * And, not satisfied with indulging in this passion in the field, the Kaiser must needs surround himself at all times with trophies of his skill as a death-giver; the most prominent object in his study is a long table, covered with green cloth, containing the antlers of the roebucks killed by him in the course of the year, while under the table, and all around on the floor, are the bigger antlers of slain deer. Ministers of State delivering messages upon which hinge the fate of Government measures, peace or war, or perchance the life of some doomed man appealing to the King's grace must be prepared to be interrupted by a "Look at this ten" (or fourteen) "ender" (meaning antlers with the given number of branches), "the prime stag among a battalion I mowed down at Rominton."

Speaking of William's associates, "It is a pity," said Empress Frederick after Count Waldersee's retirement from Berlin (January, 1891), "that my son will have none but lightweights about him; all men of acumen are pushed aside. Still, I suppose I must not grumble as long as Count Herbert is kept out." Her majesty, you must know, regarded Herbert Bismarck as the man who instilled in the Emperor the liking for persons of his—Herbert's—stamp—flatterers, shallow and insolent, defamers of womankind, taphouse jesters and buffoons. "Scratch either of the Kidelen-Eulenburg-Huelsen crew and the pickle-herring will appear," she was wont to say, and years ago nothing gave her greater satisfaction than the abrupt termination of Prince William's friendship with the Austrian Crown Prince, whom she abhorred as any pure woman might abhor a heartless roue.

His majesty appears to be woefully deficient in judging human nature. While there may be method in the selection of mental nonentities for his suite, his attachment to men of doubtful morals and undoubted lack of penetration in general is explainable only on the grounds of his own superficiality. As I never saw the Kaiser, of whose domestic virtues we hear so much, display any interest in his children, save that of examining their clothes as to fit and quality, so he chooses his friends by outside appearance—a great name and high position being the sole requisites.

William is the only man of royal blood who parades a liking for the profligate Otto of Austria, the second son of Archduke Karl Ludwig, whom the nations of the dual monarchy, fearful of his possible accession to the throne, include in their daily prayers under the head of "Deliver us from all evil." And Count Hoenbroich, the ex-Jesuit, had no sooner started to fill the penny Jew press with denunciations of his former creed, when the Kaiser called him to court and introduced him to her majesty, not as a freak, but as somebody akin to a second Luther. * * * And the third on the list—the Right Honorable Count Visoni, Italian Charge d'Affaires during the absence from Berlin of the late Count Lanza, the Ambassador!

The whole court was familiar with this gentleman's life, a mere staggering between alcove and bottle. Yet the Emperor saw in him only "the perfect cavalier," "the schneidiger man of the world"—a favorite expression with his majesty—"the distinguished scion of a historic family." And so this associate of demi-reps and gamesters became the petted darling of the Schloss and Neues Palais; his mots were quoted admiringly in her majesty's boudoir and his liveries and horses were discussed in the salons and ante-chambers as well, until, finally—it was, I believe, in March, 1894—a dispatch from Rome put an end to this adulation in exactly the manner that had been prophesied. The Count and Royal Minister had absconded after defrauding the Governors of the Jockey Club of 10,000 francs in cash and 15,000 francs at the tables.

Americans the Best Paid Soldiers

AMERICAN troops in France and England have achieved in those countries the reputation of being prodigal spenders. The reason for this can be found, perhaps in part, in a comparison of the pay which the ordinary first-class American private receives with that which is drawn by the soldiers of the other nations engaged in the great war. The figures show that Pershing's men are plutocrats alongside of their brothers in arms and their friends, the enemy, and in some instances even the pay of foreign officers suffers when compared to that of the American private soldier.

Quarters, rations and clothing are furnished in all the armies of the world. The American first-class private, exclusive of "extras" and allowance of various kinds, receives, for foreign service, $36.60 a month. This is $41 a year more than is received by a Russian Colonel and $64 a year more than a German Lieutenant for the first three years. It is $31 a year more than a First Lieutenant of the Austrian army and $19 a year more than an Italian Junior Lieutenant. The second-class American private fares only slightly worse, receiving $33 a month in foreign service.

The French soldier draws a sum which would barely keep an American private in cigarettes. He receives $1.50 every month, but this is princely in comparison to the 32 cents a month, or 1 cent a day which the Russian Government allows its fighting men. Austria does a little better by her men—73 cents a month, or 2 1-2 cents a day.

Of all European nations, England is most generous toward her private soldier, allowing him $7.50 a month at home and an additional income when stationed on foreign soil. Italy ranks second with a minimum monthly wage of $5.83 and Spain is next with $4.42. Germany's great military machine was built up with a wage scale beginning at $1.65 a month—less than 6 cents a day. Japan's soldiers at home fare a little worse than the Austrians, receiving $8 a year. Turkey is a little more indulgent, granting $11 a year.

The pay of an American Second Lieutenant is $100 a year greater than that of a Lieutenant-Colonel in the British army, $73 more than that of a French Colonel, $62 more than that of a German Lieutenant-Colonel.

Uncle Sam's Big War Medical Bill

UNCLE SAM'S medical bill as a result of the war will be tremendous. Surgeon-General William C. Gorgas estimates it will not be less than $65,000,000 a year for each million men in the military establishment, and Uncle Sam probably will be fortunate indeed if he is not called upon a year hence to make an initial payment of $100,000,000. This latter figure is believed by many medical officials to be more accurate. The current medical upkeep will be approximately $25 for each man, about $25,000,000 for a million men during the first year. Then surgical dressings will cost $9,750,000; fabrics and textiles, $4,450,000; medicines, antiseptics and disinfectants, $3,400,000; motor ambulances, $6,840,000; an allowance for 20 per cent wastage, including losses at sea, $16,671,000; medical and surgical instruments and appliances, $880,000; and scores of other items, which total millions of dollars.

Gas masks, trench sprayers and oxygen apparatus will cost $23,000,000. Secretary of War Baker has directed the medical department to supply every man in the army with two masks and to keep on hand a 10 per cent reserve supply. Every man on the firing line will have two masks, and the same is true of men held in reserve and men in cantonments and camps in this country. The soldiers have to be practiced in using the masks, and, while they are not worn all the time, they have to be on hand. The men are trained to put the masks in place in six seconds. A great deal of drill is required in the time allowed. It is estimated that each mask will cost at least $5 or $10 a man.

The department has adopted a standard type of motor ambulance. Each ambulance will cost in the neighborhood of $2000. It will have a three-quarter-ton truck chassis with a special body devised by a board of medical officers. This standard ambulance, it is believed, will prove to be a far more satisfactory vehicle than the light ambulances used previously, which cost in the vicinity of $700 or $800. Gen. Gorgas is authority for the statement that the light ambulances went all to pieces soon after being sent to France. The standard machine decided upon was used in Mexico and on the border, and was found to be quite satisfactory.

both the following days the bunkers were filled from the "Farn" and, on 1 November, we filled up again. Then the "Farn" was left behind, while the "Rio Negro" and the "Indrani" followed us.

2-3 NOVEMBER. In addition to the jokes on the English and French colonies the Captain had decided to institute proceedings to create uneasiness in the steamer lanes between the English Barbadoes and Trinidad.

The Island Barbados was chosen as the first objective. We knew that several large liners which we intended to sink would be in this harbor. Nothing would be more effective than such an undertaking to hurt the cause of England in America and the West Indies. We were all anxiously awaiting the events of the next few days. Never before was the morale on board better than during this period. The crew had not been told as yet of our plans. But to get an idea of what the men thought let me relate the following story: My boy (servant) had been seriously ill with malaria, which he had contracted in Mexico. He had just recovered from a severe attack and was released from the sick-bay. When I asked him how he felt he did not answer my question but said: "The sinking of steamers is very nice, but time is hanging heavy on our hands. It is high time that our guns got a chance to do something. That would be some diversion."

That is what all our men on the "KARLSRUHE" thought.

This good humor called forth on 4 November a small feast in our mess, although there might have been another reason in that our cook had, after a long wait, finally received fresh butter, frozen poultry and other costly food supplies from the "Vandyck." The first officer directed that red wine be served. Our messroom was decorated with potted plants and flowers taken from the salon of the "Vandyck."

4 NOVEMBER. About 6:30 p. m. on 4 November H. M. S. "KARLSRUHE" was in latitude 10—07 North, longitude 55—25 West.

It was in the hour just preceding the short tropical twilight. The Captain and the watch officer, Lt. (J. G.) Freiherr von Althaus, and the helmsman and signalman of the watch, were on the navigating bridge. The men had finished supper and were gathering as usual on the fo'csle to listen to the ship's band that had assembled under the bridge. The commissioned officers and the warrant officers were still at dinner in their messrooms in the after part of the ship, where are also the deck, engine room and fireroom watches, boys, stewards and cooks.

The steamers "Indrani" and "Rio Negro" were following the cruiser at a short distance.

The first officer had just risen from the table and some of the officers had decided to leave the after end of the ship and go up on the cooler bridge, when we felt a heavy shock, followed by a dull cracking and gnashing as the ship shuddered. The electric lights went out.

The ship immediately took a heavy list to port.

Somebody in the officers' mess yelled, "Torpedo hit!" This idea was mechanically conveyed from one to the other. We hurried to our battle stations.

Before I could reach the poop, my station as second gunnery officer at general quarters, I heard the call, "Close water-tight doors!" and the customary five short strokes of the ship's bell.

Ahead of our bow I saw the bottom of a floating ship which sank immediately. I thought it was some strange craft with which we had had a collision, even though this seemed impossible to have occurred. Actually, however, it was the forward half of our own ship.

A powerful explosion had blown H. M. S. "KARLSRUHE" into halves.

The place where the explosion occurred and the immediate neighborhood, which included that part of the ship from the bow to the forward smokepipe, also the navigating bridge and foremast, must have been blown to atoms. No one saw a piece of it.

The forward part, with the majority of the crew, sank after a very few minutes. Only a few men, most of whom had been thrown a good distance away, could be saved by the after end of the ship and their boats. All of them were more or less seriously burned or mutilated.

The after end, in which all the water-tight doors had been closed, remained afloat for about 20 minutes. This fact, a glowing testimonial to our ship's material and the German construction, was the main reason we few remaining ones were saved.

The two accompanying steamers saw the catastrophe, saw a column of flame 100 meters high, and hastened to do all they could; they came up at high speed and lowered all their boats.

Our own boats were quickly lowered and assisted the steamers' boats in searching the unfortunate spot for any survivors.

After the first officer and the engineer officer on watch had inspected all the lower compartments in the ship and had made sure that there were no more aboard, the last boat, full of officers, left the ship. We had hardly gone 100 meters from the ship when her stern lifted straight up out of the water, so that we could distinctly see her propellers and rudder. The boats were still hunting for swimmers, but when the rest of H. M. S. "KARLSRUHE" shot suddenly down to the depths, all the men in the boats gave three 'hurra's!" to her and to our comrades.

Then all was quiet in our little circle. A heavy load of pain and sorrow lay upon us, and before us were the questions: How? and Why?

These questions will never be answered.

The catastrophe had befallen us so suddenly and with such force that we had no time to make clear estimates of the reasons or results. By and by, when all the survivors were assembled on the "Rio Negro" and it was seen how many of our comrades were missing, and when it was settled beyond doubt that our Captain, that excellent man, honored and respected by all, had drowned with our good ship, then we all began to understand the extent of our losses and how hard this accident had hit us.

Each man on board ship had made up his mind that the end of our war cruise would come some day and all hoped that it would be in battle with the hated enemy, proving that German patriotism and devotion are not empty words. How else could the end come?

THE RETURN HOME.

The search for survivors of the sunken vessel was given up as useless on the following morning.

What should be done next?

The answer was not hard to find. There were two courses of action open to us: We had to make an effort to place ourselves and our men at the disposal of our fatherland as soon as possible. Also we had to conceal the loss of the cruiser as long as possible. The English could not possibly know it, Lord be praised! The excellent work of H. M. S. "KARLSRUHE" had severely damaged the English trade on the North Atlantic Ocean, causing no end of uneasiness. Until the arrival of our cruiser squadron, which was very indefinite as yet, there was no other ship available to replace our cruiser. The sinking of H. M. S. "KARLSRUHE" would relieve the pressure on the English and then all the results of our work would have gone to naught at one stroke. But if we were able to keep her loss a secret, the uneasiness in English commercial circles would continue for another month. A considerable number of English warships were detailed to search for us, which was another advantage for our cruiser squadron.

The idea of trying to join the cruiser squadron was dropped. We were soon unanimously of the opinion that we should attempt to break through to Germany.

There were several ways of carrying out this plan. We might proceed to some neutral American harbor and then each individual could have undertaken to make the dangerous trip back home. Or we might proceed on our own steamers direct to Europe and attempt to go straight to Germany.

After a short argument we decided on the latter course. Getting back via America was very doubtful. We did not have the necessary clothes. Our outer garments were so noticeable (uniforms) that we would most certainly have been recognized and interned. We also had read in the newspapers that the English did not hesitate to take German citizens and people of questionable citizenship off the neutral ships. Above all, however, the minute we arrived in a neutral harbor the secrecy of the "KARLSRUHE'S" loss would be broken. Even if our hundred-odd men were able to keep absolute silence—past experience had taught us how difficult this really is!—we still could not expect that much of the Chinese on the "Indrani." This last consideration decided the question.

We could now divide our crew between the two steamers. If one were captured we still had a chance for the other half to get through. Should the English capture both steamers—we were absolutely helpless!—that would have been fine business for them; and we could not begrudge them that chance.

So we decided to sink the "Indrani" as soon as we had thoroughly filled up for the long cruise. Then the "Rio Negro" steamed northward.

While under way we picked up a variety of reports, good and bad. Our cruiser squadron had won a victory over the English at Coronel, the efficient "EMDEN" had met her end.

As we steamed into the northern latitudes the scarcity of clothes was felt. Of course, the steamer crew helped us out most willingly as far as possible. But we were too many for them.

Our seamen made clothes for themselves out of old canvas and woolen coverlets. The results, however, were more apparent than real. The men looked picturesque, some like characters in fables, some like comedians, but all froze just the same.

We had decided to head for Norway and wait there until we picked up some reports and news (for instance concerning the English watch in the North Sea and the Skagerrak) and then act accordingly, i. e., whether the individuals would proceed home overland via Norway and Sweden, or whether we would take our steamers on in to Kiel or Wilhelmshafen.

Not having received any important reports and without having sighted a single enemy vessel, we arrived at a Norwegian harbor in the forenoon of 29 November, after a journey of practically four weeks.

We had broken through! The English blockade lines were behind us. Were the efficient Britishers asleep? Or was it the bad weather and the high seas which we experienced that were too much for their famous seamanship? All our dreams of the barbed wire fences around English prison camps had vanished.

I chose to continue my journey overland with Ens. of Reserves Eyring. There was always danger that the steamer "Rio Negro" might be taken on the last leg of her cruise. It was not possible for our men to make the overland trip in their clothes without exciting suspicion, so they had to be taken along on the steamer.

I wanted to make sure that I would safely reach home with the most important reports, especially my war diary, which, except for a few official papers that I was able to rescue on 4 November, constituted the only record of the cruise and fate of the "KARLSRUHE." On 4 December, a beautiful, sunshiny, winter day, the two of us arrived on German territory at Sasznitz and were arrested by the first German landsturmer (army reserve) that we met.

A few days later we heard the good news that the "Rio Negro" had dropped her anchor in German territory. (Copyright, 1917, by James W. Conroy.)

THE END.

The Last of the Frontier Scouts

an undertaking of the most hazardous kind. When he heard of the General's dilemma, Capt. von Berg went to him and volunteered for the work.

"I know Lo, yah!" he said. "I will go to him."

Thus began the career which continued for many years, the work taking him farther and farther west, until the last of the red men yielded to superior force and were safely placed on reservations. One of the most implacable enemies Capt. von Berg had in those days was Little Wolf, one of Sitting Bull's leaders. But as time passed Little Wolf became a mild-mannered performer with a Wild West organization and as such chanced to meet his old nemesis. They became fast friends and posed together for a picture.

In the early fall of 1861 Sioux Indians under Chief Little Crow were having their usual hunt on the Upper Missouri River, in Northwestern Iowa. Capt. von Berg was their "guest," which meant that while the Indians were treating him with kindness, he was virtually their prisoner.

At the time of the annual hunt every tribe was the enemy of every other tribe, and it was not unusual, when hostile hunting parties met, for them to abandon the chase and engage in battle.

Three returning Sioux Scouts reported a Pawnee hunting party on ahead and the Sioux decided upon a surprise attack at once. Von Berg was warned, on pain of death, not to attempt to escape during the battle, and some of the Indians, forming a semi-circle, escorted him and his companion, old Tusk-a-hoo, a medicine man, to a little hill a quarter of a mile from where it was expected to give battle to the Pawnees.

Down the hill the rest of Little Crow's men then charged and presently the battle was on. Soon the fighters pressed nearer and nearer to where were stationed Von Berg and his guards. Men were falling on every side and wounded horses were plunging madly in clouds of dust. Trusting that his "friends" would forget him in the stress of the moment, and lying flat on the neck of his faithful "Pawnee Billy," Von Berg charged through the flying arrows into the valley half a mile below. Here he paused to watch the fight to a finish and at dusk was joined by a handful of wounded Pawnees, all that were left of the hunting party. Little Crow and his victorious warriors had gone on their way down the far side of the hill.

Capt. von Berg was scout for Col. T. Gilbert, in command of the Twenty-seventh Regiment, Iowa Infantry, which in 1862 was occupying Fort Snelling, Minn. All troops that could be spared had been sent south and the Indians became more bold and hostile. Finally, a general uprising of the Sioux occurred. At Sioux City, Io., the Indians killed a few settlers, then moved northwest along the Little Sioux River, leaving a trail of blood and ashes. Crossing into Minnesota, they descended upon New Ulm, a German settlement, and next upon Mankato, where they exterminated the population of about 400. The Governor of Minnesota asked for help from the Government.

Capt. von Berg was sent by Gen. Sibley to find the marauders. He encountered them in the heart of a pine forest at Mill Lake, and after evading capture, returned to lead the troops to the Indians. In the battle which followed and in which Von Berg participated, Little Crow, called by Maj. William A. Bell "the biggest little redskin devil that ever wore a war bonnet and a Government blanket," and his 600 warriors, squaws and pappooses were taken prisoners. Von Berg saw the ring leaders of the uprising tried by court martial and 34 of them hanged before the eyes of the other Indians.

Von Berg was born in the Grand Duchy of Baden, in a castle on the Rhine, Oct. 18, 1835. His father was chief forester to the Grand Duke, and was, in addition, a student, scientist, and man of influence and affairs. On his carriage appeared the Von Berg arms, three mountains in a blue field, and underneath the chamois. His father and grandfather before him had been chief forester.

When Carlos was old enough he was sent to Karlsruhe to school, where he received four years' military training and studied the sciences, art and forestry, later going to the great Heidelberg University.

Bismarck had not yet made of the different principalities one great empire. A revolution broke out. Von Berg the elder was accused of helping a revolutionist. He was exiled and died in Switzerland. His wife, broken-hearted, soon followed him to the grave. The family property was confiscated and the family name dishonored.

Young Carl, almost penniless, orphaned and an outcast in his native land, did what many before and since have done, fled to America. Although he spoke no English, the youth found no difficulty in obtaining a place with a New York family, where his only duty was to serve as German tutor to a young son. He was made a member of the family and allowed to study English. But the call of the out-of-doors proved too strong for him and after a few years with his benefactors he joined the fur traders at Lake Superior.

Neither fancy salaries offered by Wild West shows nor generous sums held out by movie concerns have tempted him from his retirement. He is content to spend his remaining days in quiet and peace.

for the most magnificent royal court of the day! Most of them are munching black bread, scantily spread with lard, while from tin bottles they partake of long drafts of cold chicory masquerading under the name of coffee. * * * And these women, wearing washed-out calico dresses all the year round and a 24x40-inch shawl barely covering their heads and breasts in winter, are imperial and royal employes, as well as her majesty's narry maids and the porters and chasseurs in gold and silver laden dress, the only difference being that the maids and flunkies re engaged by the year, while the women are employed by the month, i. e., during the residence of the court in Potsdam.

But what about the Biblical crumbs that fall from the rich man's table? There are none. The allowances for the royal board are cut so fine as to just suffice for their majesties, the entourage and the guests; and when the Kaiser invites extra company at the last moment, the courses are hurried to cover up the shortening of the rations, and frequently some of the visitors are "skipped" as if by accident. Of the royal guests, many leave the flower-strewn table as hungry as the scrubgirls do their nooks and corners after the noon recess.

These women hail from Potsdam and the surrounding villages, and work in the castle from 6 a. m. to 6 or 8 p. m., but our 200-room palace affords neither a place where they may cook a scanty meal nor a room where they can eat and rest. * * * And this happens in Prussia, where every man, woman and child contributes on an average 20 cents per year toward the civil list. The Emperor has an income of nearly 16,000,000 marks a year, unencumbered save for the obligation to pay five appendages of $15,000 per annum each to Prussian Princes. That leaves William about $3,900,000 a year to "bless himself with," besides his private income of 150,000 marks ($37,500) a month.

The World's Biggest Telescope and Science's Latest Conclusions About Life on Other Planets

Mirror of reflecting instrument just installed in British Columbia is six feet in diameter and weighs more than two tons—Entire apparatus weighs 60 tons and is controlled by seven electric motors—Balance so perfect it can be swung about by hand—Expected to aid in researches to determine habitability of other members of solar system—Theory that Mars and possibly Venus are only planets beside the earth that can support life -:- -:-

The North Pole region of the moon as seen through a modern high powered telescope.

THOUGH fettered irretrievably to that little pinfold in the universe known as the earth, man, by means of the machines which he has wrenched from the intractable materials of nature, is finding himself able more and more to pry into the secrets of the grandest of problems—the mysteries propounded by the myriads of stars and planets which overhang him in the skies.

And now the mind has equipped itself for the quest with the greatest reflecting telescope ever brought to perfection, that installed in a conservatory near Victoria, British Columbia. This instrument is expected to search out new evidence upon astronomical enigmas in general, and particularly to throw more light upon the fascinating question as to whether life exists on any of the planets of the solar system save our own.

An idea of the size of the Canadian telescope may be gained from the fact that its principal mirror is one inch more than six feet in diameter and weighs 340 pounds more than two tons. The concave curve of its front surface is ground so perfectly that if an error exists it is less than one two-hundred-thousandths of an inch. The mirror is 13 inches thick at the edge, and in the center there is a hole 10 1-8 inches in diameter, the purpose of which is interesting.

The principle of the mirror is that, when directed at any luminary, it gathers all the rays of light received from it and focuses them at one point in an image of the original. In the case of this six-foot reflector the image is 30 feet away from the mirror. The observer may either catch the image at the point of focus and study it through his magnifying eyeglass, or else deflect it with a plane mirror through the hole in the concave mirror, back of which he may also install his eyeglass.

The manufacture of the principal mirror of such a telescope requires a long time, infinitesimal pains and great sums of money. It is made of speculum metal, an alloy of copper and tin, and the concave surface is coated with a bright film of silver. It is recalled that half a century ago Lord Rosse built a six-foot reflecting telescope, but the art of grinding mirrors was then so far inferior to its development today that very little work could ever be done with the instrument, and it lies dismantled, as a curiosity, in the South Kensington Museum. But even the new Canadian telescope will soon be outdistanced by the eight and one-half foot reflector being built for the solar observatory of the Carnegie Institution at Mount Wilson, Cal.

The 73-inch mirror, with its many complicated appurtenances, is mounted in a great tube, which, in turn, is housed in a circular building 66 feet in diameter and rising, with its hemispherical revolving dome, to a height of 75 feet. The tube itself, which is 7 1-2 feet in diameter, weighs 15 tons; and the telescope, with its apparatus, weighs altogether 60 tons. Its operations are controlled by seven electric motors, and so perfectly balanced is the big mechanism, with its beautiful ball bearings, that a pressure of five pounds with the hand is sufficient to swing it about. In addition there is a clock-driven motor, energized by a weight of 1000 pounds, which revolves an axis once in 24 hours. This axis is attached to the telescope in such a way as to keep its vision fixed on any star steadily, despite the revolution of the earth. An electric elevating platform enables the astronomer to make his observations at the upper end of the tube, when he so desires.

No doubt one of the first uses to which this magnificent instrument will be put will be that of investigating the evidences of life on other planets. Science has made in the last few centuries the gigantic stride of discovering that the stars and planets are not lamps hung in the heavens for the convenience of mankind, and concerning themselves with our affairs to the extent of influencing them for good or evil, as the old astrologers fabled, but that they are worlds for the most part very much larger than the earth and often larger even than the sun. The miraculous spectroscope has even informed us of the elements of which these orbs are composed, and the elements have been found to be those of which the earth itself is made up.

Today astronomers are seeking with every means at their command to discover whether there are evidences of life on our nearest neighbors, the planets, and for the inquiry larger and larger telescopes are in demand. The present theories on the subject were entertainingly discussed by Vincent Francis, in a recent article in the Scientific American. He comes to the conclusion that Venus may possibly be inhabited and that Mars most probably is peopled by a race of gigantic stature, which, gasping for breath in the rarified atmosphere and dying of thirst, has made one last supreme effort to preserve itself by means of a vast irrigation system, compared with which any engineering feat ever accomplished on earth sinks into insignificance. All of the other planets, he believes, are incapable of supporting life.

It is out of the question, he says, to conceive of any life existing on the sun, a globe of incandescent gases flaming with a heat of 6000 degrees centigrade.

Coming to Mercury, the little planet nearest the sun, it is found that it always presents the same face to the sun, and that it has apparently no atmosphere. On one side the sun's rays beat down fiercely with seven times more heat and light per unit of space than we receive on the earth, undimmed, also, by the interference of any atmosphere like ours. On the other side reign eternal night and the frightful cold of interstellar space, which is 470 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. "We see one side scorched to a cinder by the relentless rays of the sun, and the other frozen solid by a cold which we can never conceive of on earth. Certainly life under such circumstances would be impossible."

The next planet, Venus, differs from Mercury in having an atmosphere so dense and moisture-laden that 92 per cent of the light reaching the orb is reflected back into space, thus accounting for the peculiarly dazzling sheen which characterizes this body. It is unknown whether Venus has a day like our own or whether, like Mercury, she always turns the same face towards the sun. The latter is considered more probable. But even in that case life might exist, for the temperature would be equalized by the circulation of the atmosphere from the sunlit to the dark side.

"Life on Venus would be on a very early stage of development," says the writer, "possibly like life on the earth before the skies cleared, when it was still pretty warm here; luxuriant ferns and other flora flourished and huge dinosaurs inhabited our globe. It seems reasonable that Venus should be at an earlier stage of development than the earth, although she is practically the same size, because she is considerably nearer the sun and receives in consequence about twice as much light and heat as we do, thus retarding the cooling off process which all worlds must undergo in the process of evolution. * * * The chances of thinking beings like ourselves being there are extremely remote."

Conditions on Venus are very different from those of the earth in another way, namely, that her equator has practically no inclination to her orbit, whereas our planet has an inclination of 23 1-2 degrees. This means that Venus has no seasons, the climate never varying in one locality year in and year out.

Passing by the earth we come to Mars, which is considerably smaller than the terrestial globe and 141,000,000 miles from the sun, as against the earth's distance of 93,000,000 miles. Mars has a day about the length of our own, has seasons corresponding to ours, and has a year 687 days long. It possesses an atmosphere containing water vapor, but it is much rarer than that of the earth.

But the amazing thing about Mars is, of course, the network of channels which spread over its surface, swelling here and there into what one astronomer has termed "oases." These have given rise to the astounding theory that the channels are artificial canals, and that the "oases" are centers of population and agriculture. Of course, it could not be the canals themselves which are visible through even the most powerful telescopes, but the vegetation growing along their banks.

The characteristic reddish hue of the planet is said to support the theory that most of its surface is like that of the Sahara Desert. Here, it is urged, we have the spectacle of a mighty race making its last desperate stand against extinction by creating such an engineering work as we can conceive only by imagining that on the earth our sole water supply was the melting of the snow caps in the Arctic zones, that the rest of the planet was a desert, and that the temperate and tropic zones could be irrigated only by vast canals running down from the regions of the poles.

Thus we see on either side of the earth, in the cases of Venus and Mars, what our planet was millions of years ago and what it will infallibly become eons in the future, when, as on Mars, our oceans have disappeared through evaporation and absorption, and the slow but gradual process our atmosphere is now undergoing in being thrown off and lost in space, has developed to a serious degree. Venus is a planet in its infancy; the earth in its heyday of vigor; Mars is at the door of death.

Owing to the small size of Mars and its consequent low gravitational power, Francis is of the belief that the inhabitants of Mars are of gigantic stature as compared with ours, just as Jupiter, with its immense gravitational jull, could be peopled, if at all, only by pygmies. Also, the small gravitational force on Mars would permit more than twice as much work to be accomplished as on earth with the same expenditure of energy.

"More and more astronomers are coming to believe," says the writer, "that if life does not exist on Mars today, it has existed there some time in the recent past, geologically speaking, and that a population, possibly very much like ours, though declining in numbers and at a much higher civilization, probably exists there today, although it is absolutely impossible, and probably always will be, to prove this fact definitely."

Next beyond Mars, at an enormous distance of 500,000,000 miles from the sun, is Jupiter, which is larger than all the rest of the planets put together. Jupiter has so thick and cloudy an atmosphere that its surface has never been seen by astronomers. Obviously no life exists there and probably never can.

"After examining all the members of the solar system in our search for signs of life on them, Francis concludes. "we find that out of the sun, the seven major planets, not counting the earth, over 800 minor planets, 37 satellites and innumerable comets and metors, there is but one planet, Mars, upon which we can say that conditions are favorable for the support of life, and one other planet, Venus, upon which it is barely possible life exists."

known as M. Tessier, and that in the register he had inscribed himself as a landed proprietor, living near Bayonne. I took my dinner leisurely at the Helder, afterwards returning to Monte Carlo, utterly mystified.

Next day I had many affairs to attend to and completely forgot the curious incident, until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when a cough behind me sounded familiar, and there I saw the mysterious stranger standing at the right-hand roulette table just within the entrance. Attired gaily in a suit of light gray, with a pink carnation in his lapel, he was watching the play intently. It was strange how that cough attracted me. I reasoned with myself, but could not account for it. True, I had only first heard it on the previous day, yet it now seemed curiously familiar.

From his nervous action I saw that he intended playing; therefore, in order to watch him more intently I whispered a word to the chef de parte, and took his place on the high chair behind the croupier. The ball was already in motion when the stranger placed a note for a thousand francs upon a transversale of the last six numbers.

"Trente-deaux! Rouge, pair et passe!" cried the croupier, almost the next instant.

"I watched his face. Although he had won, no smile of satisfaction played about his thin lips. His was a gray, ashen countenance, from which all hope and all desire seemed to have fled.

His winnings, 5000 francs, were pushed toward him, but he twisted the notes together and thrust them into the outside pocket of his jacket with as little care as though they were circulars. His manner had changed from the previous day. He was now pale to the lips, whereas he had been ruddy and healthy looking, and his pallor was heightened by his white silk cravat, secured by a gold ring. Again and again he played, with unvarying success, until, with sudden resolve, he transferred all winnings to an inner pocket, and then tossed a single 5-franc piece upon the center dozen.

The ball fell upon number 8. He lost. Then, with some muttered words of discontent, he turned away. It seemed as though, having won thousands of francs, he begrudged the loss of a single silver coin. I did not follow him, for the mystery irritated me, and I had already several other important matters on hand.

Nearly a week passed before I saw him again. He was playing at the table where we had first met, and his personal appearance had considerably improved. This time I resolved to speak to him; therefore I went to my room, slipped on a smart tweed coat and vest, which I kept in readiness for emergencies, and lounged back to the table, taking up my stand behind him. When he played I also put down my modest 5-franc pieces until he discerned that I was following his play, and glanced back at me inquiringly.

"M'sieur had good fortune," I observed quickly.

"Yes," he answered with a laugh. "But my luck has changed. See, I've just lost," and he nodded towards a 5-franc piece beneath the croupier's rake. Together we turned away.

"M'sieur is to be congratulated," I said. "It is remarked in the rooms that he never loses."

"I lose sometimes," he answered, with a dry, harsh laugh. "I've just lost."

"But it is only 5 francs, whereas, while I have been standing with m'sieur he has won 28,000 francs," I observed.

"You count it, eh?" he snapped. "Well, I don't. A loss is a loss."

"It might have been a maximum instead of a minimum."

"I've just lost 5 francs on 29, a number which wins always, if I stake upon it," he answered. "Therefore I play no more."

It was near the dinner hour, and at my invitation we dined at the Hotel de Paris opposite. My mysterious friend was, I found, an educated man who had seen a good deal of the world, but at dinner still another fact struck me as curious. He always wore gloves, and today they were light-gray suede ones. Even now, while eating, he retained the left-hand one.

"I suffer from acute rheumatism," he explained, noticing my surprise that he did not remove the glove. "I met with a severe accident while cycling three years ago, and my hand has never been the same since. The doctor orders me to wear gloves always, as the least cold affects it."

"Fortunate that it was your left hand," I answered, while at that instant our eyes met, and I fancied I detected in his a curious look of suspicion. "Does it pain you now?" I asked.

"Yes. It gives some bad twinges now and then. This afternoon, while playing, I was in great pain."

This answer was exactly what I wished him to give.

"I happen to be a medical man, although I don't practice," I said. "After dinner I'll have a glance at it, if you like."

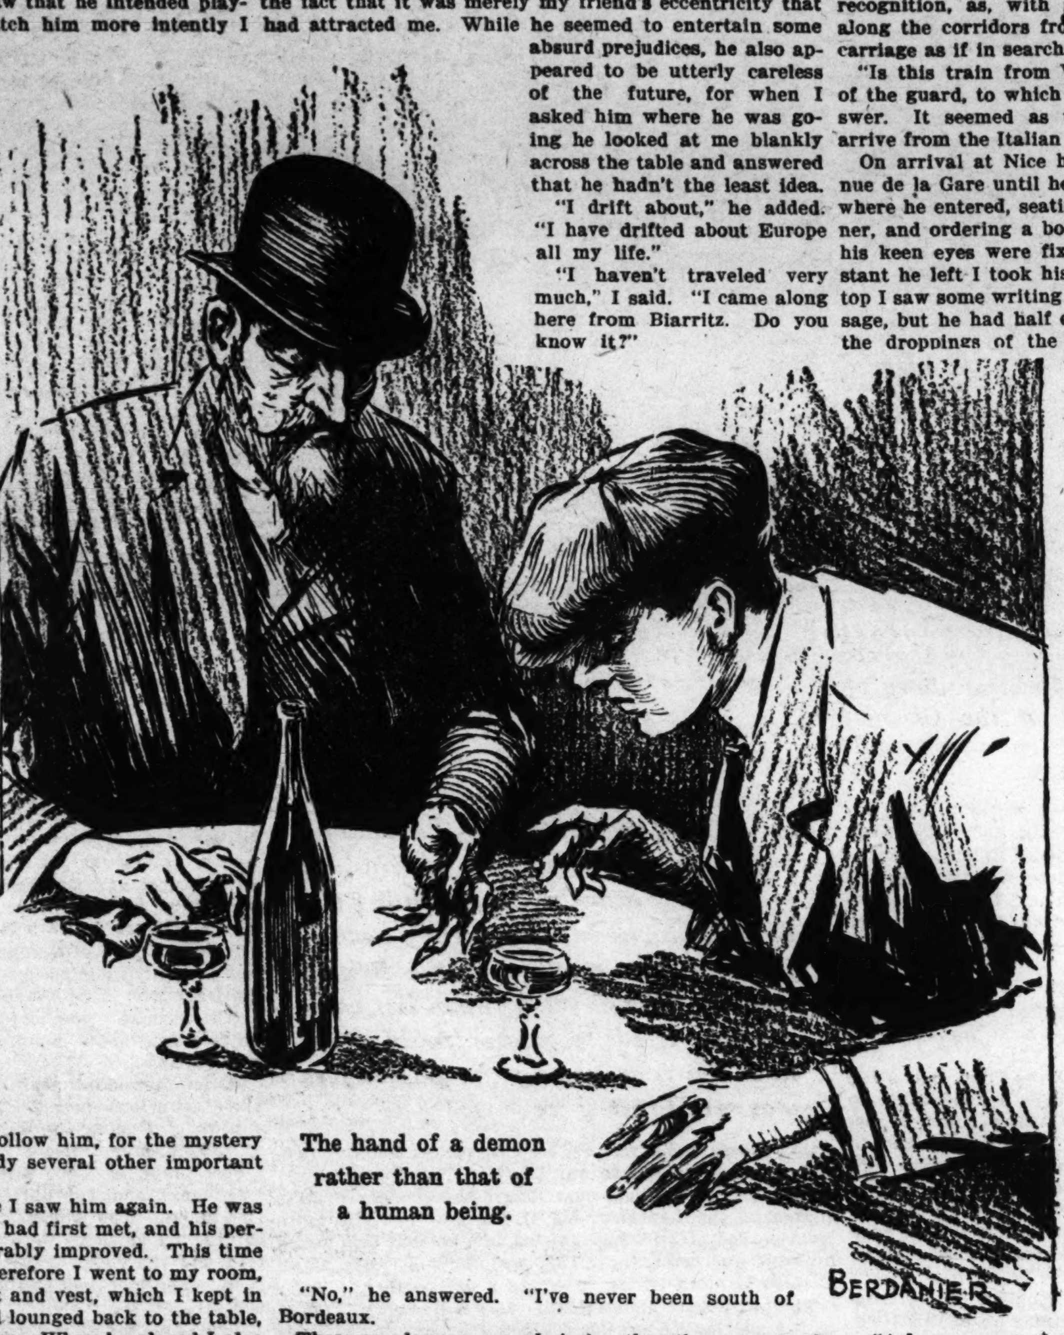
"Oh, you're very kind," he replied with a smile. "Certainly. You'll be doing me a great service if you can recommend any treatment that will allay the pain. I feel it right up my arm to the shoulder."

As the meal progressed I became more impressed by the fact that it was merely my friend's eccentricity that had attracted me. While he seemed to entertain some absurd prejudices, he also appeared to be utterly careless of the future, for when I asked him where he was going he looked at me blankly across the table and answered that he hadn't the least idea.

"I drift about," he added. "I have drifted about Europe all my life."

"I haven't traveled very much," I said. "I came along here from Biarritz. Do you know it?"

"No," he answered. "I've never been south of Bordeaux.



The hand of a demon rather than that of a human being.

These words were an admission that the entry in the register of the Hotel des Anglais at Nice was false. I had felt convinced that he did not come from Bayonne because of his Northern accent. He was concealing his identity.

After dinner we strolled across the brightly-lit space to the cafe, and sat outside to take our liqueurs and listen to the band. It was there he drew off his glove; not, however, without slight hesitation, and exhibited to me a withered, claw-like hand. It was indeed hideous. I did not wonder that he preferred to keep it gloved. The flash had wizened and died upon fingers and palm until it had assumed a dark brown color, while the bones shone white beneath the skin, a veritable skeleton hand, with long, untrimmed nails, the hand of a demon rather than that of a human being.

Even in my ignorance of the practice of medicine, I saw that such a terrible disease was not the result of rheumatism, and expressed that opinion.

But my friend merely shook his head and pulled on the glove again, saying:

"You're not the first doctor who has told me that. Yet two great specialists in Paris agreed as to the cause and treatment. I must admit, however, that I've been none the better for it," and he smiled, coughing that curious, hacking cough.

"Shall you play again?" I asked, as we rose and descended into the place.

"No," he answered, glancing up at the illuminated clock of the Casino. "I shall return."

"To Nice?"

"Yes. I'm at the Anglais. When you're over look me up."

Then, with mutual civilities, we exchanged cards, shook hands and parted.

His eagerness to depart during the last few moments struck me as strange; therefore returning into the Casino I slipped on another suit, and when his train left the station for Nice I was in another compartment, engrossed in the Petit Journal. It chanced to be a yellow rapide, and I had to exercise considerable tact to evade recognition, as, with growing restlessness, he walked along the corridors from end to end, peering into each carriage as if in search of someone.

"Is this train from Ventimille?" I heard him inquire of the guard, to which the man gave an affirmative answer. It seemed as though he expected someone to arrive from the Italian frontier.

On arrival at Nice he walked quickly down the Avenue de la Gare until he came to the Cafe de la Regence, where he entered, seating himself at a table in a far corner, and ordering a bock. While drinking it I saw that his keen eyes were fixed intently on the table. The instant he left I took his seat, and there upon the marble top I saw some writing in pencil. It was evidently a message, but he had half effaced it by dipping his finger in the droppings of the beer and carelessly smearing it across. Yet the two scribbled words in French I was enabled to read were sufficient to whet my curiosity. They were as follows:

"Choucruttmann crocodile."

To the uninitiated they possessed no meaning, but my experience in Paris had given me a good knowledge of thieves' argot, and I translated them as "German money lender."

For a few minutes I sat staring at the writing and thinking. Then a sudden thought dawned upon me, and by the next train I traveled back to Monte Carlo, where I spent half an hour over my cosmopolitan portrait gallery. The words upon that table had some very mysterious meaning.

Again I went to Nice by the 11 o'clock rapide, that train which is always filled with homegoing gamblers, and at once took a cab to the central police office, in order that the observation should be continued upon the mysterious stranger at his hotel. As I entered, however, I was surprised to meet Doumont, the well-known Paris detective.

"Well," I exclaimed, greeting him heartily, for we were excellent friends. "What brings you down here?"

"A case," he answered. "I've been here a week, but am returning tomorrow. My man was believed to have come down here for an airing after committing a murder, but I've been unable to trace him. He's a hunchback."

"A hunchback!" I exclaimed, reflecting for an instant. "And he murdered a German money lender?"

"Yes. How did you know?" inquired Dumont, amazed.

"You'll find your man at the Hotel des Anglais, No. 106. Some of the fraternity—an accessory probably—has warned him tonight that you're here, so you'd better lose no time."

Half an hour later Dumont arrested the mysterious player just as he was in the act of packing his bag, and ere I returned that night I learnt that this man, whose real name was Roudet, and who was known in a certain circle in Paris as "The Man With the Claws," was leader of an international gang of malefactors, some of whose names he divulged to the police on the morning his head fell on the Place de la Roquette.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 233D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—ADV.

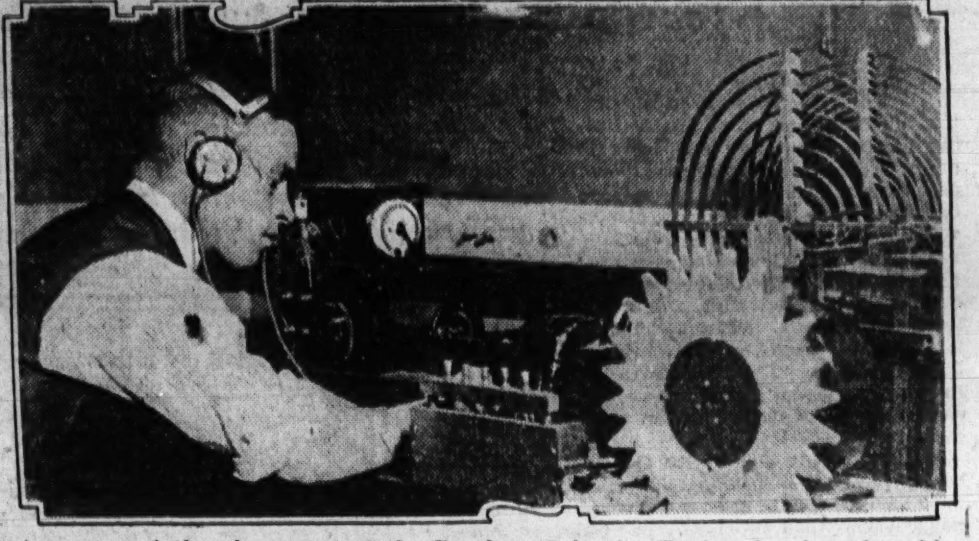
Uncle Sam Is Calling for More Wireless Men

St. Louis Schools Are Equipped to Train Them

In response to appeals from the War and Navy Departments, St. Louis University and the Ranken School of Mechanical Trades have opened classes in signaling which are free to those who will agree to join one of the branches of the service after qualifying as operators—By next year the navy will need 2000 radio operators and more students are wanted so that the ships now building can be sent to sea fully manned immediately after completion -:- -:- -:- -:-



A corner of the classroom at the Ranken School. Trying hard to be able to receive his 10 words a minute.

BY July 1, 1918, the United States navy will need 2000 wireless operators. Should it not get them it will be useless to send to sea the ships which are now building, as even a landsman can recognize how essential to the movements of warships and cargo carriers are the men who maintain communication between the vessels of a fleet and the shore stations and Navy Department.

The army is confronted by the same dilemma. It needs men in the signal corps, both land telegraphers and wireless operators, without which it would be useless to send large bodies of men to France. When an army is in the field constant communication must be kept between the various large units of a command, between two or more field armies and between the armies and the main supply base.

In an effort to remedy this condition the army and navy departments, shortly after the declaration of war against Germany, issued an appeal to the patriotism of American schools and colleges to assist them in obtaining the desired complements for the signal branches of the two services. Schools all over the country responded, but it is the purpose of this article to show what is being done in St. Louis to carry out the wishes of the Government at St. Louis University and at the Ranken School of Mechanical Trades.

No sooner had the appeal from Washington been received than Father James I. Shannon, dean of St. Louis University, communicated with the Chief Signal Officer of the army and received permission to open a school for telegraphers at his institution. A large classroom was set aside and the Western Union Telegraph Co. was asked to furnish the instruments and an instructor. It responded with alacrity.

The school was opened on Sept. 1. At present it has 27 students divided between two classes which assemble twice daily, in the afternoon and evening, six days a week. The class originally was larger, but eight or ten of the students were forced to drop out on account of having been called in the draft.

Many more students are wanted, both here and at the Ranken School. An exceptional opportunity is afforded for any young man to learn a trade and at the same time to serve his country, one that never would be open to him in peace time. It should especially appeal to men subject to draft who have leanings toward the signal corps branch of the army.

Prof. C. H. Turner, instructor at Ranken School, explaining the rudiments of wireless to his class.

Both land telegraphy and wireless are being taught at St. Louis University and both the army and navy are represented in the classes. The work is under the direction of Capt. A. G. Thompson, who commanded a signal company in the Spanish-American War and who was detailed to the university from the Western Union company. Included in his list of students are two young women, Miss Loretto McBride and Miss Matilde Alch, who shortly after the outbreak of war joined the United States navy with the rank of yeomen and went on duty at the St. Louis recruiting station. Both young women are qualifying for service at wireless land stations and both have shown special aptitude for the work. Miss Alch amazed her instructor by being able to make any letter in the code after only two days of study and practice, although she had had no previous knowledge of telegraphy.

Any young man who is eligible for the army or navy and who wants to enlist in the signal corps of either branch and qualify as an operator can enter the school at any time. Tuition is free, the only requirement being that the applicant must sign an agreement to join the signal corps as soon as he shall have qualified and pass a physical examination, to make sure that he will not be rejected.

The school will continue so long as there shall be any students. The classroom work is supplemented by laboratory instruction in electricity along the lines useful in the army and navy and lectures by Prof. A. H. Poetker of the department of physics and by Father Shannon. These are given one night a week.

A student is deemed to have qualified for enlistment in the signal corps when he is able to send 10 words a minute in the Morse continental code, which is used in both army and navy, for land telegraphy and wireless. No instruction is given in the American Morse code because of the fact that many letters in it cannot be transmitted by wireless. At present, Capt. Thompson is awaiting a reply from an application to the War Department to take drafted men into his classes and keep them there until they have qualified, without respect to the dates at which they are ordered to report to their training camps.

From St. Louis University, a Post-Dispatch reporter, accompanied by Commander E. A. Brooks, in charge of the local navy recruiting station, went to the Ranken School, at Newstead and Finney avenues, where another class in radio and signaling work has been under instruction since Sept. 10. The same entrance qualifications demanded at St. Louis University apply here and the student must acquire the same skill before he is fit for enlistment. At Ranken School the work is in charge of Prof. O. H. Turner, who has been connected with the faculty of the institution for four years. Here, too, the instruction is free.

Prof. Turner, at present, has a class of 20 men, practically all of whom are qualifying for the navy. He has divided them into three groups. The first is composed of beginners, who remain in this group until they have learned to send, when they are transferred to the second, where they must learn to receive a minimum of five words a minute. Then they are graduated to the advanced class, whose members have completed the course when they have learned to receive 10 words a minute. In telegraphy and wireless the sending is mastered easily; it is the receiving which requires patient practice.

A man of ordinary mentality, Prof. Turner said, taking night work alone, can qualify in from six to eight weeks. Should he attend both day and night classes, it should require only about three weeks. At Ranken School the classes are held five days a week. One student, although the school was started less than a month ago, already has been graduated and is taking the more extended course at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

In order to make the classes even more attractive, Prof. Turner has asked the Navy Department for authority to immediately enlist his young men in the navy, so that they may receive pay during the time of their instruction here. This, in the case of a landsman electrician (radio) is $32.60 a month. When he enters a Government class his pay immediately jumps to around $42 a month and after graduation from that, should he be assigned to shore duty, he is allowed an additional $60 a month for food and lodging. Thus, Commander Brooks pointed out, an unskilled man can, in three months, be transformed into a radio operator with a salary of $102 a month, something which he hardly could accomplish in civilian life.

The Government maintains several of these advanced schools, at Harvard University, the New York Navy Yard and at the Pratt Institute, Brooklyn. At the latter institution more than 450 men are at present enrolled in the electrical classes and more than 150 are taking up other branches of instruction. At the Dunwoody School in Minneapolis are 500 recruits from the Great Lakes station, taking instruction in electrical work.

Instruction in wireless at both St. Louis University and the Ranken School is being conducted, of course, with the absence of wireless towers, as the Government, at the beginning of the war, ordered that all private wireless plants should be dismantled. But this is no handicap to the learning of the essentials of receiving and sending and the familiarizing of one's self with the instruments. So far as possible these have been set up, so that the student shall be working under actual conditions as he will meet them in the service.

It is a far cry, however, from the quiet classroom to the wireless cabin on a fighting ship on the ocean, when the waves are high and the ship is rolling and pitching and a gale is howling outside. For that reason stress is being laid upon the necessity of every message being transcribed in a clear, legible hand, as the lives of many men might depend upon an exact transcription of a wireless message.

Many men who have been in other branches of the navy are now taking up signal work. In the laboratory at St. Louis University.

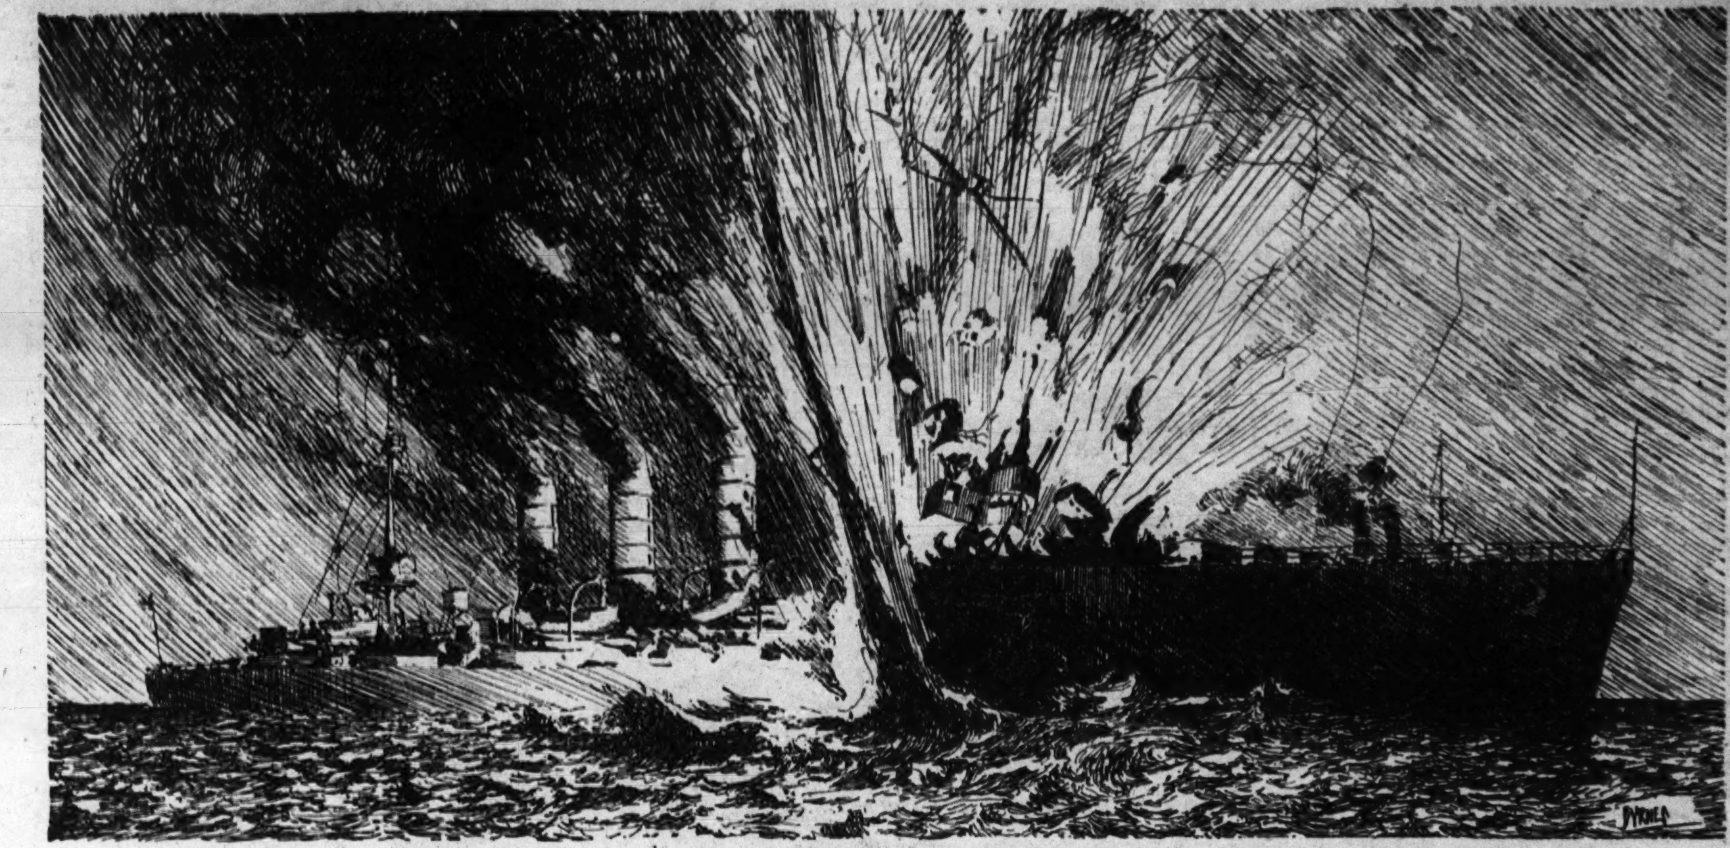
A case in point was illustrated by Commander Brooks. As executive officer of the cruiser Albany he was engaged in maneuvers on a tempestuous night. The officer in command of a landing party reported that he believed to make a landing under such conditions was too dangerous, but Commander Brooks, holding that the time was propitious, if ever, to test the mettle of the sailors, ordered that it be made. It is at such a time that a clear-headed, efficient operator is necessary. The garbling of a word, either in sending, receiving or transcribing, might result in a confusion of orders, a loss of life and a courtmartial for everyone concerned.

Learning to be a radio operator need not be regarded as wholly a war necessity. After the conflict ends radio men will be in greater demand than ever for a number of commercial purposes and the future of a good student ought to be regarded as assured.

Posted conspicuously in the lobby at Ranken School is a list of 55 names. They are those of former students who have joined some branch of the service for war work and the list is constantly being augmented as others of the young men drop their tools and books and tender their services to Uncle Sam.

THE END OF THE KARLSRUHE

And How the Survivors Got Back to Germany



"A powerful explosion had blown H. M. S. 'Karlsruhe' into halves."

The final installment of the war diary of Lieutenant Aust, Adjutant of the German Cruiser Karlsruhe during its commerce raiding operations.

Lieutenant Aust tells of the explosion which split the vessel in twain and sent many of the crew to their death, including the Captain — Those who were saved decided to attempt to reach the Fatherland by running the British blockade, which they accomplished—The capture of the British steamer "Vandyck," how its commander tried to make trouble and how the fear among the passengers was set at rest :: :: :: ::

24 OCTOBER. Due to the arrival of our prize crews at Tenerifa, the Englishmen must now know of our operations on the northeast coast of South America and the manner and means in which we increased our coal supply and planned our future operations. We could, therefore, assume that our beat, which we had patrolled since 1 September, would be carefully searched in the near future.

As a matter of fact, in these days, we once more recognized the radio signals of the English warships which cruised in our immediate neighborhood for the first time in a long while.

When we were going south from the West Indies the Captain had an idea that it would be a good thing to shake up the many English and French colonial possessions in the Lesser Antilles. He especially had in mind a joke on the French Island of Martinique and the English Barbadoes. But at that time he had to give up these plans because he was not sure of his coal supply. Now, however, he had taken up this scheme once more. You can imagine how pleased we all were about this.

Aside from the fact that the English would now carefully search our scene of operations up to this time, there now remained but little chance of our capturing any more enemy merchant ships. The experiences of the past month had taught us that the English steamers were not using the main traveled lanes very much. All of them were making great detours. The number of neutral steamers that we met increased considerably.

Therefore the Captain decided to leave our old place for a while until the shipping quieted down again and to suddenly bob up in the West Indies to carry out the aforementioned little jokes.

25 OCTOBER. We gathered all our steamers about us: "Rio Negro," "Asuncion" and "Indrani." Each one received detailed instructions for the next few weeks. Then they were released. The "Farn," our collier, was the only one to follow us on our cruise to the northwestward.

VANDYCK.

26 OCTOBER. We had proceeded a good distance away from the active lanes of travel to South America when on the morning of 26 October, to our great surprise, the lookout reported a steamer bearing east-southeasterly, steering a northerly course. When we saw her high white upper works we knew from a distance that she was a passenger steamer. Then we recognized the colors of the smokepipe—the sign of the firm of Lamport & Holt. The steamer was stopped about 11 o'clock. It was the "Vandyck," the third largest steamer of this company, over 10,000 tons displacement and only three years old.

The daintiest morsel had fallen most unexpectedly at our feet!

In addition to 210 passengers, of which 112 were in the first or second cabin, mostly North Americans, the steamer had 130 bags of mail, $2500 of the firm's funds, a large cargo of general merchandise and about 1000 tons of frozen meat. She was bound from Buenos Aires to New York, via Trinidad and Barbados.

She had been warned against us by the "BRISTOL." The Captain had exercised great caution in that he ran darkened at night and did not use his radio for six days. Therefore he was most surprised when our prize officer very seriously told him that we had been waiting for him since yesterday!

Her Captain was an old man and he lost his balance due to this misfortune. We always gave the crews of our prizes the choice between being quartered aboard the "KARLSRUHE" as prisoners of war or of signing an agreement not to take part against us or our allies during the rest of this war. If they elected the latter, we promised to set them free as soon as the next opportunity presented itself. Up until this time all the Englishmen had signed the agreement without hesitation. When this agreement was submitted and explained to the crew of the "Vandyck" the old Captain made an exciting speech to his men. The prize officer found it necessary to report this to our Captain. The latter immediately sent two armed men aboard the steamer to take charge of the Captain. Meantime, however, his more level-headed officers had quieted him so that this measure was not necessary. This was the only case of an English Captain trying to create a disturbance.

The passengers had, until the very last moment, taken us for an English cruiser. When they discovered their mistake there arose a grand howl. Because of the senseless infamy heaped upon our armies by the South American press (under English-French control) the passengers had expected the worst possible treatment and robbery at the hands of the "Huns." This madness was not confined to the between-decks passengers that are usually of ordinary and uneducated extraction and who, therefore, may be excused because of their ignorance. Among the first-class passengers was the Colombian diplomatic representative to Argentina, a mestino with his wife and child. He had had the foresight to request our Ambassador in Buenos Aires to write a letter to the commanders of all German warships. This he presented to our prize officer and, shivering from head to foot, he begged that he, his wife and child be spared! He did not subside for a long time, even after the Captain had sent Ensign Count Beissel to the steamer to attend the diplomat and his wife.

When the passengers finally understood that we had no idea of hurting a hair on their heads, nor of taking their property, the astonishment was great and the gratitude effusive.

In order to give the passengers ample time to pack up, the Captain delayed unloading the steamer until the next day. Meantime all our henchmen were recalled by radio and they arrived one after the other. Those on the "Vandyck" were certainly surprised to see the swarm of ships floating all around.

The transfer of baggage was to commence at 6 o'clock the next morning. The passengers were permitted to eat one more comfortable noon meal on the "Vandyck" on the 27th. Then they were to follow their baggage over to the "Asuncion" and, along with the crews of the last three steamers, be taken to a neutral harbor.

As our provision supply, such as fresh meat, flour and rice (the last was necessary for the Chinese) had been considerably reduced, the wonderfully supplied steamer came in very handy. Therefore, the next day was to be devoted to a wholesale transfer of provisions.

27 OCTOBER. During the night a part of the crew, especially the firemen, got drunk. This had usually happened in the case of the other steamers if the men were given sufficient time to save as much of their rum as they could. A drunken sailor from one of these steamers jumped overboard and it took considerable trouble to fish him out again.

Another thing that usually happened aboard the ships was the fact that as soon as a steamer was captured the officers lost control of their men. They would then besiege the Captain demanding that they be paid and attempting to break into the stores, especially if they thought these contained alcohol. In several cases the prize officer had to intervene in order that their Captain would be obeyed.

The first officer on the "Vandyck" had requested permission to superintend the transfer of the baggage. He and the other ship's officers behaved very sensibly and did their best to lighten our work and to do what they could for the unfortunate passengers.

The ship's boats had been packed full the day before. Promptly at 6 a. m. the first officer directed that they be lowered. The passengers were watching this work and saw a most surprising spectacle; all the wooden boats of the large and new passenger steamer were leaky and soon filled with water, so that all the baggage was thoroughly soaked. The suffering passengers raged. They cursed the first officer and then the Captain until they were finally quieted by the officers of the "KARLSRUHE," who were watching the performance.

The German steamboat then took the heavy, wet boats in tow and, about noon, the transportation of baggage was finished.

After the noon meal the transfer of passengers to the "Asuncion" began. They were all aboard her by 7 p. m., including the crews of the steamers "Glanton" and "Hurstdale;" also a 10 days' supply of provisions.

The "Asuncion" was a much smaller steamer than the "Vandyck" and was not fitted to take care of so many passengers. The women and children were all assigned cabins, but as there were not enough of these, the Captain and the ship's officers surrendered their rooms to them. The men had to find places on deck as best they could.

The Captain had a notice posted in the salon and in the steerage. In this notice he invited attention to the lies that had been published in the press which had caused so much uneasiness among the passengers. German soldiers and sailors would never rob an unfortunate traveler of his property, much less attempt to take his life. In regard to the English this might be the case, as they pay their naval officers and seamen prize money; that is, with the property of strangers. This custom, dating back to the days of piracy, is unknown in the German navy. The Germany navy is accustomed to doing its duty, which required us to capture enemy steamers and to treat neutral passengers with every possible consideration. The only real way to escape inconveniences was to travel, not on English, but on neutral steamers.

This notice was read with interest and then widely discussed. Taken full and by, the opinions of the passengers were not bad. They accepted the inevitable in their predicament. They gave a letter to the officer who had charge of their transfer, in which they thanked him for his courteous treatment. "No one with reason could expect more under the circumstances."

The presence of two American newspaper reporters was not an unfortunate thing at this time.

The women and children begged for souvenirs and especially wanted "KARLSRUHE" cap ribbons and uniform buttons.

After the "Asuncion" had received our mails, Capt. Fritch was ordered to take her to Para. He was to arrive there on 1 November. Capt. Fritch was very sorry to have to leave us. He asked me to tell the Captain that he would much rather share the joys and sorrows of the "KARLSRUHE."

The transfer of provisions from the "Vandyck" continued on through the night. Shortly before midnight lights were sighted. It was a steamer heading directly for us, so that we hardly had to move in order to stop her. We were not a little pleased to discover that she was an English vessel by the name of "Royal Scepter," from London. She had noticed the gathering of ships. That pleased her so she decided to find out what was happening here in the middle of the ocean. She ran straight into our arms. Unfortunately, however, she had a very valuable neutral cargo of coffee. This was estimated to be worth about 5,000,000 marks, while the steamer herself was an old and worn-out craft. The Captain decided, with a heavy heart, to turn her loose. About 1:30 a. m. her lights disappeared from sight.

28 OCTOBER. Early in the morning, about 6:30 o'clock, the steamer "Vandyck" went to the bottomless depths.

THE END.

29-30 OCTOBER. The "KARLSRUHE," with her three remaining steamers, set out for the West Indies. On

The Last of the Frontier Scouts

Capt. Carlos Ludwig von Berg, who served under some of the country's most noted Generals and Indian fighters, lives on slope of a mountain near Fayetteville, Ark., and effects the garb of the frontiersman, but declines to join wild west shows or pose for the movies—Was a close friend and associate of the late "Buffalo Bill," and is his double in appearance—Some of his exploits and narrow escapes.

Capt. Von Berg when he was marshal of a Memorial Day parade in Fayetteville.

SHOULD the visitor to Fayetteville, Ark., a town of the old South, in the Arkansas Ozarks, arrive there in the early evening, he would hear, on the stroke of 9 o'clock, the clear, plaintive notes of a bugle coming from far up on the mountain side. Were he familiar with United States army bugle calls he would instantly recognize the strains of "taps," the soldier's good-night, but with the addition at the close of a long-drawn-out "A-a-a-men."

He would hear it the next night, and the next, and for every night thereafter so long as he should stay in the town, just as the townspeople have heard it every night for the last 10 years. Upon inquiry he would learn that the playing of "taps" is the way Capt. Carlos Ludwig von Berg serves notice that the day has ended for him and that he is about to go into repose for the night.

To the citizens of Fayetteville Carlos Ludwig von Berg has another name—"Old Scout"—which is descriptive of what he has been. On the War Department records a "Practical Guide and Hunter of the Rockies and Late Scout of the Western Army," he is almost the last survivor of those men who were the "eyes" of the army when it was slowly driving the red man westward in order to make the country safe for the coming of the settler. He is one of the few connecting links between the present and the days of Cody, Jack Crawford and others who knew the lore of the woods as thoroughly as the Indians did, who knew not fear and who kept their slender hold on life almost solely through their prowess with the rifle.

Thrice have his services been recognized by the Government—once when it named him official guide to Col. (Lord) Fenton of the British army during that nobleman's American hunt; again when he was chosen to be guide and hunting companion to the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia when that distinguished guest of the nation enjoyed a six months' Western hunt as the guest of Gen. Sheridan and "Buffalo Bill" in the '70s, and finally when it granted him a pension so that he could pass his declining days in comfort.

Up to 10 years ago, the "Old Scout" made his home in the Far West, but one day he disappeared from his haunts out there and as suddenly turned up in Fayetteville, in picturesque costume of buckskin jacket and trousers, a form of dress he has followed for 50 years, and built himself a lodge on the slope of East Mountain. If he had entertained the notion of sequestering himself from the world and living the life of a recluse he was to be disappointed, for from almost the first Scout Lodge, as he calls his place, has attracted hundreds of visitors.

The traveler who climbs the slope of East Mountain will find Scout Lodge perched high aloft, and seemingly held to the mountain side by a tangled mass of fragrant growing things. If it be early morning he will find that the sun's rays are bathing the little house with light long before the valley below has emerged from shadow. Like as not a dog will bark, and then a great form will appear in the doorway and a great voice will say:

"You want to see me, yah?"

Two clear, shrewd eyes look out from under shaggy brows, a large, firm hand is extended in greeting. But the visitor perhaps first will be struck with the remarkable resemblance of the man before him to the late "Buffalo Bill." There is the same flowing hair reaching to the shoulders, the same moustache and goatee and he is wearing the buckskin garments which are so closely associated in the minds of most persons with Col. Cody. The "Old Scout" has been mistaken many times for "Buffalo Bill" and of this he is very proud, for in the old days the men were close associates and fast friends.

Around his neck the "Old Scout" wears a brightly-colored kerchief and on his breast are several medals. In shaking hands with him one learns that one of his fingers is gone.

He still affects the fringed buckskin shirt and trousers of the frontiersman.

"Yah, a bullet got that one," he will say, "the same time I got this." And he will lift one buckskin trouser leg and display the scar of what must have been an ugly wound.

Then the visitor will be introduced to the "Old Scout's" little joke. Above the entrance to his dwelling is a sign which reads "Admission, 25 cents," but when one attempts to pay him he laughingly will explain that it is only a joke, refuse to accept any money, salute the caller with an embrace, whether it is man or woman, and lead the way into the house.

It is strangely furnished, this house. There is an immense buffalo head, for which the Smithsonian Institution has made a standing offer of $500. There are elk heads and buffalo skins for which the owner also has refused large sums; hides of mountain lion, puma, grizzly bear, beaver, Rocky Mountain antelope, skins of rattlesnakes eight feet long, prickly hides of porcupines, rare Indian blankets, an Indian maiden's wedding cape of elk's teeth, for which any jeweler would pay a small fortune; beadwork, peace pipes, bows, arrows, tomahawks and flint rocks. And here and there are circles of dried skin from which dangle wisps of human hair, trophies of the days when the owner was a killer.

When all these things have been seen and the guest has expressed the proper amount of appreciation and awe, it is not difficult to persuade his host to indulge in reminiscences. And he has a wonderful fund of experiences to draw upon, for he was an interpreter and scout for the greatest soldiers of past generations, among them Gen. Sibley, Gen. Custer, Col. Terry and Maj. Bell. He has traveled, on foot and horseback, from the Lakes to the Gulf and from the Hudson River to Western Montana. A hunter of Indians who has slain and, yes, scalped them, he was at the same time their good friend when they allowed him to be and he knew intimately many of the most noted Indian chiefs and was familiar with the various Indian languages.

Once enemies, but now friends. Little Wolf and the "Old Scout."

Capt. von Berg remembers well Custer's last fight, for at the time he was only three miles away and was one of the first to visit the scene after the Indians had withdrawn. The story of the battle he had at first hand from Curley, Gen. Custer's Crow scout, who was the only human survivor of Custer's command, having, near the close of the massacre, taken a blanket from a dead Sioux and made his escape.

"Here," said Capt. von Berg to a visitor, pointing to a picture of a big black horse, "is 'Pawnee Billy,' the horse which for 30 years was my constant companion and faithful friend. Here is his tail"—and he held up a grotesque thing of long, black hair—"and here is the arrow with which he was shot from under me. I was riding with a trooper through the woods of Montana when four Sioux Indians suddenly surprised us. My friend was killed and Billy was shot in the neck. But the four Sioux are good Indians now. Here are their scalps," he added, with a grim smile, "and here are a pair of gold bracelets I took from the wrists of one of them.

"This," continued the "Old Scout," "is the skin of a mountain lion. I killed it on that same trip before I lost Billy. I had been detailed as scout to carry a troop of soldiers from Fort Livingston to Fort McInnis, and when on the way Maj. Bell, who had charge of the soldiers, suggested that I take three or four troopers and kill an antelope, as we were in need of food.

"We were 100 miles from any settlement, but I directed Maj. Bell to follow a trail until a point 20 miles away was reached and to wait for me there. I then entered the woods with four troopers. I became lost from my companions and had proceeded some distance when I saw deer. Dismounting and leaving 'Billy' untied to graze, I concealed myself and waited. When the deer came within range of 'Betsy,' my gun, I easily killed two, and was running to where my game lay when I heard a loud noise behind me. At first I thought it was buffalo, disturbed by my shooting, but I saw it was a drove of wild horses, at least 200 of them, maddened brutes on a stampede, and that they had already cut me off from my horse.

"Wild horses always surround any domestic animal that may be in their way and carry it off with the drove. This they did with Billy, who seemed willing enough to forget our long association and return to the primitive state of his ancestors. I was 100 miles from a settlement, lost from my companions, afoot in a wild country. I followed the horses the best I could, vainly calling Billy by name, when I heard a second noise, more terrifying than the first.

"I was directly in the path of a herd of a hundred or more charging steers. There was a rocky eminence in front of me. I made a desperate effort to reach it, clinging to 'Betsy,' although twice I tripped over her and fell headlong. I stumbled up the rocks, cutting my face and hands, but at last gained the top. In front of me the animals gathered in fury, heads down, feet pawing, or rearing up in determined effort to reach me. I clung to the rocks until I had regained my breath, then, picking out steers on the far edge of the bunch, I fired eight times. Immediately the animals turned and charged the eight carcasses.

"I stayed on the rocks all night. I went to sleep and it was early dawn when I woke. The steers had disappeared and Billy was standing near me."

When the Civil War broke out, Capt. von Berg for some time had been in the employ of the Hudson Bay company and had been thrown into constant contact with the Indians. When the Union soldiers were sent South the lake borders were left unprotected and the temptation to raid became too great for the red men. Time and again they swooped down on defenseless towns, and Gen. Sibley, who commanded the soldiers in that region, was in despair. He cast about for someone who would go among the Indians and bring them to terms.

The Man With the Claws

By WILLIAM LE QUEUX

"MESSIEURS, faites vos jeux!"

Above the jingle of coin, the rustle of notes, the click of the tiny ivory ball and the hum of many voices, that monotonous, strident cry which has enticed so many to ruin and so few to fortune, rings ever in the ears of those who fall beneath the fascination of that most exacting of mistresses, Dame Roulette. In the great gilded salons where the light of day is excluded by curtains of black and crimson muslin, where the senses are bewildered by an apparent disregard of wealth and where the atmosphere is heavy with that faint odor of perspiration and perfume, it is the same invitation to play rising above all other sounds, year in, year out, Sundays and week days.

"Messieurs, faites vos jeux!"

To frequenters of Monte Carlo I require little introduction. They know me perhaps as a familiar figure of rather funeral aspect, in frock coat and black tie, strolling aimlessly about, sometimes watching the play at this table or at that, but more often keeping close observation on one or other of the players, who, like moths around a candle, are attracted to the tapis-vert by golden expectations. I am an observer by profession, having graduated under Monsieur Goron, chief of the Paris Surete, and afterwards served a term as croupier at the roulette tables, when I rose to be chef de partie, and afterwards became appointed to the office I now hold.

As chief of the Surveillance Department, my office is no sinecure, for, truth to tell, the Cercle des Etrangers de Monaco is the sink of Europe. An interested procession of malefactors and criminals of the upper class seems to filter through our salons year by year, in blissful ignorance of the fact that when they mount the carpeted steps from the place, they are simply walking into an international police bureau. Little do they dream that warrants are out for their arrests, and it more than probable that in one of the large albums in my private room behind the bureau, where they present their fictitious visiting cards to obtain their carte d' admission, there reposes a well executed counterfeit presentment of themselves, together with a brief and pointed statement of their offense. In these heavy albums, each devoted to a separate country, I have a truly cosmopolitan collection. Nearly every region on the face of the earth contributes its quota to my gallery of celebrities, for whenever a delinquent is known to have obtained a considerable sum of money by his crime, his description or his photograph is at once forwarded to me, for the fatal fascination which the roulette wheel exercises upon those guilty of the more serious offenses is truly astonishing. Yet when once they are recognized, either by myself or my assistants, they have as little chance of escape as they have of winning a zero—or the ami de la maison, as we know it familiarly—on their first throw.

To discuss the morality of this, the most picturesque spot on the whole Littoral, or to hold a brief for or against the tables, is not my intention. To describe it as a hell within a paradise will perhaps suffice. Much has already been written about wild gaming and its dire results—much that is true, but more that is false. Yet now, for the first time, it will be shown in these reminiscences the manner in which the administration of the Cercle des Etrangers renders assistance to the police of Europe.

As may readily be imagined, a good many romances in real life pass beneath the notice of one whose days are spent at a spot where drama is continuously being played, and where it is not infrequently varied by tragedy. Truly, ours is a strange world—the world of Monte Carlo.

High play, or run of luck, always interests me, tired as I am of the eternal stakes of single 5-franc pieces; and it was this eagerness to watch heavy risks which one afternoon attracted me to that roulette table which stands at the further end, to the right of the entrance to the trente-et-quarante rooms. It was the height of the Riviera season, a bright, balmy day in early February, a few days before carnival; the sea outside was turquoise, the sky cloudless, and the gardens were looking their best and brightest, but, as usual, utterly neglected by those eager crowds. A glance around the tables showed me something unusual was in progress. The croupiers, who are changed each hour, chanced to be all young men, and with such a party the game was always fast and furious. They made it their boast that whenever these six came together they played twice as quickly as the "fogies" did.

"Messieurs, fait vos jeux!" rose sharply as I approached the chair of the chef de partie, and at the same instant the croupier reversed the red and black wheel, and with a twist of the thumb launched the ivory ball on its way along the circular ledge.

The excited players threw their silver and gold on the numbers, the dozens, the rouge, the noir and the impair. Then they waited breathlessly.

Suddenly, just as the ball was losing its impetus, a tall, dark-bearded, rather handsome man, with a pair of black piercing eyes which seemed to gleam with an almost unnatural brilliance, thrust his gloved hand into his pocket and carelessly tossed some notes upon the table without counting them, at the same time exclaiming:

"Premiere douzaine!"

In an instant the croupier spread them open, saying:

"Trois mille francs premiere douzaine."

Scarcely had these words been uttered when there arose the inevitable warning:

"Rie ne va plus!"

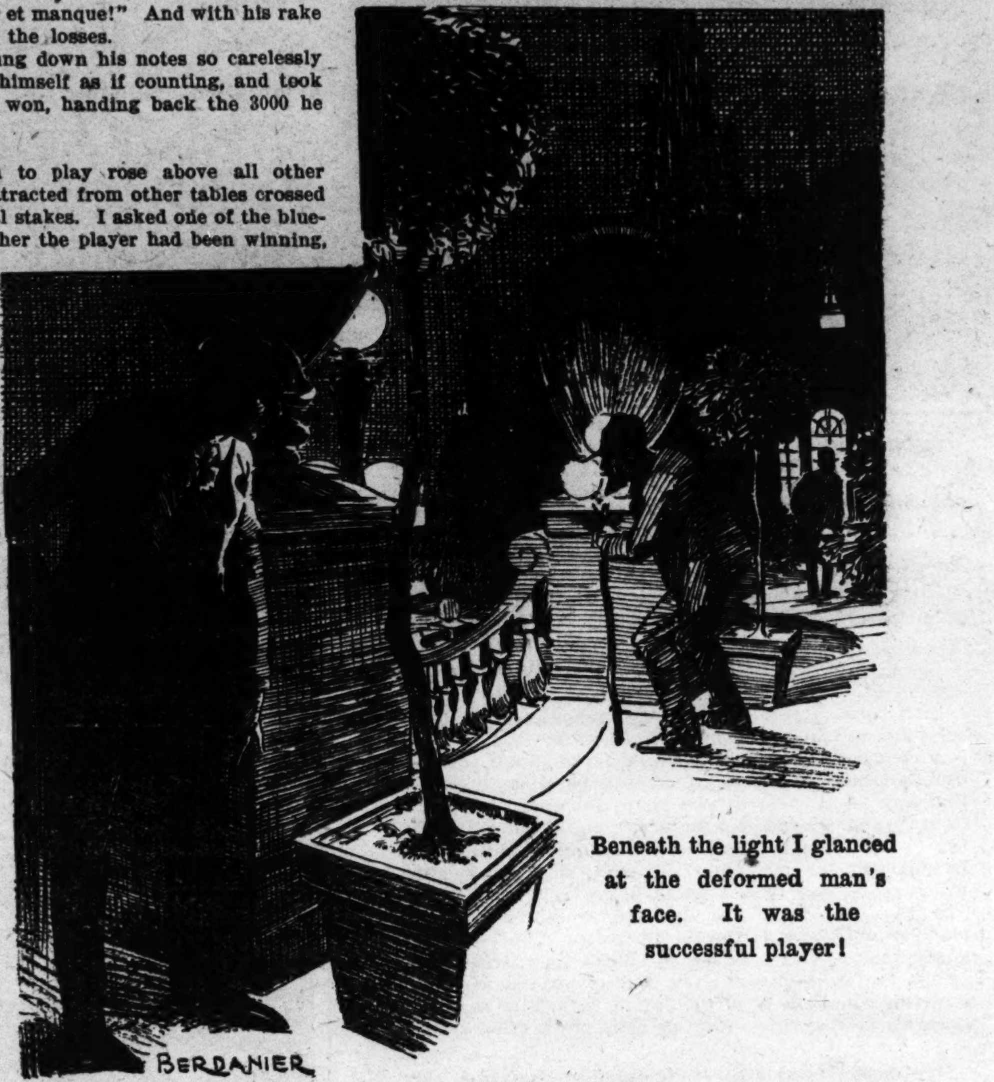
For a single second there was a dead silence as all eyes watched the tiny ball, while it fell with a rattle and final click into one of the small sockets on the cylinder, and ere it had touched the number the croupier announced in the same sharp voice:

"Neuf! Rouge, impair et manque!" And with his rake commenced to draw in the losses.

The man who had flung down his notes so carelessly muttered something to himself as if counting, and took the 6000 francs he had won, handing back the 3000 he had staked, saying:

"Premiere colonne."

Again the invitation to play rose above all other sounds, and loungers attracted from other tables crossed to watch the sensational stakes. I asked one of the blue-coated attendants whether the player had been winning, and the reply was that he had lost only once, and that he played always with the same stakes—3000 francs. Then, returning to the table, I stood next to him.



Beneath the light I glanced at the deformed man's face. It was the successful player!

The moment the stranger's notes were placed on the small square at the end of the table beneath the number 36 gold and silver were showered upon it by those determined to follow the play of this favorite of fortune.

The wheel was spun, the ball ejected, and a few moments later, in the breathless tension which followed, arose the words:

"Dix-huit! Rouge, pair et manque!"

Again the stranger had won. The smaller stakes were paid first, then the croupier handed him six notes, each for a thousand francs. This time he placed all the notes in his pocket, together with the 3000 he had staked, and, producing a note for 100 francs, tossed it on zero.

The chance was too small to suit the majority of the players and only a couple of 5-franc pieces were placed beside it.

"Rien ne va plus!" sounded almost before the stakes could be placed on.

The ball gave a little jump, then fell with a sharp click, click, click!

"Trente-deux!" cried the croupier loudly, with that roll of the "l" which frequenters of Monte Carlo know so well.

The stranger, with a muttered word, which sounded very much like an oath, turned away, having lost for the first time, but the richer by many thousand francs than half an hour before. Those around the table envied him his luck; and many, mostly of the English tourist class, admired his self-control in leaving immediately after his first loss. If everyone did so, there would be fewer ruined fortunes, and the bank would profit less.

With both hands deep in his pockets, and a disconsolate look on his face—an expression rather as though he had lost heavily than gained—he strolled away into the trente-et-quarante room beyond. Whether it was the curious look of suppressed excitement in his eyes that caused me to keep his dejected figure in sight I know not, yet by some intuition I felt that about this man—who was certainly not an habitue of the rooms—there was something mysterious. One fact was strange: When he had drawn from his vest pocket the 100-franc note he had taken out with it a third-class return railway ticket. Men as well dressed do not usually travel to Monte Carlo third-class. Again, as I watched him cross the polished floor, I saw that although his coat and vest were were well cut, and that he wore a heavy gold-albert, yet his trousers were frayed at the bottoms, baggy at the knees and altogether disreputable.

A dozen times as I strolled backwards and forwards the length of the rooms, lounging here and there, I caught his full face and profile. It was that of a man strong-willed, excited beneath a calm exterior, and debating within himself whether he should continue playing. The face was not the original of any of my collection.

From table to table he strolled, pausing to glance at the play, until he passed out into the great atrium, at that moment filled with the crowd emerging from the concert room.

As I went out by the entrance door I whispered to Grenat, the head doorkeeper, pointing him out, and ordering him, if he again entered, to look at his card, and at once send his name to me.

Leisurely the stranger made his way to the end of the hall, entered the small bar and ordered a glass of lemonade. By the manner in which he ordered it I at once knew that he was acquainted with the Casino, for every stranger orders whisky or brandy, in ignorance that no intoxicants are sold. Having swallowed it at a gulp, he turned and made his way back into the rooms.

"Well," I asked Grenat, a few moments later, "what's his name?"

"Emile Tessier," was the reply.

At once I entered the bureau of the administration and from the register discovered that a card of admission had that afternoon been issued to one Emile Tessier, who had given his nationality as French and his address as the Hotel Iles Britanniques at Mentone.

Again I went into the gaming room, where I found him standing watching one of the center roulette tables. There was nothing extraordinary about him, except the wildness of his eyes, and that, I reflected, might be due either to the intense excitement consequent on winning or to slight aberration. Yet, somehow, I entertained a suspicion; I felt convinced that some mystery lay behind that man's movements, and therefore continued watching him.

Through the remainder of that afternoon he lounged leisurely about the rooms, sometimes interested in the play, but never risking anything higher than a 5-franc piece, until nearly 7 o'clock, when he obtained his hat and coat and left the Casino. As soon as I saw his intention, I also obtained my hat and took a short cut through the gardens to the steps leading down to the railway station. At the top of the steps I overtook an old, decrepit man, hunchbacked and shabby, who leant heavily on his stout stick, and was about to descend. He had been speaking with a man, whose dark figure I saw disappearing in the direction of the Casino. Beneath the light I glanced at the deformed man's face.

It was the successful player! In the darkness of the gardens he had assumed his ragged overcoat, turned his soft felt hat into another shape, and, with an altered expression of heavy care and inexpressible sorrow, had effected a transformation that was little short of marvelous. Indeed, were it not for the fact that I had heard him cough, and recognized it as the cough of the man who had won so many thousands at the tables, even I should have failed to identify him.

In that instant I became convinced that my suspicions were not unfounded, and further, that the mystery was deeper than I had imagined. Naturally he was a tall, handsome, well-built man of gentlemanly bearing and almost military appearance, but his feigned deformity was so complete that the gait could only have been acquired by long practice, while his facial expression was so altered as to render him almost unrecognizable. He was, at any rate, a perfect artist in disguise. By assuming his hat and overcoat which hid his collar and cravat, he had transformed himself into a member of the tramp fraternity, whom none would suspect of daring to enter the Casino. This extraordinary garb accounted for his third-class ticket. By appointment he had met the man who had disappeared, but their conversation could not have lasted 10 seconds.

At the station, instead of remaining on the platform for Mentone, he crossed the line and entered the omnibus train for Nice, while I also mounted into a first-class compartment, determined to see where he really lived, my curiosity being now thoroughly aroused. That there was some deep purpose in this complete disguise I felt confident, but what it was I could not imagine.

When he got out at Nice he had taken off his overcoat, and, carrying it over his arm, walked erect in natural attitude. I followed him down the avenue de la Gare, across the Place Massena, and on to the promenade, where he disappeared into the Hotel des Anglais. He had given an incorrect address, and it was strange that a first-class hotel should care to take in a man who wore such shabby trousers. After 20 minutes or so I inquired at the bureau of the hotel, and discovered that the stranger who had thus aroused my couriosity was

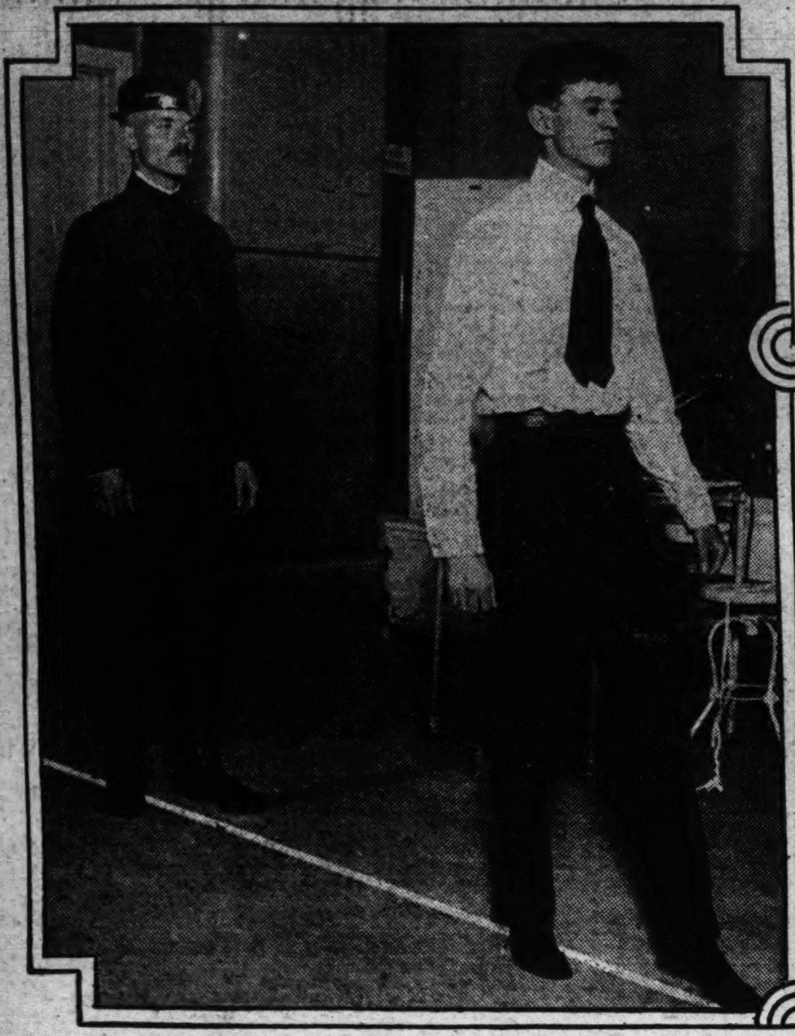
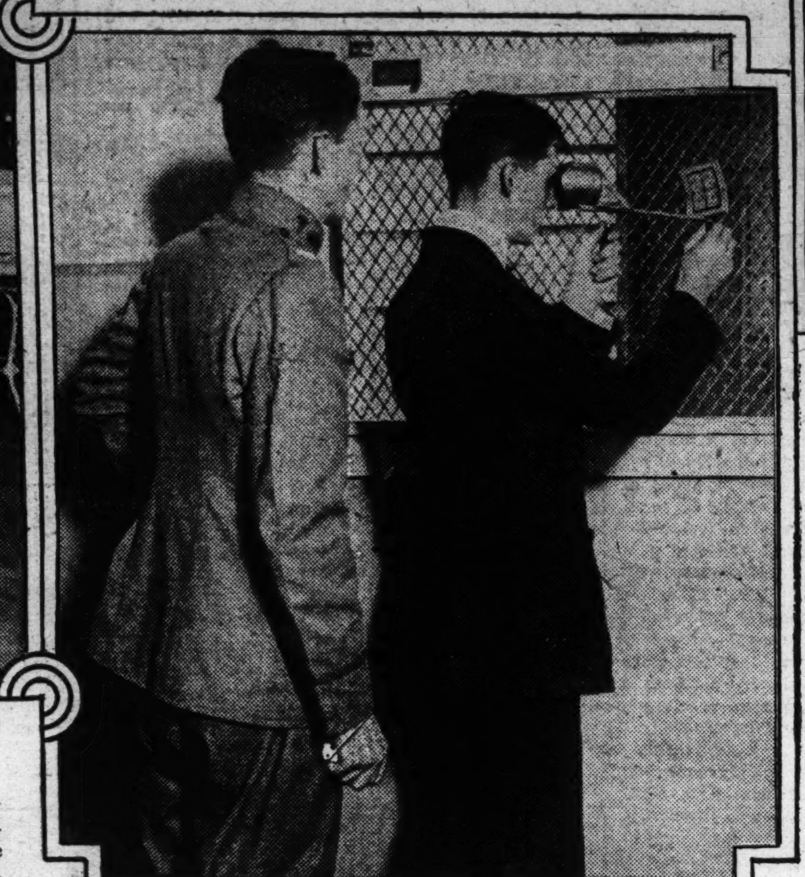
PICKING UNCLE SAM'S 100,000 BIRDMEN;

All Depends On Perfect Ear Canals One-Twentieth of an Inch Wide

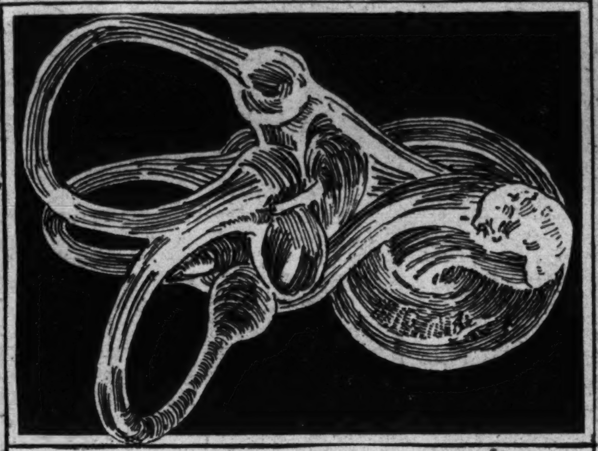
These tiny organs in internal ear are nature's "spirit levels," and govern the human being's sixth sense of equilibrium—Faculty must be acute if aviator is to keep machine on even keel when flying in darkness or so high that earthly landmarks are invisible — Remarkable tests by which vertigo and convulsive rolling of eyeballs are artificially induced — Candidate rejected unless he becomes dizzy on being whirled in revolving chair :-:



The dynamic test—candidate, with closed eyes, is required to walk a tape line, forward and then backwards.

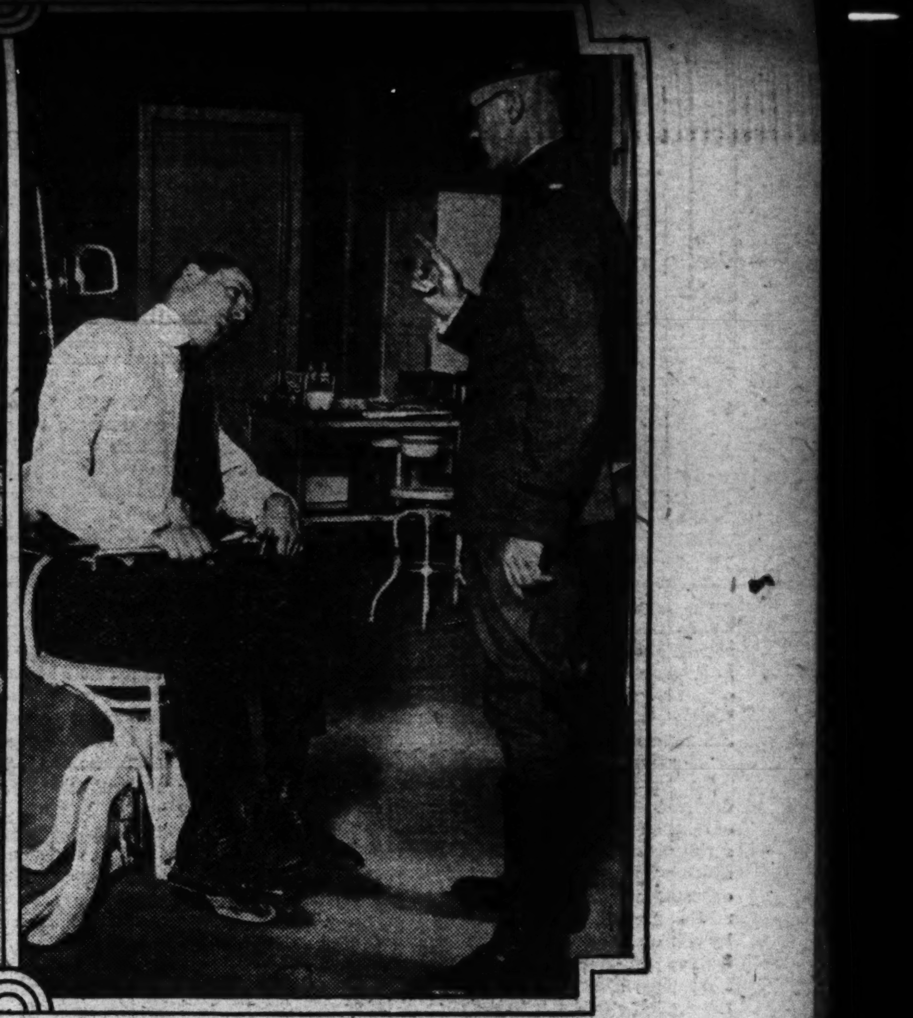


Test for stereoscopic vision determines whether applicant has faculty, indispensable in reconnaissance work, for judging relative distances of objects.



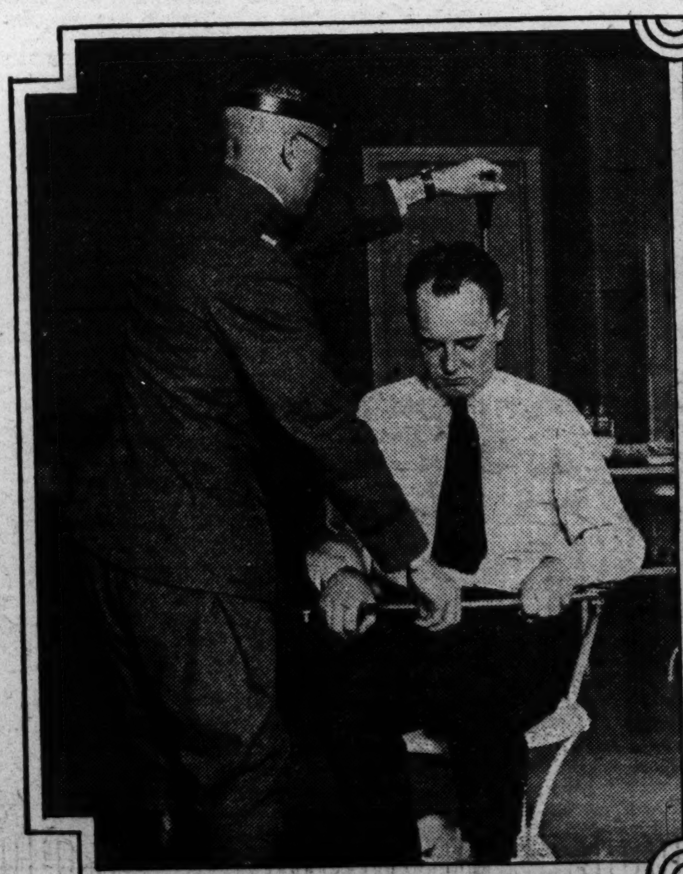
These three semicircular canals, hollowed out in bone of the internal ear, are the "spirit levels" of the body. They are about one-twentieth of an inch in diameter, and are the organs of the sixth sense, that of equilibrium. No man without this faculty perfectly developed can be accepted as an aviator.

Candidate, bending far over, snapped as chair is whirled five times in 10 seconds, for falling test.



When chair is stopped, normal person instantly drops to opposite direction in which it was revolving.

If candidate, in "past pointing" test, finds examiner's fingers on first trial, he is rejected as subnormal.



Examiner beginning to spin revolving chair 10 times in 20 seconds, for nystagmus test.

The moment the chair stops, candidate attempts to fix his gaze on some object. The eyeballs roll furiously to and fro. A stop-watch measures the time it takes the oscillation to cease.

HAS it ever occurred to you to wonder how it happens that an aviator, flying at night and lost in the black void of the sky, still contrives to hold his craft on an even keel upon the invisible billows of the air? Or how, having soared by day above the clouds to such heights that earthly landmarks are no longer discernable, he yet is able to maintain an unerring sense of equilibrium? That he can and does accomplish these marvels is certain, else he would never return alive. For suppose he should make the mistake, having nothing visible to guide him, of thinking that an angle of 45 degrees was really parallel with the hidden surface of the earth!

Man can achieve these feats because nature has provided his body with a set of "spirit levels," which, if functioning perfectly, operate as accurately when he is swallowed up in the abysses of space as when he is walking on the ground. This strange fact is becoming popularly known through the tests prescribed for candidates aspiring to join Uncle Sam's proposed air army of 100,000 men. Science has determined that in addition to sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch man possesses a sixth sense—that of equilibrium; and the greatest of these, for aviation purposes, is the sixth. By means of a simple revolving chair, the examiners have perfected an infallible method for determining whether any man possesses this precious faculty.

Hollowed out in the bone of the internal ear are three tiny canals, approximately semicircular in shape. Each is so minute that its diameter is about one-twentieth of an inch. The canals contain a clear fluid, known as perilymph. This delicate apparatus is the body's "spirit level," which operates on the same principle of gravity as the familiar carpenter's tool of that name.

Normally every movement of the body necessitates a movement of the lymph in the semicircular canals. The motion of the fluid stimulates certain nerves, and the impulses thus created are carried to the brain centers and translated into equilibrium. Normally the brain is warned instantly if there is any variation from balance, and as instantly telegraphs orders for the proper muscular adjustments to correct the deviation. The process of walking involves constant supervision by the semicircular canals. A drunken man reels because his brain centers are deadened to the stimuli sent in by these "spirit levels," and the muscular adjustments are only clumsily and tardily made.

Not only because lives are valuable, but because the Government has to pay the expense of training aviators and also of the breakage of machines, the tests for the sixth sense are particularly rigid, and anyone lacking the faculty of equilibrium is promptly rejected. It is a significant fact that several professional aviators, noted as exhibition fliers, have been refused permission to join the aerial corps. They could not understand it. The fact was that in them the sense of balance was defective; they did not miss it in ordinary daytime flying, not very high in the air; but it was pretty certain that if they should be sent forth on a night flight, or soar above the clouds several miles in the sky, there would be fatalities and wrecked machines not due to German "archies" or enemy airplanes.

When the semicircular canals are in perfect working order, any vigorous displacement of the body's equilibrium results in three symptoms. The first is nystagmus, or a rapid, involuntary oscillation of the eyeballs. The second is vertigo, and the third falling. The army tests seek to obtain these reactions by means of artificial stimulation of the canals. One would at first think that the examinations would seek to find men who are immune to nystagmus, vertigo and falling, under any conditions. But the opposite is true. If after certain ordeals the candidate does not suffer a rolling of the eyeballs and the other reactions, it is accepted as a fact that lesions are present which prevent impulses from reaching the proper nerve centers. Within limits, the more violently one displays nystagmus, and the dizzier he gets, the more acute is his sense of equilibrium.

Pictures on this page make clear the apparatus employed by the examiners in judging a candidate's balancing faculty. It is a medium-sized white-enameled chair, mounted on a pivot on which it may be rapidly revolved. At the base is a locking mechanism and a brake, by means of which the revolutions may be stopped instantly. From the head rack arises a handle, for use in whirling the chair about.

When the candidate takes his place in the chair for the nystagmus test he is told to tilt his head forward at an angle of about 30 degrees, so as to bring the semicircular canals of the ear on a horizontal plane. He closes his eyes and braces himself with hands and feet. Then the chair is whirled to the right 10 times in 20 seconds.

The instant the brake is applied and the chair stopped, the aspirant is told to open his eyes and fix them on some object. Usually the object seems to him to be jumping violently back and forth. The truth is that his eyeballs are furiously rolling to and fro, too rapidly for one to count the oscillations. When the eyes are first opened the surgeon clicks a stop watch, and when their fluttering finally ceases the watch clicks again; on the records is entered the duration of the nystagmus. Then the test is repeated, save that this time the chair is whirled to the left.

Then comes the test for falling. The chair is revolved to the right, five times in 10 seconds, the candidate's eyes being closed, his clenched hands resting on his knees, and his forehead touching his hands. Suddenly the brake is put on, and he is told to sit upright without opening his eyes. The lymph in the ear canals is still moving to the right and the candidate, struggling to balance himself under the delusion that he is falling towards the right, invariably topples over towards the left. At least, should he be so unfortunate as to be able to sit up erect, he would be rejected.

The utility of this test is obvious. The whirling of the chair induces artificially the same feeling that a man would have were he overbalanced on the right side. The fall to the left is an instinctive effort to recover himself. That instinct would instantly warn him high in the air should his machine begin to slide down on the right side, and would enable him to bring his airplane back to equilibrium. Needless to say, the test is reversed by spinning the chair in the opposite direction, and noting whether the candidate this time tumbles over to the right. A man must be ambidextrous, so to speak, in his sense of balance.

The test for vertigo, or dizziness, is known as "past pointing." The recruit, still in the revolving chair, is turned to the right 10 times in 10 seconds. His eyes are closed. Then the chair is stopped and locked in position. He is told to stretch out his hand and is permitted to touch the examiner's fingers. Next, he is told to raise his arm high over his head and then, sweeping it down in wide arc, to touch the surgeon's fingers once more. The eyes are kept closed.

The lymph in the canals continues moving from the momentum of the revolutions, and the recruit has a sensation that he is still traveling. So, on bringing down his hand to where he thinks the surgeon's fingers are, he misses them just as far as he has made allowance for in his mind. In other words, he "points past" them. If he really succeeds in touching the fingers in less than three trials, he is likely to be rejected; and to find them on the first trial is fatal. This would prove the existence of some grave defect in the body's "spirit level." Absence of vertigo would probably mean some lesion in the apparatus. The experiment is, of course, repeated, with the chair whirled to the left.

If it is of foremost importance that the ears be perfect, it is scarcely less so in regard to the eyes. The recruit gets all the tests made for vision in examinations for the army, only with redoubled severity. But he has one test peculiar to his own service, that for stereoscopic vision. It means ability to judge the relative distances of objects, although a difference in size may cause them to reflect the same areas on the retina. This faculty is considered indispensable in reconnaisance work, when the aviator must be able to report exactly on the things he has seen.

Boys who on a dare have attempted to walk when blindfolded the ridge pole of a barn will understand the so-called "dynamic" test, which consists in walking with eyes closed along a tape line forwards and then backwards. If one comes through this test with flying colors, he possesses a keen sense of direction and excellent muscular control. Applicants are then asked whether they have ever been affected by seasickness, ear trouble or dizziness, or have ever suffered an injury to the head or ears. They are told that they needn't be bashful about confessing seasickness, as it is perfectly natural for anyone to be seasick.

A candidate entering the medical examining room—usually located at a hospital, so that specialists in every line may be at hand in case they are needed—is made to strip and is examined for any symptom of skin disease. The weight is taken, the minimum being 120 pounds and the maximum 190; and then the height, which may range from 5 feet 4 inches to 6 feet 1 inch. The back and chest are thumped in search of lung trouble, and chest expansion is tested. The rate and quality of the pulse are tested. Much time is spent in taking the blood pressure, as it is of vital importance that this condition be of the best if an aviator is to fly to an altitude of three miles or more, as is often necessary.

The surface veins are closely examined, and then the recruits are put through vigorous setting-up exercises, to stimulate circulation. Specialists with stethoscopes circulate among them listening for murmurs and other indications of impaired heart action. The condition of each man's teeth and tongue is carefully noted.

Each is asked to stand with feet—not merely heels—touching, and with eyes closed for one minute, while a surgeon notes how much he sways. The ears are each tested for their ability to detect a whisper or the tick of a watch at certain distances. With the aid of powerful reflecting lights noses, throats and particularly the tonsils are thoroughly examined. The eyes are searched with the electric ophthalmoscope for possible lesions. There is a test for "muscular balance" of the eyes, this being considered necessary because an aviator's eyes are under such a sharp strain, and often for prolonged periods of time.

Persons who have undergone the aviation tests report that certain ordeals popularly believed to be inflicted on fledgling birdmen exist only in the imagination. No revolvers are fired off near the candidate; there is no sudden ignition of magnesium powder to see whether he will jump and yell "Fire!" No chunks of ice are applied to various parts of his anatomy; and no needles are thrust into his flesh. The tests are severe enough without these imaginary horrors, as is proved by the revelation that only one-third of the volunteers have on an average been able to pass, despite the fact that they are probably the highest type of men, mentally and physically, which the country has available for war service.

It is small wonder that experts predict Uncle Sam's army of fliers will be the most efficient body of men in the world. The tests may be made more severe here than in England, France or Germany, because we have more men to select from. Each will be perfectly normal in body and mind and will—thanks to the revolving chair's elimination of the unfit—possess the sense of balance of a hawk.

And they will have full need for consummate physical condition under the circumstances of military flying as it is now developed. At the beginning of the war the average flight on active service did not rise higher than 4000 or 5000 feet, simply because few of the machines then in use could get much higher with the impedimenta carried. Today a height of 20,000 feet is not infrequently reached, which means an altitude of approximately five miles. It seems fairly certain that if progress in improving climbing machines continues, heights a great deal beyond even this figure will be reached as a usual thing.

Now, when a man gets 20,000 feet in the air, he finds himself at a temperature of about 20 degrees below freezing point, and one who is not very robust, in addition to being well protected, will suffer severely from the cold. Moreover, at such an altitude the air has become so rarified that breathing grows painful, and there is always a danger, except in those of strong physique, of a sudden and fatal collapse.

An interesting description of the sensations which the young Americans now in training will experience on high flights was given in a lecture before the London Aeronautical Society by Capt. B. C. Hucks of the Royal Flying Corps.

"I have found," he said, "the effect of rarified air to be felt slightly at about 10,000 feet. Breathing become affected, respiration shorter and quicker, and there is a curious oppressive sensation and bulging feeling in the head until a height of about 20,000 feet is reached.

"I am told by a medical friend who has made rather a study of the subject that there is always risk of a sudden collapse, and oxygen should be breathed whether the aviator feels fit or not. Of course, the effect varies considerably with individuals, and with the state of one's health.

"About 18 months ago I suffered slightly with my heart and found that I could not get very high without becoming giddy. After returning from a flight to 12,000 feet I had palpitation, which lasted until the following day. In consequence, I had to abandon flying until treatment got me fit again. This year I have made a number of high flights, and have felt no ill effects whatsoever. In fact, I find the more one gets accustomed to going up high, the less the effects are felt. I am told that this is also the case in mountaineering.

"I can remember the unpleasantness of my first flight to 15,000 feet. It was very marked, especially the pain felt in the drums of the ears on descending. The fact that a flight now to 21,000 or 22,000 feet does not have so much effect, I put down entirely to acclimatization.

"I use oxygen as a precaution when ascending beyond 20,000 feet. I carry it in a small bottle, fitted with a special reducing valve, which is fixed in the fuselage within easy reach of the hand. No special regulation is required, as the valve is set to pass only the necessary amount of gas into the face mask, which acts as a mixing chamber, with its inlet and outlet air valve.

The apparatus weighs 16 pounds and contains sufficient oxygen for one hour's continuous use. After reaching 20,000 feet I find it is only necessary to use the oxygen intermittently, and, accordingly, I simply hold the mask, after turning on the gas, over the mouth and nose, and take a few breaths of it, perhaps every half minute.

"The effect to me is remarkable; most of the oppressive feeling vanishes, and, excepting for the unpleasant bulging feeling in the head, such as you experience with a bad cold, the sensation is one of suddenly being again at ground level.

"If the speed of climb continues to improve at the rate it has for the last three years, it looks as though aviators may become subject to what is known as 'caisson disease,' due, I am told, to the sudden reduction of atmospheric pressure, such as divers are subjected to when they come to the surface from a great depth."

As to cold at high altitudes, Capt. Hucks said that in the winter time flying even as low as 6000 feet is often attended with intense discomfort. And even when it is summer on the ground it is cold winter 17,000 feet in the air. At this height, Capt. Hucks related, "I became so numbed that my vitality must have been something akin to that of a dormouse under the snow. In spite of being well gloved, I had frost-bitten finger tips, which pained for many days afterward."

Newer machines convey the warm air from the radiator and engine along the fuselage to the pilot and passenger. In such an airplane, with the temperature below freezing on the ground, he soared to 21,000 feet without discomfort until he shut off the engine to descend.

The Films are taken one after another, about 1-100 of a second apart, as the object is passing, and thus its every action is brought out clearly in the picture. They are produced by the same Photographic and Mechanical process as those used by the standard machines in all the large Moving Picture Theatres. I will ship you a fine Machine all complete and ready to give a Moving Picture Show the minute you receive it. REMEMBER, THERE WILL BE NO DELAY.

Would Not Give Away for $25.00

My Moving Picture Machine is a good one and I would not give it away for $25.00. It's the best machine I ever had and I wish everybody could have one. Addie Bresky, Jeanesville, Pa. Box 34.

Better Than a $12.00 Machine

I am slow about turning in my thanks to you, but my Moving Picture Machine is all right. I have had it a long time and it has not been broken yet. I have seen a $12.00 Machine, but would not swap mine for it. Robert Lineberry, care of Revolution Store, Greenboro, N. C.

Wonderful

I received my Wonderful Moving Picture Machine in good condition. I learned how to run it in ten minutes. It sure is a dandy. It shows lifelike pictures. Thanking you for it, I remain—Yours truly, Dale Slack, 900 Trendley, East St. Louis, Ill.

Came the Day Expected

I received the Moving Picture Machine all in good condition. I tried it the day I got it and found it worked excellently. I got the machine on just the day I had set for it to arrive. I think it is a dandy for the little I had to do for it. Irving Mills, So. Lee, Mass.

Another Show Tonight

I received my Moving Picture Machine and I thank you a thousand times. I could not have more fun than I did because the pictures were so funny. I am going to give another show to-night. Many boys saw it and wished they had one. Joseph Bauer, 625 So. Moulton Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal.

Would Not Take $30.00 for It

I find your Machine to be what it is recommended. I believe if thousands of other boys had one they would enjoy life better. I don't think they could get any other thing they would like so well. I would not take $30.00 for it. I have been offered almost that much. I thank you a thousand times. Harry Crisp, Akin, Ill.

Would Not Sell for $10.00

I have one of your Machines and I think it is the grandest thing in the world and I would not sell it for $10.00. Israel Hood, Chester, S. C.

Shows Clear Pictures

I have been very slow in sending you an answer. I received my Moving Picture Machine a few weeks ago and I think it is a dandy, and it shows the pictures clear just as you said it would. I am very proud of it. I thank you very much for it and I am glad to have it. I gave an entertainment two days after I got it. Leopold Lamontagne, 54 Summer Ave., Central Falls, R. I.

Sold His for $10.00 and Ordered Another

Some time ago I got one of your Machines and I am very much pleased with it. After working it for about a month I sold it for $10.00 to a friend of mine. He has it and entertains his family nightly. I have now decided to get another one of your machines. Michael Ehereth, Mandan, N. Dak.
